

THE STONE MOUNTAIN MEMORIAL, near Atlanta, Ga., as a section of it will appear when completed by Gutzon Borglum, well known New York sculptor, shown in the foreground studying the mountain through field glasses. The outline of the figures (the central one is General Robert E. Lee) was projected by powerful searchlights and traced onto the rock surface. Power drills are being used by the sculptor and his assistants in the actual cutting of this massive work.
Publishers Photo Service.

BASEBALL'S GREATEST PLAYER. Tyrus Raymond Cobb pictured recently in Atlanta en route to Augusta. The Georgia Peach states he will manage the Detroit for one more season, playing in the outfield as usual, and make a final supreme effort to win the pennant for the Tigers. He has played major league ball for nineteen years, in which time he has averaged .370 in his batting—a record that probably will never be equaled.
Wide World.

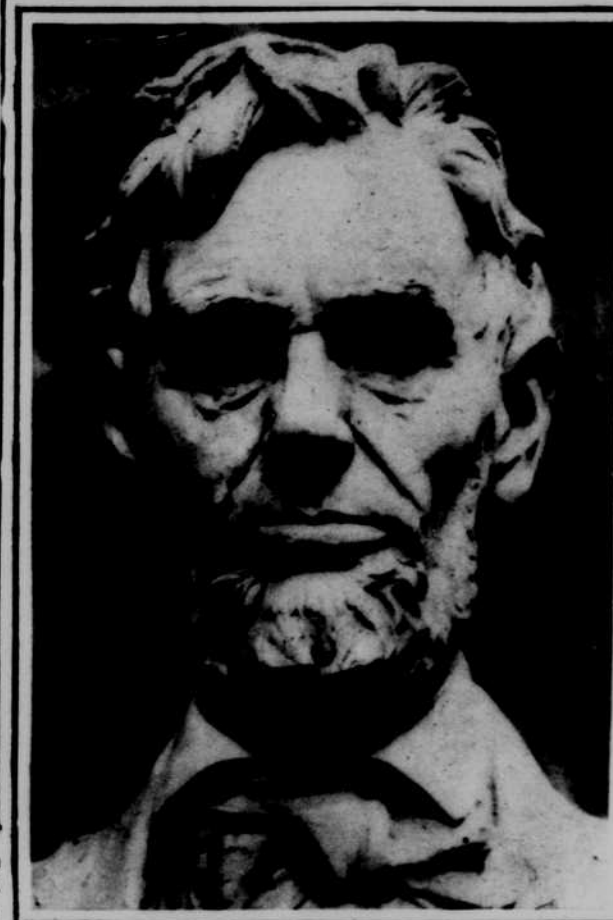

THE GEORGE WASHINGTON MEMORIAL, as viewed from the air during the recent cornerstone laying ceremonies attended by President Coolidge and thousands of Masons from all over the United States. The memorial, to cost about $4,000,000, is being erected on Shooter's Hill, near Alexandria, Va.
Underwood.

Right — 672 TIMES WITHOUT A MISS is the bag-punching record of Miss Sophia Landau, one of Brooklyn's maids with a punch, pictured here practicing her specialty in her outdoor Bushwick gymnasium. Miss Landau's record of punching the bag 672 times without missing should stand for many a day in the feminine hall of athletic fame.
Gilliam.

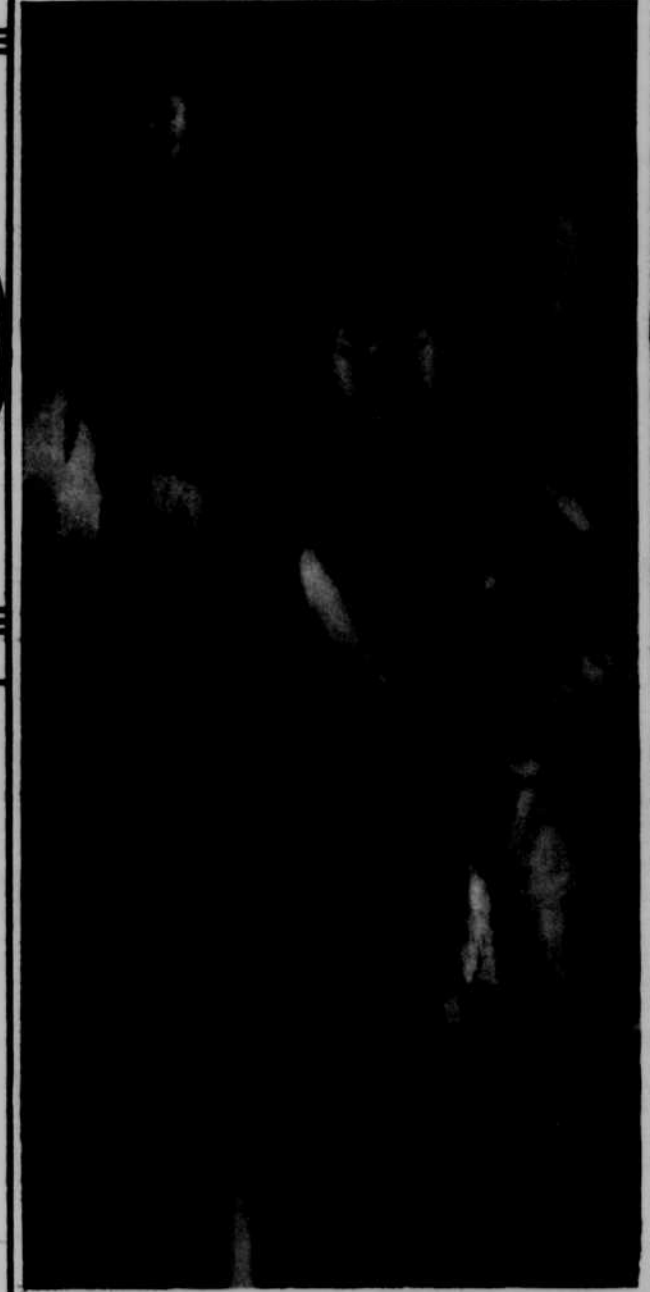

HE SPEAKS THEIR LANGUAGE. Gilbert Girard, the well known animal mimic, visits the Central Park Zoo N. Y. is snapped discussing the prohibition question with a noted "dry." Girard, who can twist his face so that he almost looks like the animal he is interviewing, claims he can converse with and understand the language of every animal and bird in captivity.
Victorial Press.

