Hear Blasco Ibanez.
The Wise Quakers.
The Grave Does Not Count.
Let the Ox Chew.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

Blasco Ibanez, able Spaniard, dining last Tuesday with Ray Long, a magazine editor, said—he doesn't speak any English—"Pour moi le plus joli endroit de la terre c'est Los Angeles."

That sample of Blasco Ibanez's first-class French with a strong accent of the Midi means "For me, the most beautiful place on the earth is Los Angeles."
He added, "I am glad I don't speak English, for I want to travel all over the earth and see every corner of it. If I spoke English, I should settle down in Los Angeles, and stay there for the rest of my life."
Los Angeles real estate agents, take notice.

The Quakers will undertake to feed 2,000,000 half-starved German children this winter. That's a pleasant contrast to "civilized" nations gathering to see what they can get from Germany.
Philanthropy is a work that sounds ridiculous in a civilization that murders tens of millions in the name of honor, and then saves a handful in the name of mercy. But the Quaker's benevolent investment is a good one, apart from charity.

All the money that will be spent to feed those children is less than the amount by which Steinmetz, who died lately, increased the wealth of the United States with his one brain. What will be the total value of the thousands of German children that will be saved by the admirable work of the Quakers?

Bonar Law will lie in Westminster Abbey. American tourists 50 years from now will look at his grave and ask:

"Who in Heaven's name was that?" as they pass on to the place where Pitt and his father, Chatham, lie in the same grave.
Bonar Law's family will be pleased, that's what the burial is for.

They dug up Cromwell and stuck his head on a spear for everyone to laugh at and let it gradually go to pieces. They dug up and scattered the dust of Voltaire. But men of that kind, real men, don't need burial in Westminster Abbey. There wouldn't be room in any building for names as big as theirs.

Vegetarians, and especially those super-enthusiasts that patiently chew raw vegetables, please read. The government shows that it takes six pounds of grain and six pounds of hay to produce one pound of lamb, 10 pounds of hay and 10 pounds of corn to make a pound of beef. Five and one-half pounds of corn will produce a pound of pork—which means that the animal eating the grain or hay will produce the meat.

Doesn't common sense tell us that it is wise to let the o with no important work on hand, use his time and energy digesting 10 pounds of hay and 10 pounds of corn, and then hand on to us the result in one condensed pound of beef?

If you must keep a cat, please in the name of Audubon and common sense, keep the animal locked up, at least in winter time. A learned ornithologist shows that cats kill 10,000,000 birds in this country every year. How many billion harmful insects do you suppose those birds would have destroyed had they been allowed to live?

Keep cats indoors at least. In summer, field mice and other things take their minds partly off the birds.

A witty editor says of the statement that Ford will not run: "Perhaps Henry realizes that the motoring public knows the difference between a Lincoln and a Ford."

Ford's reply might be that both Lincoln and Ford are included in his output. The probability is that he would say:

"I am doing one thing well, and it's got to be done. If I undertook to do another thing, I'd have to stop what I am doing now and I might make a failure of the other job in Washington."
If he did say that he would be a wise Henry Ford.

The government learns that taxes on sales of jewelry haven't been paid. Careful watch is being made "also with regard to household furniture, libraries and musical instruments."

Could you imagine anything more barbarous, more worthy of a Congo savage than putting a tax on the sale of household furniture, and especially on the sale of libraries and musical instruments?
Why not tax a child two cents every time it says its prayers? Reading a good book or hearing good music is the next best thing to praying.

The plan to cut Germany up into many harmless little pieces isn't working as smoothly as it was a few days ago. The British announce that they don't approve it. They have soldiers in the Cologne region and say they won't allow any separation foolishness there.

In everything concerning Europe the interests of France and England are opposed. France, for peace of mind and safety, would like Germany to be cut in small pieces, ready to be eaten at any moment and never dangerous. England, for its safety's sake, does not want an all-powerful France dominating the entire European continent. The French are determined, warlike, efficient. The English have real statesmen and they are deep.

Three Nebraska Missionaries on Leave at Mission Meeting

Three Nebraska missionaries on furlough are featured at the interstate conference of the mission board now in session at First Central Congregational church. They are Mrs. A. L. Wilson, Yenching college, Pekin, formerly of South Omaha; Miss Susan W. Orvis, Talas Turkey, from Roseland, Neb., and Miss Stella Loughridge, also of Talas, who went from Lincoln.

