

Damon Runyon's Column

New York, Nov. 16.—Horse racing people are overdoing the match race matter.

Presently the same situation will develop—if it has not already developed—that exists in baseball with reference to the home run.

The cupid of the baseball magnates was aroused by the way customers turned out to see Babe Ruth hit home runs.

There was only one Babe Ruth at the peak of public interest in home running. The magnates thought they could manufacture a Babe Ruth for each city on the circuit. So they lived up to the baseball.

Soon quite ordinary hitters had become home run sluggers. The home run became as common as the two-base hit.

Instead of adding to public interest in home running the magnates found that they had robbed the home run, the big event of a baseball game, of its novelty.

They found that they had given the public too much home running. Now they are trying to devise ways and means of checking the home run epidemic.

The horse racing magnates have heretofore been rather sparing of their match races. One big race of this sort every two or three years was a fair average.

Then August Belmont, a gentleman who seems to have every instinct of good showmanship, conceived the international match race, Papyrus, the English horse, against the best American 3-year-old.

This race aroused great public interest, gave horse racing tremendous publicity. Had it been arranged on lines of strict SPORTSMANSHIP, as originally planned, it would have been an even greater event.

The success of the international match race, like the success of Babe Ruth's hitting, attracted the attention of other horse racing magnates. The match race became common. The Zev-My Own-In Memorial race, which amounted to a match race, though originally a regularly scheduled stake race, was followed by the Happy Thoughts-Saracen race. Now comes the Zev-In Memorial race.

Horse owners are challenging right and left. Racing associations are bidding for different match races. And in the meantime the public that took a deep interest in the international match race is commencing to view the match race with lack-lustre eyes.

The business side of sport makes the mistake of overdoing things more than any other business.

Boxing is feeling the reaction from the overdoing of last summer, when we had a big outdoor championship show nearly every week.

Indoor shows are not drawing as well as last winter. The boxing public, wearied of the one continued round of pugilistic pleasure of the summer months, is now taking a rest, greatly to the distress of pugilistic promoters.

Lincoln High Faces Hard Test
Lincoln, Nov. 16.—Lincoln High school faces its hardest game of the season today in the clash here with Omaha Central high tomorrow. The contest has resolved into a state title meet, as the winner of this game will undoubtedly win recognition as state football champion.

Central had a narrow shave last week when Kearney sprung a surprise and the Omaha squad was a scant and scared winner. Lincoln had a similarly close call against York last week, as the Red and Black line failed to hold.

A crowd of 7,000 persons will witness the game, according to pre-game estimates.

Johnny Kilbane and Dunn Kiss; Old Feud Ends
Lorain, O., Nov. 16.—Johnny Kilbane, former featherweight king, and Jimmy Dunn, his former manager, have kissed and made up, ending one of the bitterest feuds in the sport world. Kilbane's summer camp is located near Lorain.

Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Dunn were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Kilbane last night at the camp, according to Lee Ames, old-time fighter and Kilbane's close friend, who was also a guest at the camp. Johnny and Dunn confirmed the report today.

"Jimmy is not such a bad fellow," said Kilbane. "Yep, life's too short to quarrel and Johnny is a real fellow."

Dunn stated the feud between the two started five years ago over Kilbane's ill-fated political aspirations in Cleveland.

THEY buzz about Pfann of Cornell being the best triple threat student in football. Well, The Glutt of Rufftown had every football player sizzled to a cinder on that threat habit. He was Rufftown's triple threat. He threatened to study. He threatened to stop borrowing. And he threatened to work for a living.

Glink was no fool on the football field. He knew the man with the ball was an active combatant, and subject to the rules of unorganized warfare.

So whenever he got into the game the first thing he did was to spring a limp. He didn't want to be the object of 11 murderous college gangsters.

When Gen. Nelson A. Miles led an attack against the Indians, the old boy hollered: "Let's go. And the first man who is killed I'll make a sergeant."

The Glutt wanted to be captain. But he didn't want to be promoted

Yale-Princeton Game Feature

By Associated Press.
New York, Nov. 16.—The meeting of ancient rivals—Yale and Princeton, Syracuse and Colgate, Pennsylvania and Penn State, Pittsburgh and Washington and Jefferson—feature today's program of eastern college football.

The Yale-Princeton engagement, marking the 50th anniversary of their first gridiron battle, outranks all in general interest and will be witnessed by close to 50,000 in the Yale bowl, most colossal athletic structure in the country. The rival teams have been specially primed for this contest and although Yale's all-conquering record might indicate otherwise, a closely-fought battle, with the winner in doubt until late in the game is the expectation of many close students of football play.

The Yale game concludes Princeton's 1923 season and the Tigers, having suffered defeats from Notre Dame and Harvard and been tied by the Navy, will make a desperate effort to atone, in part at least, for their disastrous campaign. Superiority in kicking is expected to give the Tigers a potent advantage.

Yale, however, is not the only undefeated combination which will be confronted by difficult opposition, for Syracuse in opposing Colgate for the 25th time, will meet a worthy foe.

