See Duse.
Extra Steel Dividend.
McAdoo Comes Out.
Hiram Johnson Soon.
By ARTHUR BRISBANE

Travel from any part of the United States to New York to see Eleanor Duse, the great Italian. On Monday night she appeared in "La Donna del Mare" at the Metropolitan opera house. She will appear nine times more in New York; after that in two other American cities. Then this continent will see her no more.

Where she appears actors and actresses of any ambition should put on their underdies and see and study Duse, one of three great women that have appeared in a century and a half. Bernhardt and Rachel were the other two.

Every woman that sees Duse will find inspiration in her frail body and the beautiful spirit that shines through it. Old women, especially, should see her. Her age is more beautiful than another woman's youth. She is feeble and she is old. It is like seeing the last faint rays of the setting sun. Such rays are infinitely more beautiful than the dull light of any candle, or the glare of any arc lamp. Others are candles, or arc lamps, compared to Duse.

She appears before the cruel footlights old, thin. All the signs of physical weakness are there, cheeks hollow, hands and arms on which years are written.

You know that you see the last of a great career. She conquers age by ignoring it. Her soul is young. Her hair is white, not gray, her white face is white, not painted, and shows its wrinkles. The eyes flame through it. In them are light and power enough.

At her appearance thousands applauded. No possessor of youth so beautiful has ever been so applauded in the world's biggest city. Back of it are 20 centuries of culture, and back of that beautiful old face, a life of earnest study, goodness and devotion.

See Duse, you older women especially, and learn that the only thing you need, far from age, is that the light will go out in your heart and mind before the life goes out of your body.

Who shall sound the human heart or tell how it works? Judge Gary, the head of the great steel corporation, sat in a fine box watching Duse's first appearance, and her sorrows moved him. Her genius made even the unimportant, impossible sorrows of an Ibsen play seem important.

Yesterday afternoon he astonished Wall street, with the help of his fellow directors, by declaring an extra quarterly dividend of one-quarter of 1 per cent on the common stock of United States Steel. That quarterly increase means 1 per cent a year, which will amount to $5,000,000 added to the income of those that own the stock.

McAdoo lets it be known that he is in the race for president. Of course he is, being the most conspicuous democratic candidate. Hiram Johnson will be in the ring also. This is a free-for-all, and Hiram Johnson probably can get more votes in presidential primaries than any other republican.

Albert Lasker will work for Johnson as he did for Harding. He's a first-class dynamo.

One of Mr. Ford's secretaries says he wouldn't accept the nomination for the presidency. But it isn't Liebold, the real secretary, and probably doesn't mean much.

Mr. Ford has his days for presidential running and his days for forgetting all about it. If the nomination should come on the right day he would probably take it. Meanwhile he is starting a plant near Philadelphia, to cost 20 or 30 millions, and hire a few good men at high wages. That's not bad politics.

Everybody noticed the death of Steinmetz, great electrical scientist. Everybody praised his services to this nation, to industry. Everybody recognized the fact that this genius added tens of millions to the value of a great corporation, gave work to thousands. There is one thing to add. Steinmetz was poor, a lurchback cripple, a sickly Jewish boy, when he came to this country. If he came today, he would be turned back promptly.

Mary, Doug, Ask Court to Stop Gossip

Noted Film Stars to Start Action Against Movie Magazine to Put Stop to Scandal.

By Associated Press.
Los Angeles, Oct. 31.—A court battle to put a stop to alleged malicious and unfounded stories about men and women in the motion picture industry was expected to be started in New York today as the result of instructions from Mary Pickford, motion picture actress, and her actor husband, Douglas Fairbanks.

Last night announced they had telegraphed to attorneys in that city. Their eastern attorneys, they said, were ordered to begin suit immediately against a film magazine, which is alleged to have published a report that Evelyn Brent, Mr. Fairbanks' former leading lady, had caused the estrangement of Miss Pickford and her husband.

Miss Brent joined with Mr. and Mrs. Fairbanks in denouncing the alleged libelous articles as "ridiculously untrue," and her husband, E. P. Finnan, confirmed the Fairbanks' announcement that she would join with them in the bringing of the suit.

"That was a nasty story and unjust story," was the way Miss Pickford characterized the article on which the proposed libel suit was to be based.

"We are bringing this suit to protect not only ourselves, but all others who are attacked by such stories. Referring to the supposed rumors that a separation from Mr. Fairbanks was imminent," Miss Pickford cited the fact that her husband "follows along, wherever I go on location, even if he has to stop work on his own picture."

Mr. Fairbanks described rumors of a separation as about what one might expect from those "who have been talking about me for years." He added that his acquaintance with Miss Brent was purely professional and that he "never talked with her more than 20 minutes at a time."

