

Convention of State Baptists Closing Today

Joseph Sorenson Is Elected President of B. Y. P. U.—Pastors to Fill Local Pulpits.

The closing session of the Nebraska State Baptist convention will be held today at the Calvary Baptist church, Thirty-ninth and Cuming streets.

Dr. Richardson, Northwestern university, addressed the convention last evening on "Jesus, the Master Teacher."

Teacher and Truth.
Dr. Richardson said: "The ideal teacher has a first-hand vital, living relationship to the truth. He has a personal as well as a living relationship. He sustains an equally vital and personal relationship to those who are to receive the truth."

"The ideal teacher is interested in fitting truth and life together. It is one thing to have possession of the truth and another to be able to impart the truth. He must be able to present truth vividly, to quicken in others the desire after the truth and to set those desires aflame."

Dr. Richardson interpreted the teaching of Jesus by the following four concepts: "Jesus was known to his contemporaries not as a philosopher, not as a philanthropist, not as a literary man, but as the first teacher."

The closing prayer was offered by Rev. R. M. Lewis, Broken Bow, Neb. Officers Elected.

Earlier in the evening a banquet was held by the Nebraska B. Y. P. U. in the basement of the church. Miss Theresa Sounovskiy, Fremont, acted as toastmistress. Miss McCarty, Omaha, gave a toast on "B. Y. P. U. A." "Echoes of B. Y. P. U. Assembly at Grand Island College" was the subject of an address given by Miss Helen Steen of Fremont. During the course of the banquet Joseph M. Sorenson, Fremont, was elected president of the B. Y. P. U. of Nebraska.

President J. Mason Wells of Grand Island college will preach this evening at Trinity Baptist church.

Dr. Richardson will fill the pulpit at the 7:30 services tonight at Immanuel Baptist church.

Man Arrested as Suspect in Train Bandit Murders

Youth Taken in Custody in Courtroom at Marshfield, Ore.—4 Others Trained in Coos Bay Country.

Marshfield, Ore., Oct. 13.—On advice from Sheriff Terrill at Medford, Sheriff Ellingsen arrested Allen Hodges, 22, in the courtroom here today as a suspect, the sheriff said, in the wrecking of Southern Pacific train No. 13 and the killing of four trainmen in the Siskiyou tunnel Thursday.

Sheriff Ellingsen was also asked to apprehend Walter Hodges, 20, brother of the prisoner, for investigation in connection with the crime. The sheriff said the second man would be arrested this afternoon.

Hodges was arrested in the courtroom when he appeared to plead on a larceny charge, for which he had been out on bail.

Portland, Ore., Oct. 13.—Allen Hodges, arrested on suspicion of being implicated in the tunnel holdup and murders at Siskiyou, has proved that he was in Marshfield the night of the robbery, according to the sheriff's office here, says a message to the Portland Telegram from its correspondent at Marshfield.

Best Sellers

Did you ever get a statistical complex? A fever of sales analysis to see who's who in the book of fashions has broken out in the columns this week. It's fascinating. For just as the Bookman's Monthly Score hints at what the world is thinking about, the best sellers at Thompson-Belden's are a guide to what smart women are wearing. The ratings given below are based on our sales records for the past four weeks.

A Close Count

Black satins had only a narrow margin over navy in the silk frocks, and those priced $59.50 seemed best liked. Out of the maze of my grand totals and averages, I decided a stunning black satin model with brilliant peasant embroideries must be the materialization of the composite taste of our dress patrons, for in price, color and material it tallied with my count. In cloth frocks, navy Poirer twill was the expected winner and the group at $49.50 the popular price.

$98.50 Our Batting Average in Coats

Fur-trimmed dress coats were ahead at the end of the first inning in the fall fashion series in our Coat Section. Looking at a beautiful black velveteen model with great fluffy collar of gray fox shown at this price, I immediately felt this style would be a pennant winner straight through to the end of the season.

The Kite's Tail

Wash blouses tied to the kite of the sweater's great popularity have sailed into their present enviable position with ease. And our Peter Pan dimities are first in their class (as the automobile publicists are fond of saying), because of their clever handwork. Hand-hemstitched, hand-embroidered and edged with handmade Irish picot, they are keen values.

Fabric Ratings

40-inch Satin Canton in brown at $3.75 a yard takes first place in silks, while 54-inch needle twill in navy at $4.75 leads the woollens.

First in Footwear

Do you ask me why more women buy Thompson-Belden Special silk hose than any other kind? Because at its price of $1.95 you can't surpass it for service and beauty. And why are the shoe shades now leading? Doubtlessly because the Shoe Section sells more slippers in beaver, other and other shades of sand than any other color.

Chamoisettes Throw Down the Gauntlet

—to all rivals in gloves and take first honors with a strap-wrist style in the new oak shade at $1.35 a pair.

Handkerchief Index Registers Color

My archaic notion that probably the majority of women still used white kerchiefs was rudely dispelled on being told of the dozens and dozens of these colored linen ones Omaha women have carried off for 12½ each. In rose, blue and orchid.

Figures in Corsets

Sales records show wrap around girdles suit the greatest number in our corset section. And the pretty models of sectional elastic and flesh brocade at $5 make them the price leader. No style in knit union suits was close competition for low neck sleeveless suits in knee length. Carter or Richelieu brands are priced $1.

A Sales Prodigy

When women send to us from Canada and Mexico, from Montana and New Hampshire for so small a trifle as a hair net, the value must be a knockout. We are rather puffed up over this international reputation of Sonia nets, but Omaha women have long made the cash register ring with their approval of these nets at 50¢ a dozen for the single mesh and 65¢ for the double.
