

Souder to Drop Fight for Liberty

Convicted Lincoln County Official Believes Further Effort Would Be Fruitless.

To Be Sentenced Jan. 7

By Associated Press.
North Platte, Neb., Dec. 23.—Declaring he had "made his fight" and that he did not see how he could go any further, Samuel M. Souder, former Lincoln county treasurer, convicted last night of arson in connection with the burning last April of the old county courthouse, indicated today his fight for freedom was over.

Souder, tired from more than two weeks of listening to the testimony, was lying on his bunk at the Lincoln county jail when the correspondent called at 11 this morning. At 11:20 he had heard a jury pronounce its verdict, but he had no adverse criticism to offer. Neither did he comment on the statement of the trial judge, J. L. Tewell of Sidney, that the "evidence amply justifies the verdict." Judge Tewell had been fair, he thought, and it was up to him to be a good sport.

Although still insisting he did not burn the courthouse, and "never beat anyone out of a dime," Souder expressed belief it would be useless to carry on his fight. Before the jury reported, he had said he would appeal the case to state supreme court, but apparently he had given the matter reconsideration. He asserted his funds had been exhausted and did not believe he would care to accept any assistance from his aged father.

Health Begins to Break.

The prisoner, who pointed out his health had begun to break, saw no ultimate results in a continuation of his court for acquittal. He said he had been because he was too much of a good fellow while he held public office, adding some of the folks he assisted were among those who had turned on him when public sentiment began to go against him. He recalled at one time he had $1,700 in office checks, received at his office, whom he had made good himself without turning them over to the sheriff.

Souder was not surprised at the verdict. He had expected it right along and recalled he had told someone a week ago he anticipated a verdict of guilty. His wife, however, was not with the greatest concern, having been positive in her belief that Souder today would stand before the electors of Lincoln county who thrice had elected him treasurer, a free man. Coming as it did, just before Christmas, the verdict was not a very agreeable present he said.

Although still insisting he did not burn the courthouse, and "never beat anyone out of a dime," Souder expressed belief it would be useless to carry on his fight. Before the jury reported, he had said he would appeal the case to state supreme court, but apparently he had given the matter reconsideration. He asserted his funds had been exhausted and did not believe he would care to accept any assistance from his aged father.

Health Begins to Break.
The prisoner, who pointed out his health had begun to break, saw no ultimate results in a continuation of his court for acquittal. He said he had been because he was too much of a good fellow while he held public office, adding some of the folks he assisted were among those who had turned on him when public sentiment began to go against him. He recalled at one time he had $1,700 in office checks, received at his office, whom he had made good himself without turning them over to the sheriff.

Souder was not surprised at the verdict. He had expected it right along and recalled he had told someone a week ago he anticipated a verdict of guilty. His wife, however, was not with the greatest concern, having been positive in her belief that Souder today would stand before the electors of Lincoln county who thrice had elected him treasurer, a free man. Coming as it did, just before Christmas, the verdict was not a very agreeable present he said.

Although still insisting he did not burn the courthouse, and "never beat anyone out of a dime," Souder expressed belief it would be useless to carry on his fight. Before the jury reported, he had said he would appeal the case to state supreme court, but apparently he had given the matter reconsideration. He asserted his funds had been exhausted and did not believe he would care to accept any assistance from his aged father.

Health Begins to Break.
The prisoner, who pointed out his health had begun to break, saw no ultimate results in a continuation of his court for acquittal. He said he had been because he was too much of a good fellow while he held public office, adding some of the folks he assisted were among those who had turned on him when public sentiment began to go against him. He recalled at one time he had $1,700 in office checks, received at his office, whom he had made good himself without turning them over to the sheriff.

Souder was not surprised at the verdict. He had expected it right along and recalled he had told someone a week ago he anticipated a verdict of guilty. His wife, however, was not with the greatest concern, having been positive in her belief that Souder today would stand before the electors of Lincoln county who thrice had elected him treasurer, a free man. Coming as it did, just before Christmas, the verdict was not a very agreeable present he said.

