

Soldier Bonus Assured, Say Legion Heads

Declare Passage in House Certain and Enough Votes to Override Veto Pledged in Senate.

By International News Service. Washington, Dec. 8.—Battle lines were being drawn in congress today for what promises to be the most spectacular legislative clash of the session—the fight to enact a soldiers' bonus bill over the veto of President Coolidge.

The president's unequivocal opposition to the bonus has thrown Capitol Hill into a veritable turmoil. Everywhere the bonus question has eclipsed all other topics.

Mr. Coolidge's stand did not come wholly as a surprise but the bluntness of the president's dismissal of the bonus has left administration leaders in congress in a quandary.

That congress will pass a bonus, patterned substantially after the measure vetoed by the late President Harding, is conceded even by the bitterest opponents of the bill. The house is expected to send it over to the senate with a substantial majority soon.

Sufficient votes have been pledged in the senate to pass the bonus. When it goes to the White House, President Coolidge will send it back to the congress, marked "rejected."

Unless all present lineups are knocked galley-west, the house will override the veto.

This series of events places squarely upon the senate the question of repudiating or approving one of Mr. Coolidge's most important stands in national legislation.

Legion Men Busy. Ever since the first private information came from the White House that President Coolidge would oppose a bonus, American Legion officials have been busier than bees in the senate.

Today these officers claimed that at least seven votes more than the required two-thirds to override the veto have been definitely pledged.

The heaviest strength is claimed among democrats, of whom 40 are said to be ready to go against the president.

If legion spokesmen are correct, only 27 votes are needed from the republican side to effect rejection of the veto.

School Boys Are Ordered to Walk

Juvenile Judge Takes Autos Away From Them for Week.

"If I find any more juvenile speeders in court, I'll stage a real parade from the courthouse to Riverview detention home," said Judge Day in juvenile court Saturday morning.

"I have from seven to ten speeders before me every Saturday morning."

Two boys, William Dozier, 15, 510 North Forty-first street, and Vernon Carson, 17, 4824 Davenport street, who appeared in court on charges of speeding were sentenced to walk for a week by the juvenile judge.

Dozier, a student at Creighton Junior High school, was also given a week in which to walk, and to report back to the judge.

Fred Dorman, 17, 2562 Valley street, who was arrested for speeding when driving a grocery truck, was paroled.

"Need No Charity."

Washington, Dec. 8.—Germany is not in need of charity, according to information reaching President Coolidge through official channels and he feels that any aid given that nation up to the United States should be arranged on a business basis.

Appropriation of funds for relief in Germany, as proposed in a bill introduced by Senator Leonard, Republican Wisconsin, it is indicated, will not be favored by the president.

Proposals that the reparations commission authorize the floating of a loan by Germany to finance the purchase of foodstuffs, however, will receive the moral support of the American government. It was said at the White House after a conference between Mr. Coolidge and Ambassador Wiedefeld.

Shoji Osato and Teru in Omaha; Family United in Chicago

Shoji Osato and Teru, 3.

Shoji Osato, former Omaha photographer, stopped here for 15 minutes last night, waiting for his train to Chicago, where he will meet Mrs. Osato, from whom he was separated during the Japanese disaster on September 1. He was accompanied by his daughter, Teru, 3.

For two months Osato believed his artist wife dead and it was only when he applied at the American embassy in Yokohama for information of her whereabouts that he discovered that she had left Japan immediately after the disaster and was safe in the United States.

The trials and suffering of his people in the weeks that followed the fire, flood and earthquake that swept Yokohama to a mass of ruins were graphically told by the little photographer.

He smiled a little as he told of the trouble he had in acting as both mother and father to his little daughter, Teru. The child had not worried about his mother, he said, until after he had discovered that Mrs. Osato was safe. Then Teru wanted her

"mama" at once and it was only an assurance that mother was in America and they would see her soon that kept her contented.