Newsey Sportlets

The Nebraska and Iowa Schools for the Deaf will meet in their annual football game at Council Bluffs Saturday at 2:30 p. m.

Walter Gilbert and Homer Bird, Western leaguers, have been reinstated and will play with the St. Joseph club next season.

The Princeton Alumni association of Omaha Thursday sent a letter to Coach Dawson of Nebraska, congratulating him on his team's victory over Notre Dame.

The Central high freshmen footballers will play Pacific Junction, Ia., this afternoon. The game will be played at Pacific Junction.

Big Munn, former Y basketball player, will make his ring debut as a heavyweight tonight when he meets Jack Clifford in a bout in Sioux City.

The 15th annual tournament of the Midwest Bowling association opens at St. Louis today.

Members of the Omaha Gun club have been invited to attend a poultry show to be held at Hancock, Ia., November 17.

Glink was no fool on the football field. He knew the man with the ball was an active combatant, and subject to the rules of unorganized warfare.

So whenever he got into the game the first thing he did was to spring a limp. He didn't want to be the object of 11 murderous college gangsters.

When Gen. Nelson A. Miles led an attack against the Indians, the old boy hollered: "Let's go. And the first man who is killed I'll make a sergeant."

The Glutt wanted to be captain. But he didn't want to be promoted that way. So he always held himself aloof on the football field. He was reserving his strength like a string of garlic in the attic.

They finally slipped the ball to The Glutt. The thought: "If I run with this they will break my ankles. If I stand here holding it they will bust my jaw. If I kick it they will kick it back and I will have to run with it."

So he invented the most strategic play in football. The fumble.

The Glutt was the first man to employ the fumble for an anti-toxin against black and blue monacles.

Since then the fumble has been improved by Yale, Cornell and Harvard. But Rufftown university was the first football team to realize its possibilities during office hours.

Therefore we should honor such to football. We should take off our hats to him, just the same as we do to generals, presidents and checkroom boys.

Nickname Contest Closes Soon

Send in as many nicknames for the Creighton athletic teams as you like. The more you send in the better chance you have to win the year's pass that will be awarded to the person or persons sending in the best nickname for the university.

The contest doesn't close until December 12. Clip the coupon printed below and jot down your nickname for the Creighton team. Mail it to the Sports Editor of The Evening Bee. Remember, the contest closes December 12.

Unbeaten Colorado U Eleven Accorded Rousing Sendoff

Boulder, Colo., Nov. 15.—To the deafening cheers of 3,000 students of the University of Colorado and Boulder townspeople, the Silver and Gold football special, composed of eight coaches carrying students and rosters in addition to Coach Myron Witham and 23 members of the University football squad, pulled out of Boulder tonight at 7 o'clock for Salt Lake City, Utah, to play Utah Saturday afternoon for Rocky Mountain conference honors. The train, which will be run as the second section of the Union Pacific Overland Limited, will arrive in Salt Lake City Friday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock.

Colorado has not lost a game this season and hopes are running high that the team will defeat Utah, last year's champions. The eleven will be without the services of Captain Quinlan, dashing quarterback, who suffered a broken hand in last Saturday's game, with the School of Mines. Quinlan accompanied the team and may be sent in if a goal from the field is to be attempted, Coach Witham said.

The Minnesota rosters are bemoaning the loss of Louis Gross, star tackle. He reported to Coach Spaulding yesterday suffering from diphtheria and is now under the doctor's care. Gross may play Saturday, but in the meanwhile Macdonald and Matthews are taking his place.

The Wisconsin team is preparing for Michigan with the greatest secrecy, only the coaches and players being allowed on the field. It is rumored, however, that Holmes and Harris, the halfbacks may be replaced by substitutes in the lineup tomorrow.

Michigan started for Madison last night with a grinning bunch of men. The coaches are still undecided who will start in Uter's place, but Kockwell seems to be the favorite. The remainder of the back field will be the same, with Kipke calling signals.

The Omaha Olympics will present a changed lineup Sunday when they meet Gordon Locke's Manning (Ia.) Independents.

Coyotes Arrive Here for Game

Stub Allison and 26 University of South Dakota footballers arrived in Omaha this morning ready to give battle on Creighton field today to Coach Chet Wynne's Creighton squad.

The Coyotes from the plains of South Dakota are hazy and look like they might claw the Creighton line. Coach Allison had no prediction to make on the outcome of the contest. He said, however, that his proteges have been well drilled and if defeated would have no alibis to offer.

Tickets for the contest have been selling fast and all indications point to a large crowd.

JAYHAWKERS SENT HOME

Lawrence, Kan., Nov. 16.—Chancellor E. H. Lindley tonight announced that men students of the University of Kansas who made confessions of misconduct on the trip to the Nebraska football game four weeks ago will be sent home from the university for one week.

The students who have admitted that they did not conduct themselves properly will be forced to go to their homes on homecoming week, four days before the beginning of the Thanksgiving vacation and tell their parents just what happened.