Although still insisting he did not burn the courthouse, and "never beat anyone out of a dime," Souder expressed belief it would be useless to carry on his fight. Before the jury reported, he had said he would appeal the case to state supreme court, but apparently he had given the matter reconsideration. He asserted his funds had been exhausted and did not believe he would care to accept any assistance from his aged father.

Health Begins to Break.
The prisoner, who pointed out his health had begun to break, saw no ultimate results in a continuation of his court for acquittal. He said he had been because he was too much of a good fellow while he held public office, adding some of the folks he assisted were among those who had turned on him when public sentiment began to go against him. He recalled at one time he had $1,700 in office checks, received at his office, whom he had made good himself without turning them over to the sheriff.

Christmas Human Being Inspiration to Others, Says Rev. R. E. Bailey

"If Jesus was miraculous, then He is no inspiration to the mankind of the world," said Rev. Ralph E. Bailey Sunday in his sermon at the First Unitarian church.

"It must be true that our mortal equipment is essentially the same as His, if we are to find any challenging, comforting significance in the true and shining good ways in which He lives. Jesus was the first great teacher to group clearly and to emphasize consistently the sublime two truths of religion: that God is a father, and what He expects from His children is purity of heart. These two teachings are the hope of the world. We do well to rejoice in the commemoration of the birthday of Him who brought these truths into the light and nobly lived them. Make gods of those whose precarious fame needs the fictitious exaltation. Jesus does not need it. His monuments, institutions of mercy, all all the countries, and continue increasingly in this day. Jesus is sufficient cause for our deep and glad Christmas rejoicing."

Curran Named Head of West Side Club

The West Side Boosters held their regular meeting Thursday evening at Morton park pavilion. It was decided to limit the activities of the club to the promotion of improvements and making the playground project in that district. The following officers for the coming year elected are as follows: President, W. F. Curran; vice president, W. B. Fitzgerald; treasurer, Emil Buscher; secretary, William O'Connell; chairman house committee, E. H. Trapp; chairman legislative committee, John Blankenship; chairman publicity committee, Thomas Smith.

France Blocks Move to Limit Aircraft

Washington, Dec. 23.—An international conference looking to the reduction of aerial armaments would be fruitless at the present time because of the unwillingness of France to confer, it was decided at a White House conference between President Coolidge and the British secretary of state, Lord Curzon, today.

Premier Poincare Is Upheld by Parliament

Paris, Dec. 23.—The chamber of deputies gave a vote of confidence to M. Poincare early this morning. The vote was 326 to 192.

SUNNY SIDE UP

"A. D. F." Glenwood, Ia.: Thanks for the suggestion. Had forgotten "The End of the World," by Eggleston. Am now assured of a holiday week of good reading.

In the old days nothing could have been drearier than a hotel at Christmas time. Then about the only thing that distinguished Christmas from any other day was a little dab of cranberry sauce in a side dish at the dinner table. But now—O boy! A huge Christmas tree adorns the lobby of the hotel which is rapidly becoming home to me, and all the guests here are having a lot of fun helping to decorate it. This Christmas eve and Christmas day will be a lot brighter to those who endure hotel life because of that tree. While you are reading this I am speeding westward to help decorate a much smaller tree, but it will be in my own home. It is going to be the finest Christmas tree in all the world.

"J. W. W." Omaha: A new brand to me, but very satisfactory, just the same. A few more such contributions and I may yet be rid of the cigaret habit.

Because of the medium whereby I am permitted to get this suggestion to my democratic friends, nobody can charge either medium or writer with ulterior motives, but why don't Nebraska democrats land the democratic national convention for Omaha? The municipal auditorium is large enough for any national convention, and Omaha has unexcelled hotel facilities. With one exception no man elected to the presidency has ever been nominated in a convention held west of the Mississippi river.

Speaking of names that fit, here's another to add to the list now being compiled: Fox & Pyo Pastry Co.

