Odd Zebu Cattle, With Hump Over Withers, Owned in Cuming County

West Point, Neb., Nov. 9.—Cuming county people are convinced that there is always something new under the sun. The fact is that zebu cattle have just been introduced to the populace. The cattle, one heifer and a bull, are the property of John Elmsinger of West Point.

Zebu cattle (pronounced zee-bo) have their native haunts in the torrid zone. The species originated in Africa and was introduced to other parts of the equatorial zone. The zebu is a domesticated Indian ox, according to some authorities, while others would have it that the zebu is a bovine extensively domesticated in India, Africa, China and the Philippine islands. The animal is characterized by a hump over the withers.

When you gaze upon the animals you are not sure whether you are looking at a cow or only a close imitation of one. The zebu cattle have many redeeming features, however, that may hold wide possibilities for the farmers of this country.

In the first place the cattle are absolutely immune from all diseases. This will doubtless appeal to the farmer who is troubled with sickness in his herd. Furthermore, they have never heard of any disease and have yet to contract one. The old law of the survival of the fittest has here been worked to the highest degree.

One cross between the ordinary cattle of Nebraska and a zebu will render the offspring immune. This is one thing, however, that needs testing before these cattle can be called a success this far north, and that is, can the zebu cattle withstand the rigors of our north temperate climate?

The two zebu at West Point are the furthest north in the world, Oklahoma having heretofore been the furthest north that the cattle have thrived. At the present time the cattle are being kept in a horse barn, being allowed the freedom of the barnyard during the day.

The zebu cow's milk is exactly the same as the milk from a Jersey or Holstein cow. The meat is first class and is reputed to taste like elk. Another peculiarity of these animals is that the male is fully one-third smaller than the female. Their color is a sort of buckskin, with the greyish hue predominating. Later on, attempts will be made to cross the zebu with some Cuming county cattle.

Ogallala Will Have Big Armistice Day Program

Ogallala, Neb., Nov. 9.—Ogallala will observe Armistice day with music and speaking in the morning, a big free "feed" at noon, a pageant parade at 2, football game between Ogallala high school and Chappell high, and a dance in the Legion hall at night. All towns in the county will take part.

Many little folks think that Fairies do not eat foods like other little boys and girls, but, if you could have seen Peter Pan sitting by the fire on a crisp November evening toasting bread for them as they danced merrily around, you would have known that they, too, loved Peter Pan Bread and Peter Pan alone could toast it to delight their little appetites.