When he emerged from the chaos that followed the days and nights of terror, Osato had nothing left, not even a suit of clothes. Friends aided him and clad him in riding breeches and a corduroy sports coat. Golf stockings and shoes completed his costume—the costume that he had worn from Japan.

"I was in the studio of a friend in Tokio when the quake came, Teru was with friends, Mrs. Osato and Sono were in Yokohama," he said.

"The studio collapsed and my friend and I were buried in the debris. It was some time before I was liberated and then some injuries forced me to go to a hospital. It was some weeks before I could even investigate what had happened to my wife."

"Teru was not afraid at any time I am told. When the whole world seemed to go crazy and started to roll around she thought everyone was doing some new dance and laughed and clapped her hands. No one could take time to correct her and it may have been better so."

In October I went to Yokohama to see if I could find any trace of Mrs. Osato. I was afraid she had been killed. Everyone whom I met either had not seen her or had seen someone who had been with her and had been killed later.

"As a last resort, I went to the American embassy. They told me the best thing to do would be to place an advertisement in the papers."

"One of the clerks saw the advertisement and told me my wife sailed for America. I immediately cabled to her and learned that she was safe in Chicago and had Sono with her."

Osato expressed an intention of returning to Omaha to make his home. He said that at present his plans were to stay in Chicago over Christmas and then return to Omaha about January 1. Several friends of the Osatos, were waiting at the depot for the train.

Britain Faces Government by Laborites

Premier Baldwin to Tender Resignation in Favor of MacDonald Monday, Says London Paper.

By Associated Press. London, Dec. 8.—The Evening Standard today says Premier Baldwin will resign on Monday and that he is likely to recommend as his successor, J. Ramsay MacDonald, who as head of the parliamentary labor party is leader of his majesty's opposition in the house of commons. There is no indication, however, of any authority for the newspaper's statement.

By Associated Press. London, Dec. 8.—Egerton Wake, chief agent of the labor party, officially announced today that there would be no liberal-labor coalition.

By International News Service. London, Dec. 8.—The possibility of a labor government faced Great Britain today for the first time in its history, as a result of the outcome of the general election. The tory majority has been turned to a minority in the house of commons, while the labor party has the second strongest.

Tory headquarters announced today that the tory cabinet would attempt to remain in power and meet the new parliament when it convenes next month. Premier Baldwin's resignation may be handed to King George later on.

Tory headquarters announced that the meeting of the new parliament, scheduled for January 8, may be postponed and that there is positive possibility of a tory-liberal coalition government. It was pointed out that, if the tories are unable to carry on the government, it is logical to expect King George will summon Ramsay MacDonald, head of the labor party, to form a new government.

The deadlock has been accentuated by announcement from labor headquarters that a coalition of liberals and laborites is impossible.

Leaders of all parties were in London today conferring. Some constituents were still unheard from today, but it was estimated that the conservatives would hold about 260 seats in commons, while the laborites will have about 180 and the liberals 150. There will be about 10 independents.

The new house will have eight women members, the largest number in its history.

Premier Baldwin departed for his country estate at Chequers Court this afternoon without seeing the king.

Lord Younger, one of the most powerful leaders of the tory party, told International News Service that the tories' future plans have not yet been decided.

"The king's government must be carried on and it will be carried on by the tories for the present," said Lord Younger. "The question of Premier Baldwin's future probably will be decided at a cabinet meeting next Tuesday."

By Associated Press. London, Dec. 8.—The moral of the general elections which have resulted so disastrously for the government of Premier Baldwin is that the British people still are, as they were in 1905, convinced supporters of free trade.

Troops March on Mexican Rebels

General Calles Renounces His Candidacy for President, Joins Fight Against Revolt.

By Associated Press. Vera Cruz, Dec. 8.—General Plutarco Calles' renunciation of his presidential candidacy will not halt the rebellion against the Oregon government, it was stated at the headquarters of the rebels, who are headed by Gen. Guadalupe Sanchez and Adolfo de la Huerta. The news, however, caused much rejoicing. Chimes were played on the church bells and the battleships blew their whistles.