The Community Chest was filled, and surely J. E. Davidson and the splendid men and women who assisted him will enjoy a Christmas made all

Lost Doctor Murdered, Is Theory

Belief Also Expressed Missing Geddes (S. D.) Man Had Lapse of Memory After Collapse.

Lodges Join in Search

Geddes, S. D., Dec. 23.—Dr. Fred E. Fyle, prominent physician and surgeon, owner of a large three-story hospital and much farm and city property here, disappeared after leaving Sioux City, December 11, in a motor car.

Dr. Fyle is unmarried, 52 years old, six feet two inches tall, weighs about 220 pounds, is gray haired, smooth faced and has blue eyes. Nothing has been heard from him since he left the garage at Sioux City, when he said he was going to Geddes.

Deaths From Poison to Result in Suit

Columbus, O., Dec. 23.—Suit for damages against a manufacturing drug company, charging mislabeling of poison, which, administered by two Columbus physicians for another non-poisonous drug, caused the death of two women and serious illness to a physician, was reported to be contemplated by the husband of one of the victims.

Attorney General Rules Slayers May Be Hanged

Lincoln, Dec. 23.—Attorney General Spillman filed a brief in supreme court in which he reviews the testimony in the case of Sol Wesley and Leroy Mauldon, two Omaha men in the state penitentiary under death sentence for the killing of W. M. Deerson. An appeal for a commutation of sentence to life imprisonment acted as a stay in their execution.

Mild Weather Prevents Shelling of Corn

Norfolk, Neb., Dec. 23.—Corn receipts at elevators have fallen off considerably as a result of the corn being too damp for shelling. The weather for the last week in north Nebraska has been like springtime.

Former Omaha Boy, 10, Is Killed Under Truck

Shenandoah, Ia., Dec. 23.—Donald Tinker was instantly killed near Watson, Mo., when he fell beneath a moving truck driven by his father, Clyde Tinker. The boy was rushed to Watson but died on the way. Besides his parents, the boy is survived by a brother, 11, and a sister, 8, who live in the vicinity from Omaha. The burial of the 10-year-old boy was at Shenandoah.

Norfolk Kiwanians Elect.

Norfolk, Neb., Dec. 23.—P. L. Burke was elected president of the Kiwanis club of Norfolk, succeeding C. J. Fleming, first president of the club. Other officers elected for the ensuing year are L. B. Nicola, vice president; P. J. Fuesler, treasurer; C. A. Lederer, district trustee; C. J. Fleming, J. A. Brown, J. C. Stitt, C. E. Durham, J. S. Gibson, Dr. Grover, L. Diehl, Dr. S. E. Taylor and Charles Schram are new directors.

Bakst to Visit U. S.

Paris, Dec. 23.—Leon Bakst, decorator and scenic artist, is sailing on the Majestic January 1, to lecture in English throughout the United States on the subject of form and new color in painting.

Earthquake Prophecy Declares Mexico City Will Be Obliterated

By Universal Service.
Mexico City, Dec. 23.—Dr. Nobles, the "earthquake prophet of Philadelphia," is the author of a new prophecy which has increased the "mental and spiritual apprehension" among the Mexican masses, declaring that "Mexico City is to be obliterated."

Dr. Nobles' prediction has been widely circulated by word of mouth, and coupled with the declaration that he "successfully prognosticated the Japanese disaster," the hopelessness of the city between the revolution and the prospects of the earthquake has already caused the suicide of at least one citizen.

Reports from Indian communities tell of prayers and secret offerings to offset the earthquake.

New York persons have taken the reports so seriously that they have left the doomed city.

Professor Villero, head of the National Geological Institute, declared that there are no scientific manifestations to uphold the earthquake prediction. However, the recent earthquake in Sonora has augmented the fear of the populace.

Lower Taxes Aim of Adam McMullen in Filing for Republican Nomination for Governor, Beatrice Man Announces Position.

Lincoln, Dec. 23.—In a statement accompanying his filing for governor, Adam McMullen declares that he understands, in a large measure, the needs of the farmer, "whose problems are my problems and whose hopes and endeavors and economic requirements are intimately and actively my own."