The Chinese flapper is the special delight of Mrs. Wilson. She tells of a revolt in a mission school in Pekin, when the girls sent a student deputation to the teachers and announced that the students intended to bob their hair, because girls in America were doing it. So bob it they did.

Friendliness was aroused; even among the Turks, by Mrs. Orvis' efforts to get 3,000 Armenian orphans and school children from Talas to the coast shortly after the Smyrna massacre. Permission had been given to get the children out of the country and ship them to a less troubled part of the world, but first they had to be taken over 200 miles of road infested by bandits, part of it leading through the Taurus mountains.
Miss Orvis drove ahead to provide food and shelter for the caravan of children. To her amazement, she found everyone eager to help "the American children" as the little Armenian school girls were called. In one village the Mohammedan priest all but insisted on housing the children in the village mosque, and in another the entire population turned out to police a stretch of bandit-haunted road until the caravan should have passed.

On her return from Turkey, Miss Stella Loughridge went on a pilgrimage to find the Armenian girls from mission schools who had survived the massacres and deportations during the war and who had found refuge in this country. She pictured many of these girls, who had been sold into slavery or left for dead along the Turkish roads, now living useful and happy lives in this country.

Bishop Will Lay School Cornerstone

Cornerstone of the new Brownell Hall dormitory now being erected on the school's Happy Hollow club site, will be laid Sunday afternoon at 3.

The Omaha Bee: Friday, November 2, 1923

Bishop E. V. Shaylor of the Episcopal diocese, chairman of the board of trustees, will officiate.

The vested choir of all Episcopal churches in the city, as well as the clergy of all the churches have been invited. The procession will form in the gymnasium and from there will march outside to the new building.

This cornerstone laying is regarded as the cornerstone of the institution which is to be built on the Happy Hollow club house site, because this building is the first of the group to be erected there.

In the cornerstone there will be a box containing historic facts about the school and about the city.

Woman's Board Elects Officers

All officers were re-elected by the Women's Board of Missions of the Interior delegates yesterday morning at First Central Congregational church. They are: Mrs. George M. Clark, president; Mrs. James H. Moore, first vice president; Mrs. E. A. Osbornson, second vice president; Mrs. Lucius O. Lee, foreign secretary; Miss Mary D. Uline, home secretary; Miss Annie E. Nourse, recording secretary and secretary of literature; Miss Augusta de la Porte, secretary for young people's work; Miss Mary Lumberton, secretary for children's work; Mrs. Lydia Lord Davis, thank offering secretary; Miss Daisy Colman, field worker; Mrs. Lester Curtis, secretary life memberships; Mrs. S. E. Hurlbut, treasurer; Miss Elizabeth Hurlbut, assistant treasurer; Miss Dorothy R. Swift, editorial secretary. Ghandi, Hindu nationalist leader, was praised by Mrs. Florence B. Lindstrom, Bombay, in a talk on "India in the Twilight."

Miss E. Loleta Wood spoke on "India's Great Task." Miss Martha S. Wiley described "Our Bible Women in Poochow."

Moving pictures of Japan and China will be shown this evening by Mrs. E. Franklin Warner.

Would Enjoin Collection.

William H. Smith, state tax commissioner, and the county treasurer of every county in Nebraska through which the tracks of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railroad pass, are made defendants in an equity suit brought in federal court by attorneys for the railroad.

The suit seeks to enjoin the defendants, jointly and severally, from collecting what the railroad considers to be an excessive tax against! The petition, in the form of a 52-page booklet, declares present taxation against the railroad in the state of Nebraska is confiscatory.

ADVERTISMENT ARE WOMEN OVERWORKED

Yes, hundreds of thousands of them are. This applies to the housewife and mother who struggles on a small income to make both ends meet by doing all the washing, ironing, cooking, making and mending for a large family. There are others who not only support themselves working in factories, shops, stores and offices, but often have an invalid father or mother to support, therefore do housework besides. These are the women who break down early and are afflicted with various forms of female weakness. Ninety-eight out of every 100 women who have tried Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound have proved that it is a successful remedy for women's ills. For nearly fifty years it has been restoring women to health, and it will pay every ailing woman to try it.
