Norris, Brookhart, Borah and Three Others Stay Out of Republican Senatorial Caucus.

Opposed to Cummins

By P. C. POWELL, agton Correspondent The Omaha Bee

Dec. 1.—Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska, with Senators La Follette, Ladd, Brookhart, and Borah, failed to attend the republican senatorial caucus to day. The caucus elected Senator Lodge chairman, and Senator Curtis vice chairman, and authorized Lodge to appoint a committee of committees. There was no agreement made between any of us to stay away from the caucus," Senator Curtis said. Evidently every one did as he

From apparently authentic informa tion the fact was gleaned today that the group represented by Norris doesn't intend to wage any fight over the election of Senator Cummins of Iowa as president pro tempore of the senate, but under present plans, if an attempt is made to keep Cummins also as chairman of the in terstate commerce committee, this group will do all in its power to force Cummins from the chairmanship and lette under the seniority rule a republican and was invited, and, second, I am new here and am attending as many functions where I am invited as possible in a search for information and knowledge of affairs in Washington.'

Question of Patronage.

went immediately to the office of Senator Norris, where he attended a conference of the Nebraska republican delegation called by Senator Norris for the purpose of deciding upon a manner of handling patronage that comes from Nebraska. At the las ession it was customary for the Nebraska delegation to meet whenever there was any patronage to dispose of and each member vote, the major ity deciding. This had to do with senatorial patronage, only, the congressmen attending individually to their own exclusive patronage. The same plan was proposed at today's meeting. Senator Howell stated that as there was no immediate patronage on the slate at this time, he preferred to wait for a time before entering into any agreement. The conference broke up without any definite agreement on how to handle senatorial patronage which last session was as much in the hands of Nebraska congressmen as in that of