New York, Dec. 8.—The Mexican government has stopped all code telegraphic messages to and from Mexico via Galveston and has imposed a strict censorship on all plain language messages because of revolutionary troubles. The Western Union Telegraph company and the All-American cables announced today.

By Associated Press. Mexico City, Dec. 8.—Plutarco Calles has resumed his candidacy for the presidency and has offered his services to President Obregon against the insurgent forces in Vera Cruz and Jalisco.

The president has accepted the offer and has named General Calles as head of the federal opposition to the De La Huerta-Sanchez rebels.

Twenty-eight thousand federal troops, it is said, are converging upon the Vera Cruz revolutionary zone. They are under command of Gen. Joaquin Amaro, Juan Andrew Alamazan and Fuesato Topete.

President Obregon has issued a manifesto to the people, calling on them to support him against the military coup, branding it as a conspiracy against the common people on the part of reactionary conservatives.

Harmonica Player After Title

Meet Mary Krigler, who plays a mean harmonica.

The lady is by way of being a virtuoso of the instrument. She admits it. She is claiming the Maryland harmonica championship, and is entered in the state championship match, now in progress.

She lives in Baltimore, and received all her training in America.

Miss Krigler is firm in her endorsement of the stand taken by other American artists that the time has arrived when no ambitious musician need spend a period of years in European studios to attain the highest artistic achievements.

"And playing the harmonica is really an art," she added, "just as much as playing a violin or piano."

"People for the most part have no conception of the possibilities of the instrument, or difficulty of its proper technique."

"The pipe organ is generally recognized as the nearest approach to symphonic performance possible to a single person; and the mouth organ is really only a miniature edition of the pipe organ."

Miss Krigler believes some benevolent person should endow a chair for the harmonica in one of America's leading conservatories, and employ a capable artist, who might devote his life to advancing the technique of the instrument.

If she wins the championship, she may be open to such an offer herself, she intimates.

Motorist Given 30 Days in Jail

Fred Signall, 2022 Howard street, South Omaha commission man, was sentenced to 30 days in jail in municipal court Saturday morning on a charge of reckless driving.

He was alleged to have struck Mrs. Mamie Pierce, 3020 Valley street, October 30, at Thirtieth street and Deer Park boulevard.

Mrs. Pierce alleged that he did not stop after the accident. He was arrested after Joe Mulvihill, who witnessed the accident, gave the car number to police.

Signall declared that he could not be legally presented criminally for the reason that Mrs. Pierce already has filed a civil suit asking $25,000 damages. He appealed his sentence.

Kavan Calls Off Schlaifer Fight

William Kavan, boxing commissioner, Saturday refused a permit for the fight scheduled to be held at the Auditorium December 17, between Morris Schlaifer and Sailor Freedman.

Didn't Wait for Hearse. San Francisco, Dec. 8.—Dr. James Clement Reed, pastor of the Howard Presbyterian church in urging a greater church attendance, posted the following notice on his bulletin board:

Safety of Investments It Means Success in Life

Service is the noblest purpose. Care for the family stands first; then your relation to the community in which you live. The very foundation of this American Government rests upon its homes; hence it is highly important that every family should own its own home and care for it. The whole family should have a pride in making a home for contentment. Constant industry and systematic saving properly applied will give a person all of this. The laying aside of money in building and loan accounts are the principal methods of saving money in Nebraska.

For thirty-five years the Occidental Building and Loan Association, located at the corner of Eighteenth and Harney streets, has been taking care of the savings of Omaha people. With its long and excellent record, this association is in the best position to tell how to establish a home fund or make a success in life. It will receive your deposits and pay you 6% payable quarterly, and hand you your money after giving thirty days' notice.

The Association has now over twelve million assets and has built up nearly half a million reserve to insure absolute protection to its members. Act while the consideration of this is in your mind. There is nothing more important than to start a savings account.
