

Nebraskan Will Help Build Big U. S. Relief Map

Babson Institute Plans Map Giving Valuable Information Concerning Every State in Union.

Special Dispatch to The Omaha Bee
Lincoln, Oct. 31.—Dean J. E. Le Rossignol of the University of Nebraska has been appointed one of a national committee of 48 to supervise the building of a large United States relief map, it was announced here today. The map, which has been conceived by the Babson Institute, will be housed in a suitable building at Babson Park, Wellesley Hills, Mass.

It is believed that the map, which will be surrounded by a number of smaller maps graphically portraying economic conditions in the several states, will be of considerable benefit to every state interested in both its present and future economic development. It has been estimated that the maps will cost each state $1,200. The officials of the Babson Institute state that Nebraska's portion has already been subscribed by "a man who was born and raised in Nebraska, but who has since moved to another state, and who gave the money with the understanding that the Babson Institute would connect the University of Nebraska, which would be found who would accept the position on the national advisory council, or committee of 48."

In addition to the relief map, which the Babson Institute claims will be the largest relief map ever published in existence, in the same building there will be four large wall maps on which will be exhibited fundamental business conditions. Each wall map will be four charts showing from day to day the status of business and correlated data. Their objective is to show quantity and price changes from day to day in the light of the latest information; to show students and visitors the sections where greatest opportunities exist; and "to present graphically the business of our country capable and worthy of greater development and attention."

A building will be constructed for the express purpose of housing the relief map and its allied maps and charts, and the Babson Institute declares that it has been practically guaranteed that the Investment Bankers of America and Poor's Publishing Company of New York will combine their libraries with the Babson library and occupy the entire first floor of the building. Should the building be carried to a successful conclusion, the building will house the finest financial library in America, according to Babson Institute officials.

Hundreds of Hearts to Be Broken at Ellis Island

By International News Service.
New York, Oct. 31.—Hundreds of hearts will be broken, dreams of a lifetime will be shattered here tonight. Of the 17,954 immigrants from every nation of Europe, Asia and Africa, who today knock at America's door—Ellis Island—only a part can enter under the November immigration quota.

"Hundreds, perhaps thousands, must turn back," Henry Curran, commissioner of immigration, said today. "Ellis Island has never faced such a problem. With but four months of the immigration fiscal year past, many national quotas are within but a few score of being completed until the new allotments of next June."

Keeping Millions Free From Colds and La Grippe

W. H. HILL'S LIFE WORK

Colds cause more illness than any other human ailment. Realizing this 50 years ago, W. H. Hill determined to develop a quick-acting scientifically correct cold and la grippe remedy.

Years of research brought success. Mr. Hill discovered a most remarkable formula. He backed it with energy, faith, integrity and a name that meant "satisfaction or money back."

Today more than 4,000,000 families—one-fifth of America's population—use and recommend Hill's Cascara Bromide Quinine.

The formula has never been changed in a quarter century. What Hill's has done for millions, it can do for you. Demand red box bearing Mr. Hill's portrait. All druggists, 30 cents.

Cincinnati, O., Oct. 31.—J. David Larson of Omaha was elected president of the National Association of Commercial Secretaries at the convention's closing session today.

Robert Shanahan of Ames, Ia., was named a director.

Farmers Hurt Selves, Shapiro Declares

failed, co-operative grain elevators, which were organized on a fundamentally wrong basis in that each elevator was fighting the other for the sale of its corn and wheat. He urged farmers that if they had a co-operative poultry marketing association to stay strictly to poultry and not dabble in other lines.

Must Render Service.
As a basic principle of co-operative marketing, he stated a nonprofit basis, declaring that it must be a service organization, pure and simple, and must be non-speculative. Each member must be a producer, and each member must have something to give to the association. Association questions must be decided by the vote of all the members, each member having one vote, and no voting being allowed by proxy, Mr. Shapiro giving warning that to allow voting by proxy was to allow politicians to secure control of the association.

Dealing with his third and last test point, he urged farmers to secure an expert to handle their commodity, declaring that the "dirt farmer" was the producer, but the business man was the merchandiser, and to him belongs that function.

"The true co-operative marketing association does not want help from the government," he concluded. "It simply wants to be let alone and allowed to work out its own problems."

Peteet Speaks.

Approximately 100 people attended the meeting, which was arranged by C. B. Stewart, director of the Nebraska Farm Bureau. Following Saprio's address, Walton Peteet, nationally known expert on co-operative marketing, assumed control of the meeting and answered questions relative to co-operative marketing.

In an address, tonight before one of the Nebraska Teachers' District associations, now meeting here, Mr. Saprio said that "the development of culture depends on the development of the state on a sound economic basis, and that comes from co-operative marketing." Following his initial statements, he developed his address on lines similar to those at the afternoon meeting.

McCormick Fears French Diplomats

is that the Hughes plan will continue to go forward. The assumption is that so much would not have been done already if there had not been beforehand a certain amount of understanding about future moves. In a sense, the Hughes plan gives Poincare a chance to "save his face" before the French people. All the French leaders have so often told their people that Germany must pay a certain amount of reparations that they cannot now reduce the amount demanded from Germany without losing the confidence of the people. But, if a committee of experts changes the amount, this will provide an alibi for the French leaders. The criticism of the isolationists does not aim at stopping the Hughes plan and does not indulge that hope. They know that everything Hughes contemplates, not being in the nature of a treaty, can be done without the advice and consent of the senate.

Watchdog is Sought.

Nevertheless, the isolationists are free to say that they regret the step. Since the step has been taken, they are determined to do all they can to see to it that whoever is appointed as the American expert shall be a man sufficiently watchful for American interests, sufficiently wary about the subtleties of European diplomacy and otherwise equipped to take care of America's interests satisfactorily. Senator McCormick seems to manage his very strong criticisms without making enemies. One could observe him lunching with President Coolidge and exchanging friendly badinage with Secretary Hughes on the very day his criticisms appeared.

Want Debt Paid.

Some of the irreconcilables think the administration would be more usefully employed if it were pressing France to show some disposition to put the debt it owes us on a more businesslike basis. It is six years since that debt was contracted and three years since it became overdue. France is letting the debt run on at the original rate of 5 per cent interest, when it could refund it as Great Britain has at 3 to 3½ per cent. All we have asked France to do is to sign a new note, since the old note is overdue. Great Britain has done this and has made a small payment on account. But France, as Ambassador Harvey once expressed it, has done no more than send a man over here who "talked about the weather, shrugged his shoulders and went back to France."

A little later on, it is probable that some of the isolationists will transfer their attack to the democrats and will ask the democratic leaders to answer yes or no to the question:

"Do they or do they not propose that the United States shall join the league of nations?"

Annual Thanksgiving Sale Linens

Concise the Story of Linens Is As Follows

During the war prices were so high people were compelled to abandon Linens for substitutes.

Now, when Linen Production has about recovered, weavers find a partially lost market.

To recover this market and demonstrate the superiority of Linen over any other fiber for appearance and durability the lowest prices in years have been made.

Our Mr. Sass has just returned from contact with this condition. He knows quality and value in Linens and you can depend on what he tells you.