The favorable reception given his candidacy for the republican nomination for governor at the last primary, and a consciousness of the expressions of good-will reaching me from all parts of the state, impels the belief that I am, in a sense, obligated to become a candidate at this time.

"Having lived in Nebraska, since childhood and having enjoyed the educational advantages of our public schools and university, and having experienced a fair share of our business and agricultural opportunities, I stand ready, in return, to render back to the state any public service which I may be able to perform that might add to its advancement and material well-being."

"In years past I have served my home community in executive and administrative capacities and at different times I have been honored with membership in both branches of our legislature."

"I believe I can say that I understand, in a large measure, the needs of our people, especially the needs of the farmer, whose problems are my problems and whose hopes and endeavors and economic requirements are intimately and actively my own."

"If nominated and elected to the office of governor I shall do my best to help administer the business of the state in an efficient and economical manner, and the only pledge I shall make in the coming campaign is the same pledge and only pledge made by me in the last campaign, and that is a pledge to the people that wherever, through my recommendation or official action, the burden of taxation can be lessened or the conditions of the state improved in any way, it will be promptly done."

Both women died soon after a solution of the poison had been administered to them, the physicians said.

The drug, according to the physicians, had been purchased from a local wholesale drug dealer.

Both women died soon after a solution of the poison had been administered to them, the physicians said.

The drug, according to the physicians, had been purchased from a local wholesale drug dealer.

Both women died soon after a solution of the poison had been administered to them, the physicians said.

The drug, according to the physicians, had been purchased from a local wholesale drug dealer.

Both women died soon after a solution of the poison had been administered to them, the physicians said.

The drug, according to the physicians, had been purchased from a local wholesale drug dealer.

Both women died soon after a solution of the poison had been administered to them, the physicians said.

The drug, according to the physicians, had been purchased from a local wholesale drug dealer.

Both women died soon after a solution of the poison had been administered to them, the physicians said.

The drug, according to the physicians, had been purchased from a local wholesale drug dealer.

Both women died soon after a solution of the poison had been administered to them, the physicians said.

The drug, according to the physicians, had been purchased from a local wholesale drug dealer.

Both women died soon after a solution of the poison had been administered to them, the physicians said.

The drug, according to the physicians, had been purchased from a local wholesale drug dealer.

Both women died soon after a solution of the poison had been administered to them, the physicians said.

The drug, according to the physicians, had been purchased from a local wholesale drug dealer.

Both women died soon after a solution of the poison had been administered to them, the physicians said.

Dirigible Helpless in Violent Gale

Dixmude, With 50 Officers and Men on Board, Drifting Over Gulf of Gabes—Aid Being Rushed.

Gas Supply Exhausted

Paris, Dec. 23.—The great French dirigible airship Dixmude, with 50 officers and men on board, was drifting helplessly today in a violent gale over the Gulf of Gabes, on the north coast of Africa.

French warships are reported to be proceeding at full speed toward the ship to aid if possible.

The late direct news received from the airship was that it was headed over the Gulf of Gabes and requested aid. The ministry of marine later received confirmation of the distress of the airship from land stations over which the dirigible had been drifting steadily eastward.

Some stations reported that the Dixmude apparently was badly damaged. Previous reports received from the airship said that a number of its crew were ill.

The Dixmude left Cuers-Pierrefeu, near Toulon, at 6 last Tuesday morning and headed for Tunis in a strong head wind that spread southward from the French coast. The gasoline supply of the airship became diminished, and it was impossible for the ship to return to France. Then it began to drift with one motor running. Occasionally it used another to run the wireless plant so as to be able to send out distress signals.

The French cutter Malheureux and all the torpedo boat destroyers in the region were hurriedly sent towards the Gulf of Gabes and the garrisons in the Tunis district and southward made ready to help the Dixmude land or to send aid if the airship was wrecked.

The Dixmude is commanded by Naval Aviation Lieutenant Du Fiesau de Grenada, but owing to the fact that the air craft was out to exceed its world duration record of 4,000 miles, made in September, it carried a number of aviation officers as observers, including Captain Yvon, assistant director of military aeronautics, and Captain Henneque, commander of the Cuers-Pierrefeu aviation district.