His statements were confirmed by Miss Brent, who said: "The only relations I have had with Mr. Fairbanks were business relations. Since leaving his studio I have seen him only twice. She left the Fairbanks studio, she added, because she felt that new production contemplated there offered her no suitable role and for no other reason.

Son Missing;
Mother Buried

Radio Broadcasting Fails to Locate Walter Ross in Time for Funeral.

Her son, Walter, 19, unaware of her death and the family unable to locate him, Mrs. Della Ross, wife of Robert Ross, 265 North Fortieth street, was laid to rest Wednesday at Holy Sepulcher cemetery following funeral services at St. Cecilia cathedral.

An effort to get in touch with the missing youth was made by broadcasting a message from WOAW radio station last night, but in vain.

Walter left Omaha several weeks ago to see his parents, then visiting at the home of Mrs. Lydia Houghton in Long Beach, Cal.

Fudge Parties, Wee Small Hours Won't Mix With Touchdowns, Girls Told

Girls, don't feed your football heroes fudge or keep them out late at night if you want the team to win, was the advice given Wednesday of Miss Belle Ryan, assistant superintendent of Omaha public schools, at a "pep" meeting held at Central High school auditorium.

A large student body filled the auditorium to work up school spirit and practice school yells.

Central will play Creighton prep school Friday afternoon at Creighton field.

The girls promised to cheer the players and to be cheerful themselves.

State May Have Prehistoric Man

Aged Bones Dug Up From Eight Feet of Ground Near Williams, Neb.

Williams, Neb., Oct. 31.—Portions of the body of what is believed to be a prehistoric man, were dug up near here Monday, according to William C. Lamb, one of the excavators, who declared today that the bones were shipped to Professor Barbour of the University of Nebraska for identification.

If the bones are that of a human being, Mr. Lamb stated today, they are of a man about one-third larger than the average man of today, and this ancient probably roamed over Nebraska about 4,200 years ago, he stated.

Mr. Lamb said that the bones were found about eight feet under ground and were so old that some of them crumbled when exposed to air. Bones of what is believed to be a foot, thigh, ribs and portions of a shoulderblade were successfully removed, he asserted.

An arrowhead, which Mr. Lamb thinks was fashioned, even before the stone age, was found near the alleged prehistoric specimen. It was about eight inches long and seemingly made from a split bone or tooth of some large animal. An axe was also unearthed, he declared, and it seemed to have been made from the jawbone of a mammoth.

Mr. Lamb stated today that bones of other antediluvian mammals were also found buried in the same stratum.

"Further excavation is delayed because of danger of cave-in," Mr. Lamb said.

Burgess Bedtime Stories

By THORNTON W. BURGESS.

The foolish boast; the wise keep still; and let the world think what it will.

—Old Mother Nature.

The Chance Old Mr. Buzzard Didn't Want.

Old Mr. Buzzard had talked too much. He knew it. He felt it in his bones. Besides, his neighbors made it quite clear to him. He had boasted that he could fly higher than any of those man-birds, as the little people of the Green Forest and the Green Meadows called the aeroplane, which they saw almost every day. He had boasted that if he had the chance he would prove that he could fly higher. But right down in his heart he didn't want the chance.

You see there was a doubt there. So it was always a relief to have those man-birds pass straight on as if in a hurry to get somewhere.

But one morning one of these man-birds appeared, and instead of hurrying straight on began to swing in great circles over the Green Meadows and the Green Forest. It was not very high up and it made a great noise. At once all the little people remembered the boast of Old Mr. Buzzard, and as many as could hurried over to the tall, dead tree in the Green Forest which was his favorite perch.

"Now is your chance!" said Blacky the Crow.

Old Mr. Buzzard drew his head down between his shoulders and let his wings droop so that he looked very miserable. "Ah would like to oblige 'go' all," said he, "but Ah done got the misery, and Ah don't feel like Ah could do myself justice."

"Caw, caw caw! He's afraid!" shouted Blacky the Crow.

"He's nothing but a big boaster! That's all he is, a big boaster!" shrieked Chatter the Red Squirrel.

"That man-bird can fly circles around Jay, and he knows it!" cried Sammy Jay.

"Did you notice that he didn't have that attack of misery until after we got here?" cried Happy Jack Squirrel. It was more than Old Mr. Buzzard could stand. He began to get angry. He forgot his misery. Anyway, he got over it very quickly. He glared at his tormentors. "Ah'll show 'em," he grunted and lifted his great wings.

The next story: "Old Mr. Buzzard Does His Best."

"Now is your chance!" said Blacky the Crow.
