

LARGE CROWD WILL SEE SENEGAL FIGHTER IN HIS FIRST BOUT "OVER HERE"

Scrap Has Great Possibilities for Future Business at Madison Square Garden—Norfolk Tough, Rugged and Hard-Hitting Colored Light-Heavyweight.

By DAVIS J. WALSH

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—A heavily muscled colored man, with a veneer of civilization scarcely skin deep, and the instincts of a child, is to meet an American negro at the modern and intellectual art of fistfights tonight and the customers are so enamored of the prospect that Madison Square Garden is a "sell out." The principals are Battling Siki of Senegal, not over long out of the African jungles, and Kid Norfolk, of Harlem, whose appearance might lead one to suspect that he is capable of swinging by his tail and hurling coconuts. It may be a real fight but it is more likely to be a hippodrome.

The affair has great possibilities for future business except that neither man comes within the letter and spirit of championship ability. Norfolk is and always was a mediocre and if Siki doesn't win, the common impression that he is just a jungle fighter will reach the stage of conviction.

However, you can keep neither a good man nor a customer down. The latter has insisted on saying it with greenbacks at the box office and we don't know that we altogether blame him. Siki as a public character is nothing if not interesting.

He is the same Siki who started the cauliflower industry by knocking out Carpentier, the pale flower of France and becoming the world's light heavyweight champion. He is none other than the same party who socked waiters and gendarmes on the Paris boulevards and the chin, consumed prodigious quantities of absinthe and finally consented to meet Mike McTigue, an Irishman, in Dublin on St. Patrick day. Siki ceased to be champion automatically. That was inevitable.

He has been in this country for about six months and this is to be his first appearance under colors here. It may or may not be his last. To get further action in America, Siki must at least make a respectable showing against Norfolk, and at odds of 7 to 5, the gamblers are saying that he is due to lose.

At that, the Senegalese, if reports can be believed, will enter the ring in better condition than at any time in his career. He is said to have discovered the use of water, while training at Summit, N. J., has been inveigled into taking to the road in the mornings and altogether has lived a simple life.

The rest of it, therefore, lies with Siki himself. Remarkably strong and active, he is said to know little about boxing, his idea of generalship including wild and eccentric leaps from the floor as he delivers a blow. Just what effect these tactics will have upon Norfolk is problematical. If they scare the American, he is in for a busy evening. Norfolk is a very rough citizen when he thinks he can win.

Oklahoma Aggie Lineup Crippled

A. and M. Coach Preparing Second String Men for Creighton.

Stillwater, Okl., Nov. 20.—Oklahoma Aggies have returned to Stillwater with five gridsters severely injured and a half dozen others suffering minor hurts, as the result of their battle Saturday at Dallas with Southern Methodist university.

Crutchfield, mainstay at fullback for three years, probably has played his last game. He is in a local hospital suffering from blood poisoning. Premier, tackle this season, has a broken arch and is on crutches. Conroy, dependable end, is another crutch wearer because of a disabled leg. Crowe, red-headed, scrappy tackle, who has been playing center in the absence of Keen, regular, has a broken nose. Mitchell, alternate end, has a dislocated shoulder.

Of the lesser injured, Bauman, veteran tackle, who has been out of several contests this fall, is probably the worst.

With these crippled regulars out and other cripples of earlier games unable to scrimmage, the A. and M. college varsity faces its hardest at-home game of the season.

Saturday Creighton university will come from Omaha to furnish the opposition before a homecoming crowd. Coach Johnny Maulbetsch began Monday afternoon to prepare his second string players for the Creighton battle. He sent them against the freshmen in spirited scrimmage while the injured huskies stood on the sidelines.

Caddis, halfback, punter and passer, and Esslinger, first choice quarterback, are not expected to be in Saturday's game, having been on the injured list two weeks.

Big Ten Captains Near End Grid Career

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 20.—Harry Kipke and Earl Martineau, captains respectively of the Michigan and Minnesota football teams and halfbacks extraordinary, close their college gridiron careers here Saturday when their teams, both unbeaten, clash at Ferry field.

Martineau has been the star of a losing team. Seven times since he became a player on Gopher eleven he has known defeat. Six times his team has been victorious and twice it has played tie games.

Kipke has been the star since he became a member of the Wolverine squad. He has known defeat. Nine times Michigan teams on which he played have won. One game was a tie.

Sets Tank Record

San Diego, Cal., Nov. 20.—Alice May Howard, 11-year-old swimming marvel of the San Diego Y. W. C. A., Monday established what is believed to be a new national record for the 220-yard breast stroke in a race in the 220-yard breast stroke when she negotiated the distance in 3:35.5.

Official A. A. U. timers clocked the trial. The former record was held by Ruth Thomas of Atlantic City and stood at 3:50.5.

Pat Moran signed a contract to continue as manager of the Cincinnati National baseball team in 1924.

Champion Husker Gives Challenge

Man Near Fremont Offers to Take on All Comers for $5,000 Wager.

Fremont, Neb., Nov. 19.—Alleging to be the champion cornhusker of Illinois, Indiana and Iowa as a result of a match 18 years ago in which he was awarded the trophy for husking 209 bushels of corn in 9 hours and 46 minutes, W. C. Hoover, 40, employed at the Ben Hesper farm, north of Fremont, issues a challenge to the world and especially to those who have been proclaiming their prowess this season in Nebraska's famous fall sport. Hoover says he will lay $5,000 winner take all, for a corn husking match with any and all comers.