The Dixmude reached In Salah after 35 hours of flying in fine weather. It then started to return, but at Biskra, French headquarters wireless it to remain in the south, as there was a violent storm along the French coast which would make its recrossing of the Mediterranean dangerous.

The Dixmude is commanded by Naval Aviation Lieutenant Du Fiesau de Grenada, but owing to the fact that the air craft was out to exceed its world duration record of 4,000 miles, made in September, it carried a number of aviation officers as observers, including Captain Yvon, assistant director of military aeronautics, and Captain Henneque, commander of the Cuers-Pierrefeu aviation district.

The Dixmude reached In Salah after 35 hours of flying in fine weather. It then started to return, but at Biskra, French headquarters wireless it to remain in the south, as there was a violent storm along the French coast which would make its recrossing of the Mediterranean dangerous.

The Dixmude is commanded by Naval Aviation Lieutenant Du Fiesau de Grenada, but owing to the fact that the air craft was out to exceed its world duration record of 4,000 miles, made in September, it carried a number of aviation officers as observers, including Captain Yvon, assistant director of military aeronautics, and Captain Henneque, commander of the Cuers-Pierrefeu aviation district.

The Dixmude reached In Salah after 35 hours of flying in fine weather. It then started to return, but at Biskra, French headquarters wireless it to remain in the south, as there was a violent storm along the French coast which would make its recrossing of the Mediterranean dangerous.

The Dixmude is commanded by Naval Aviation Lieutenant Du Fiesau de Grenada, but owing to the fact that the air craft was out to exceed its world duration record of 4,000 miles, made in September, it carried a number of aviation officers as observers, including Captain Yvon, assistant director of military aeronautics, and Captain Henneque, commander of the Cuers-Pierrefeu aviation district.

The Dixmude reached In Salah after 35 hours of flying in fine weather. It then started to return, but at Biskra, French headquarters wireless it to remain in the south, as there was a violent storm along the French coast which would make its recrossing of the Mediterranean dangerous.

The Dixmude is commanded by Naval Aviation Lieutenant Du Fiesau de Grenada, but owing to the fact that the air craft was out to exceed its world duration record of 4,000 miles, made in September, it carried a number of aviation officers as observers, including Captain Yvon, assistant director of military aeronautics, and Captain Henneque, commander of the Cuers-Pierrefeu aviation district.

The Dixmude reached In Salah after 35 hours of flying in fine weather. It then started to return, but at Biskra, French headquarters wireless it to remain in the south, as there was a violent storm along the French coast which would make its recrossing of the Mediterranean dangerous.

The Dixmude is commanded by Naval Aviation Lieutenant Du Fiesau de Grenada, but owing to the fact that the air craft was out to exceed its world duration record of 4,000 miles, made in September, it carried a number of aviation officers as observers, including Captain Yvon, assistant director of military aeronautics, and Captain Henneque, commander of the Cuers-Pierrefeu aviation district.

The Dixmude reached In Salah after 35 hours of flying in fine weather. It then started to return, but at Biskra, French headquarters wireless it to remain in the south, as there was a violent storm along the French coast which would make its recrossing of the Mediterranean dangerous.

The Dixmude is commanded by Naval Aviation Lieutenant Du Fiesau de Grenada, but owing to the fact that the air craft was out to exceed its world duration record of 4,000 miles, made in September, it carried a number of aviation officers as observers, including Captain Yvon, assistant director of military aeronautics, and Captain Henneque, commander of the Cuers-Pierrefeu aviation district.

The Dixmude reached In Salah after 35 hours of flying in fine weather. It then started to return, but at Biskra, French headquarters wireless it to remain in the south, as there was a violent storm along the French coast which would make its recrossing of the Mediterranean dangerous.

