Fears She Will Lose His Love

By MARTHA ALLEN.

Dear Miss Allen: You have helped me before, now I am coming to you for advice once more, I think your advice so splendid. I am a young girl of 21 and very much in love with a boy of 19. I know it's the real love. It has lasted for three years, ever since I was 18 and this boy 16. He also loves me as much as I love him, yes, I am sure he does. We have always been together in those three years, always going together. I thought the boy was too young, and although I loved him I tried at different times to be interested in other boys by going with them, but I always had a miserable time and made the boy I love just miserable. He always coaxes me please not to go with others. He loves me so he says. He is always as nice to me as he can be, does so many things for me. I trust him. Yet as boys often do, he and my brother often talk of other girls and discuss which is the prettiest, and that makes me miserable. I know this boy loves me and he trusts me, yet every girl that interests him I am afraid of, because he's young and people are daily preaching to me that he can't keep on loving me and that I might as well know in time that there will be a different girl sometime. Both of our folks think it is all right for us to go together, but of course he's too young to marry. He has often spoken of marriage to me, but of course not really proposed. He only tells me that I'm the only girl for him, and he also told me he hoped I would wait three more years. Now, Miss Allen is that right—three whole years? I'll be 24 and he almost 22. Then I'm getting old and he just starting in. Isn't it better if we get married say in a year. I'm willing to wait, but people have scared me for the future. I can't lose him. What shall I do? If he marries I think he will get a farm to live on, so he can support a wife all right, but probably if he marries so young at 20, he might hunt up girls and good times after, ward. Do you think so? But can I wait till 24? It scares me to think of being 24 this way. We have lots of good times now, so every place together. Dances, movies, parties and visiting and we get along perfectly except when I get a spell and imagine I've just got to quit him. Then we're both miserable. What shall I do. Please help me, Miss Allen. If I wait three more years and another girl should happen into his life, won't all my chances of happiness be gone then? Oh, I'm so miserable. You will not be too old at 24 even should you decide to wait the three years. I would advise you, however, not to give all your time to this one boy. Go with others, then if he decides after the three years he does not love you you will have plenty of friends to choose from. It is quite possible that he will not care for you three years hence, but then you should not care, because no girl or woman wants to marry a man unless she is sure that man loves her sincerely. This is the only way you can be happily married, and remember you are married a long while. An unhappy marriage is a terrible thing to face in life.

Omaha Girl Marries Son of Governor of Alaska

The marriage of Miss Gene Culbertson of Omaha to Scott C. Bone, son of Scott W. Bone, governor of Alaska, will take place in San Francisco Saturday morning at the home of Mrs. Abbott, a family friend. Miss Culbertson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Culbertson, reside in Indiana, but many other relatives are Omahans, including Mrs. J. C. Peterson, a sister. Governor Bone, father of the groom, will not be able to attend the wedding, being en route to Washington, D. C., to attend a conference of governors called by President Coolidge. He will visit his son and wife early in November in their San Francisco home, where they will reside. His wife and a sister of the bride, Miss Marguerite Culbertson of Seattle, will attend the wedding. Governor Bone was formerly editor of the Post-Intelligencer at Seattle and before that and for many years of the Post at Washington, D. C. He was publicity manager for the Harding campaign. Miss Culbertson left Saturday for the trip west, stopping in Denver en route. She will arrive in San Francisco on Friday. Many affairs were given for her before her departure. She has been a teacher in the Omaha schools. During the summer Miss Culbertson, Mrs. Peterson and a third sister, fared a slight accident on Saturday at Nicholas Senn hospital, where she is training, and is confined to her home for a few days.

Out-of-Town Wedding of Interest.

The marriage of Miss Helen Harrington, daughter of Judge and Mrs. J. J. Harrington of O'Neill, Neb., and Earle Francis Buelow of Racine, Wis., took place yesterday in St. Patrick church in O'Neill. Rev. Father M. F. Cassidy, who performed the ceremony, officiated at the wedding of Miss Harrington's parents, 25 years ago. Miss Mary Dugan of Goodwin, Neb., a sorority sister of the bride, sang during the mass. The ceremony was followed by a reception at the Harrington home.

The bride's gown was of white chiffon heavily embroidered in chenille and finished with a girdele of rhinestones. Her long tulle veil fell from a coronet of rhinestones. She carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses. Miss Genevieve Biglin of O'Neill, her only attendant, was gowned in apple green chiffon embroidered in gold beads. She wore a small hat of green combined with gold cloth and carried Ward roses. George Harrington of O'Neill, a cousin of the bride, served as best man.

Mrs. Buelow's traveling gown was of blue pique tulle combined with sand colored crepe. With this she wore a small blue hat and a seal coat trimmed in kolinsky. Following an eastern honeymoon Mr. Buelow and his bride will be at home in Racine. The bride is well known in university circles. She was graduated from the University of Nebraska and is a member of Delta Gamma sorority. Mr. Buelow attended the University of Wisconsin.

Dicky Liked Madge's Gown; All Went Well Until— Civilization has enabled men and women to present a calm exterior, though their minds and hearts may closely resemble an actively erupting volcano. I wonder sometimes if it would not be better for our nerves and morals if we gave vent to our emotions as do little children and savages. Putting the lid upon poisonous gases means a bad explosion sooner or later.

COFFEE HISTORIANS No. 2 12 58 AD

Then Sheik Omar was banished from Mocha

NEARLY seven centuries have passed, but the name of Sheik Hadj Omar is still highly honored in Arabia. Mocha, his native city, cast him out into the desert to die of starvation. He had dared to love the daughter of his king. Yet banishment led to fame, for in his wanderings Omar discovered the coffee shrub and brought coffee berries back to Mocha. Then his praise was sung far and wide, and he gained a place in the legendary tales of his country. But Omar could not offer even the King of Mocha such coffee as you may now enjoy—M.J.B. COFFEE.