Two years ago Hoover claims to have husked 162 bushels of corn on the John Gibson farm at Mead, Saunders county. Last fall he was ill, but this year he is in condition again and willing to match his skill against anyone. He stated that William Willett, of Ames, Ind., and William Fleming, of Boswell, Ind., are willing to put up the $5,000 cash as stakes.

Hoover still has the gold miniature car of corn he won when he established his high record 16 years ago. That same season he defeated George Worley, championship contender of Iowa, and George Rasborn, contender from Illinois.

Taft Denies He's Dead

Washington, D. C., Nov. 20.—A report picked up by radio fans shortly after midnight to the effect that Chief Justice Taft was dead sent reporters scurrying out Wyoming avenue to the Taft residence.

"So far as I know," said the chief justice sleepily from a window, "the report is without foundation."

Attack Made on High Railroad Freight Rates

Kansas Utilities Head Tells I. C. C. Members Tax Valuation Is Excessive—Says Expenses Lower.

Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 19.—Western shippers pay freight rates on excess railroad valuation of approximately $1,250,000,000, Clyde M. Reed, chairman of the Kansas public utilities commission and leader in the fight for lower grain rates in behalf of eight states, asserted today in testifying here today before John J. Esch and Johnson B. Campbell, interstate commerce commissioners.

"I believe that the commission would find that the value of railroads for rate making purposes in the western district is very much too high," Chairman Reed declared. "It would be too bad to have the farmer and shipper carry this burden for 10 years or until the commission finally completed the tentative valuation of all railroads."

Mr. Reed based his attack against the existing rates on a comparison of valuations as claimed by the railroads compared with those fixed by the interstate commerce commission. Figuring the ratio of shrinkage, Mr. Reed asserted, the railroads had an aggregate excess valuation of $1,204,850,136.

Boy Dies From Bonfire Burns

Victim Said to Have Been Pushed by Playmates.

"Buddy" Keller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Keller of Lake Manawa, died last night at his home as the result of burns received Saturday when a group of playmates are said to have pushed him into a bonfire.

Complications are believed to have hastened his death. He is survived by his parents and four brothers and sisters.

Begging on Tram Cars Forbidden

Conductors Given Special Instructions to Protect Passengers.

Passengers on Omaha street cars must not be worried by beggars, solicitors or persons trying to sell things.

Street car conductors were Tuesday being instructed to enforce this general order vigilantly, following reports that many beggars were soliciting money from passengers.

"There is a general order prohibiting this sort of thing, but I suppose conductors did not notice it," said Assistant General Manager F. S. Welby of the street railway company.

"The conductor has no reason to suspect anyone as long as he pays his fare. But we are calling special attention today to the need of stopping this solicitation."

Two instances of begging on the cars were reported last week. One man passed through the car, handing out envelopes, which informed the passengers he was subject to epileptic spells and asking for aid. Later he went through the car again and collected the envelopes, some of which contained money.

In the other instance the collection was made for a religious sect.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. MINTYRE.

New York, Nov. 20.—There are many mistaken impressions about people in the public eye—especially show folk. Some of the impressions are the handiwork of ambitious press agents and others are merely offshoots of gossip.

Harry Lauder, the Scotch comedian, is assumed to be one of the thriftiest of souls. Early in his American career his press agent found that stories of thrift pinned to Lauder got a ready reception in the newspaper shops.

The truth is Lauder is far from being thrifty. He occupies the most expensive suites in New York hotels, travels in private cars, entertains handsomely and few ever go to him with a hard luck story unwarded for their trouble. He gives large sums to charity.

Raymond Hitchcock, the actor, has always eschewed alcoholic liquor on the stage. This coupled with the fact that there is a whisky huskiness to his voice gives the impression that Hitchcock has for years gone the Broadway pace, burning the candle at both ends. Nothing is farther from the truth. Hitchcock has never had a drink of intoxicating liquor in his life. Nor has he ever smoked tobacco. In the old days of banquets where he was invited to speak he would simulate intoxication to avoid drinks pressed upon him.

One of the best delineators of the Hebrew characters is an actor who is believed to be of that faith. He is an Irishman who was born in Dublin. When he came to New York his parents died and he was adopted by a Hebrew family and took their name.

Similarly George M. Cohan was for many years believed to be of the Jewish faith. He is Irish and as he expressed it "only speaks enough Yiddish to get around New York." These are only a few high spots in hundreds of misconceptions of players.

A fur salesman goes on the theory that one is born every minute. And New York is the most prolific field of endeavor. He had visited Detroit, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, St. Louis, Denver and Washington, but his sales were very small in those cities.

Quick lunch places keep their clocks from five to seven minutes fast during lunch hours. It has the effect of preventing customers from lingering over their food. As they can only serve so many patrons, the faster they eat the bigger the receipts. One proprietor found his receipts increased 20 per cent by turning the clock ahead.

I talked the other day with one of those fur salesmen who dresses as a trickman and stands in doorways at dusk with $3 furs, giving the implication they are stolen. He sells them for four or five times their worth. He was graduated from a New York college and began as a clerk in a brokerage office for $18 a week. He was arrested one evening for speeding in his father's automobile and in the waiting room of a city prison made the acquaintance of a "fur salesman."
