

Plumber Slays Denver Woman and Companion

Jealousy Cause of Shooting After Victims Had Shown Love for Each Other, Confessed.

By Associated Press.
Denver, Colo., Oct. 23.—A. H. Mitchell, a Denver plumber, today confessed to the Denver police that he shot and killed Mrs. Georgia A. Bryan, 30, and A. J. Sherie, 50, in a bedroom at the Sherie home early today near Morningside, Colo., according to the police. Mitchell declared he could not stand to see Mrs. Bryan "loving another man," the police said.

According to the police, Mitchell declared Mrs. Bryan, Sherie and himself went on a "party" last night. Returning to the Sherie place, more liquor was consumed. Mitchell is declared to have objected to attentions Sherie paid to Mrs. Bryan, which he said were reciprocated. The police say Mitchell declared he could not stand by and see Mrs. Bryan "love another man."

According to the police, the shooting started in the bedroom. The assailant apparently first shot Sherie and the woman once. As they struggled from the bedroom, police say, he again fired a shot at the woman. Later, as Sherie struggled with his wound, according to the police, he was again fired upon.

The bodies of Mrs. Bryan and Sherie were found in front of the Sherie home today by neighbors. A few minutes after the discovery W. D. Bryan, a deputy fire chief of Denver, arrived at the Sherie home, searching for his wife. He said Sherie was his "best friend."

Rev. W. C. Garberson, pastor of Mount Hermon Baptist church, brought Mitchell to the police station. After committing the crime Mitchell told the police he drove away from the Sherie home and hid his gun. Then he went back to the scene and mingled with the crowd while the coroner and the sheriff were examining the bodies. He said he told the coroner: "That's a case of murder and suicide."

Then going to the home of his wife from whom he had been separated, Mitchell said he told her of the crime. She called in Dr. Garberson who brought Mitchell to Denver police headquarters.

Mrs. Mitchell, wife of the slayer, told the police her husband had been madly in love with Mrs. Bryan and often had commented on "how it would come out."

According to Bryan, his life told her young daughter yesterday afternoon that she was going to visit friends and would be back later in the evening. Sherie operated a small farm. He had been friendly with Mrs. Bryan for more than a year, according to the police. Mitchell also told the police, he said, he had been a friend of Mrs. Bryan for several months.

Bryan declared that he had considered Sherie his best friend. He formerly lived with the Bryans.

Salesmanship Wins Army Recruits Here

Omaha boasts one of the most efficient army recruiting stations in the country. And that pertains both to quality and number of men recruited, according to Capt. Ivan Curtis, chief officer of the station in the Army building, Fifteenth and Dodge streets. Candidates for the army must pass a series of strict examinations. "They must be sound in all respects," said Captain Curtis, as he glanced at the men in uniform standing at the other end of the office. Prospective doughboys between the ages of 18 and 21 must gain the consent of both their father and mother, or their guardian, in enlisting.

Captain Curtis ascribed the success of the recruiting station largely to the recruiting officers on the streets. "We send out only our very best men," he said. "They are not only the highest type of soldier, they must be salesmen, and good ones at that. Just as good as any professional shoe or clothing salesman," he added.
