

3 Lose Homes in Altercation Over Pet Dog

Tenants Testify Against Landlord Who Hit Postman With Plank; All Must Move.

Walter Hamilton, 624 South Twenty-eighth street, was held to the federal grand jury under $1,000 bond, and three of his tenants are in search of new homes as a result of an altercation that arose Thursday over a small dog.

Buster, the dog, is a pet of Hamilton's. Though small in size, Buster makes up for all shortcomings with his ability to bark and threaten all intruders at the Hamilton home, it was alleged. Thursday C. E. Smith, a mail carrier, was to the Hamilton home to deliver a parcel post package to Mrs. Ethel Brash, a tenant.

Carrier Kicks Dog. Not only did Buster attempt to bar the entrance of Uncle Sam's employe, but he also attempted to bar his exit, Smith said. When the tenants of the dog became too cordial, Smith kicked him. Hamilton saw the act, rushed across the street and struck Smith with a heavy piece of plank, it is alleged.

Hamilton was arrested a short time later by Postoffice Inspector Coble, charged with assaulting a mail carrier. Friday he was given a hearing before Coble and the district investigator.

Four witnesses were called by the prosecution, Mrs. E. S. Woodruff, 710 South Twenty-fourth street; Mrs. Ethel Brash, a tenant of Hamilton's; B. E. Austin, also a tenant at the Hamilton home, and Smith.

Denies Charges. Hamilton denied all charges and pleaded a disability, resulting from a blow on the head that made him irresponsible at times.

As soon as the hearing was over Mrs. Hamilton approached Mrs. Brash and notified her that she and her husband "would have to move, and right away would be none too soon." Austin was next informed of his impending search for a new home. Brash was not at the trial. He still has a home.

Woman Patient Escapes Hospital in Nightgown

Lincoln, Nov. 15.—After a three-hour pursuit, Mrs. Addie Schaeuense, 38, a patient at St. Elizabeth hospital, was found by searching parties and returned to the institution. The first intimation of her escape came when a startled citizen telephoned the police that a woman in a white nightgown was running about the streets.

She made her way unmolested, however, to the Burlington signal tower, about three miles away from the hospital. Attracted by the light, Mrs. Schaeuense mounted the steps of the tower. The frightened signal man took her to an address in the southern part of the city, which she told him was her home. Search parties found her there.

Cabaret Girl Orphan Had No Chance, Claim

Dark-Eyed Maiden Follows Married Drug Clerk Here From Chicago—Refuses to Give Up.

Katherine Weber, 22, dark-eyed, clear of skin and fair to look upon, sat in jail Friday morning and wept because she never had a chance.

From the time her father died, when she was 15, and left her to her resources in Chicago, she longed for friendship, for a home, for a man whose heart she might completely fill, in the place of the smirking creatures who looked at her with calculating glances as she passed them on the street.

After her father's death left her an orphan—her mother died when she was 12—she obtained work in a department store. But she realized that her beauty was her chief asset, the thing upon which she must depend for the fulfillment of her desires. Advancing costs made the struggle for existence harder and harder. Bright entrances of cabarets, warm limousines and fur coats, which seemed to fall to the lot of other girls like manna from heaven exerted an irresistible lure on the girl, who went home to her hall bedroom to try an egg over the gas jet.

Habitue of Cabarets. She quit her job and became an habituue of the cabarets. Men were always ready to buy things for a pretty girl.

Then she met Howard Cook, a stalwart soda jerk in a Chicago loop drug store, and fell in love with him. Cook was married, but he fell in love with her, too, she said.

She left the cabarets and went back to her job in the department store. Howard was like a brother to her, she said. He had ambitions and wanted to rise in the world. He told her that some day maybe he would divorce his wife and marry her.

Came to Omaha.

Then he left Chicago and came to Omaha with his wife. In Omaha his wife left him. Howard telephoned to Katherine, and she came to Omaha to join him. She couldn't find him. She lived in a rooming house until her money was nearly all gone. Then she met him one day by chance on the street. They planned to go to Texas.

Now both are in jail. Cook was arrested yesterday at the Hunter Inn, suspected of being a confidence man, and Katherine, who was with him, was taken along for investigation. Under pressure Cook expressed to Chief of Detectives Van Deusen this morning a desire to return to his wife, whom he described as "a good woman."

Won't Give Up.

"I love him," she sobbed. "I'll go through anything for him. He's the only man I ever met who treated me like a human being, or cared whether I lived or died. He can't leave me. He can't!"

Detectives Thursday suspected that Katherine might be the woman who is said to have been used to lure Omaha gamblers to various apartment houses, where they have been robbed of large sums of money. She was indignant in her denial. She said that Howard never would have asked her to do anything of the sort.

Cook was arrested Thursday with E. H. Larson after Frank Clements of Horizon, Kan., recognized Larson as one of two men who robbed him of $85 near the Union Station. Harry Fielder and R. E. Davis also were arrested at Hunter Inn for investigation in connection with the case. Fielder, in his cell Friday morning, pleaded for "dope."