A NEW BUST OF ABRAHAM LINCOLN. This striking likeness of "Honest Abe" was unveiled by Lord Curzon at a recent dinner held in the Savoy Hotel, London, in celebration of T. P. O'Connor's seventy-fifth birthday anniversary.
Tribune Photo.

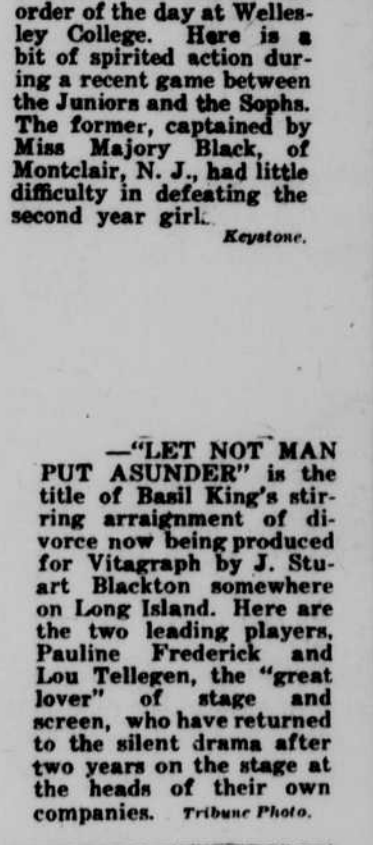

FIELD HOCKEY the order of the day at Wellesley College. Here is a bit of spirited action during a recent game between the Juniors and the Sophs. The former, captained by Miss Majory Black, of Montclair, N. J., had little difficulty in defeating the second year girl.
Keystone.

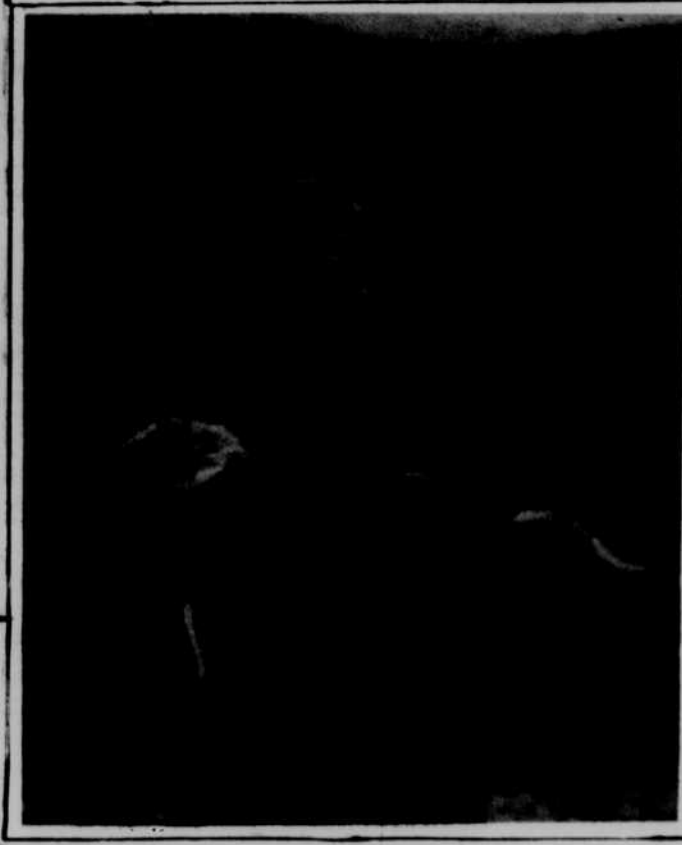

ITALY'S FACIST PREMIER. Benito Mussolini, wears the uniform of a "Corporal of Honor," the highest honorary rank in the National Fascisti Militia—from a picture taken recently at the first anniversary of the Fascisti's accession to power. He stands beside Due Aquile (the Eagle), the Black Shirts' familiar insignia.
Wide World.

REMOVABLE SLEEVES for motoring, one of the latest fashion novelties out Hollywood way. Here is Olive Boden demonstrating how she adapts her garb to the weather. When driving her closed car she detaches the sleeve on the arm toward the sleeve on the arm she uses to make her traffic signals.
P. & A.

—"LET NOT MAN PUT ASUNDER" is the title of Basil King's stirring arraignment of divorce now being produced for Vitagraph by J. Stuart Blackton somewhere on Long Island. Here are the two leading players, Pauline Frederick and Lou Tellegen, the "great lover" of stage and screen, who have returned to the silent drama after two years on the stage at the heads of their own companies.
Tribune Photo.

BROTHERLY LOVE, as demonstrated by Fred Bartell, of Great Neck, L. I. Fred's sister wanted a fur coat, the real thing, but not at prevailing prices, so obliging brother betakes himself to the Catskills, and, in the vicinity of Big Indian, does some gunning for gray squirrels. Here is the Long Island Nimrod with his first day's bag—three beauties, the one on the left weighing two pounds.
Tribune Photo.