

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

By THORNTON W. BURGESS.
Familiar things, 'tis very queer,
Cannot for long inspire fear.
Curious though timid,
For several days that man-bird really Farmer Brown's Boy came with him. They worked on the machine, and of course all the little people who saw them were very curious.

Now when you see a thing long enough you become used to it, and if you have been afraid of it you little by little lose that fear. It was this way with Nanny Meadow Mouse. As she grew less afraid of it she grew more curious about it. Finally she ventured to go over near it in the night with Danny Meadow Mouse. But she wouldn't climb up in it. She even tried to stop Danny from climbing up in it. But Danny had no fear of it, and in spite of all she could do he did climb up in it. When he came down again he brought her some delicious food, and he told her that there was plenty more up there if she would only come and get it. You see that aviator hadn't forgotten his little friend. He felt sure that Danny would return to the airplane, and so he always left food there.

Danny told Nanny all about the inside of that man-bird, and Nanny grew more and more curious. She just asked to go with Danny and see it. But she was too timid. She just couldn't trust herself in that man-bird even though it seemed so harmless. But she couldn't keep away from it. Even in the daytime she would steal over where she could look at the great man-bird and think about all the wonderful things that Danny had told her of his journey in it.

Danny came and went as he pleased. He had no fear at all. He was getting fat with the good living which he didn't have to work for. But do what he would he couldn't get Nanny to come up inside with him. Not even curiosity and the desire for good things to eat could overcome Nanny's timidity. She couldn't forget how Danny had been carried away. Even though he had been brought back, she couldn't bring herself to trust that man-bird.

Now all this time the aviator had been keeping a sharp watch. He knew, of course, that Danny had been making daily visits to that airplane. He knew it because the food kept disappearing. Once or twice he caught a glimpse of Danny scampering along one of his private little paths in the grass. Then one day he spied Nanny peeping out at him from a little clump of grass. He knew it wasn't Danny because Danny had just disappeared in another direction.
That afternoon when he left, the aviator left some food on the ground under the airplane. That night Nanny had a feast. After that she looked for food there every day after the aviator and Farmer Brown's Boy had left, and never was she disappointed. She, too, began to grow fat.

Firm, Plump, Fresh!

MANY are the eyes that are turned to gaze with keen admiration on the well developed, healthy girl no matter where she may be—on the rapidly moving thoroughfare or gliding gracefully over the dance floor.
All eyes turn because we all appreciate the girl with the figure so firm and plump—the girl with radiantly red cheeks, cheeks that carry a touch of roses from nature's own garden—the girl with the sparkling eyes, keen and sharp—the girl with buoyancy and the swing of youth.
Not necessarily an out-of-doors girl. Just a girl with ever increasing blood cells. Just a girl filled with the vim and vigor of youth.
S. S. S. since 1826, has stood for increased blood cells. S. S. S. means restored strength—rekindled vitality—added energy. Take S. S. S. and watch the bloom of youth return to your cheeks. Watch that flabby, ill nourished flesh fade away before flesh that is firm and plump. Red blood cells will do it and S. S. S. will build them. It contains only pure vegetable ingredients. S. S. S. is sold at all good drug stores. The large size bottle is more economical.