The Dixmude is commanded by Naval Aviation Lieutenant Du Fiesau de Grenada, but owing to the fact that the air craft was out to exceed its world duration record of 4,000 miles, made in September, it carried a number of aviation officers as observers, including Captain Yvon, assistant director of military aeronautics, and Captain Henneque, commander of the Cuers-Pierrefeu aviation district.

The Dixmude reached In Salah after 35 hours of flying in fine weather. It then started to return, but at Biskra, French headquarters wireless it to remain in the south, as there was a violent storm along the French coast which would make its recrossing of the Mediterranean dangerous.

The Dixmude is commanded by Naval Aviation Lieutenant Du Fiesau de Grenada, but owing to the fact that the air craft was out to exceed its world duration record of 4,000 miles, made in September, it carried a number of aviation officers as observers, including Captain Yvon, assistant director of military aeronautics, and Captain Henneque, commander of the Cuers-Pierrefeu aviation district.

The Dixmude reached In Salah after 35 hours of flying in fine weather. It then started to return, but at Biskra, French headquarters wireless it to remain in the south, as there was a violent storm along the French coast which would make its recrossing of the Mediterranean dangerous.

The Dixmude is commanded by Naval Aviation Lieutenant Du Fiesau de Grenada, but owing to the fact that the air craft was out to exceed its world duration record of 4,000 miles, made in September, it carried a number of aviation officers as observers, including Captain Yvon, assistant director of military aeronautics, and Captain Henneque, commander of the Cuers-Pierrefeu aviation district.

The Dixmude reached In Salah after 35 hours of flying in fine weather. It then started to return, but at Biskra, French headquarters wireless it to remain in the south, as there was a violent storm along the French coast which would make its recrossing of the Mediterranean dangerous.

The Dixmude is commanded by Naval Aviation Lieutenant Du Fiesau de Grenada, but owing to the fact that the air craft was out to exceed its world duration record of 4,000 miles, made in September, it carried a number of aviation officers as observers, including Captain Yvon, assistant director of military aeronautics, and Captain Henneque, commander of the Cuers-Pierrefeu aviation district.

The Dixmude reached In Salah after 35 hours of flying in fine weather. It then started to return, but at Biskra, French headquarters wireless it to remain in the south, as there was a violent storm along the French coast which would make its recrossing of the Mediterranean dangerous.

The Dixmude is commanded by Naval Aviation Lieutenant Du Fiesau de Grenada, but owing to the fact that the air craft was out to exceed its world duration record of 4,000 miles, made in September, it carried a number of aviation officers as observers, including Captain Yvon, assistant director of military aeronautics, and Captain Henneque, commander of the Cuers-Pierrefeu aviation district.

Death Comes to Helen Hamilton

Camden, N. J., Dec. 23.—The prayer of 23-year-old Helen Hamilton, that death might relieve her long suffering from a ruptured heart, was answered today.

Little Helen, who has been an invalid nearly eight years, constantly prayed for death. Today she slipped into unconsciousness and a moment later the end came.

The case of little Helen attracted wide attention. Eight years ago, some of her playmates in a spirit of mischief, buried her in a sand pile. So great was her fright that it caused an injury to her heart.

Helen Hamilton

Morehead to Contest With Bryan for Control of National Delegates

Appearance of Warden Fenton as Candidate for Delegate to Democratic National Convention Presages Stiff Fight for Nebraska Representation.

Washington Correspondent The Omaha Bee.
Washington, Dec. 23.—A news dispatch printed in The Omaha Bee of last Tuesday under a Lincoln date line is looked upon by alert politicians watching the presidential race as a first indication that Congressman John H. Morehead of Falls City intends to assert his right to control some of the delegates to the democratic national convention, the same as the Bryan brothers. The dispatch under discussion follows which reads: "Warden W. T. Fenton of the Nebraska penitentiary today announced he soon would circulate petitions to have his name placed on the ballot as a delegate to the national democratic convention from the first district."

In order to get the line of reasoning in which politicians base their belief that Morehead intends to send them to the convention who will follow his guidance in voting for a presidential nominee one must go back 20 or 25 years to politics in Lincoln. Morehead's name was in the Lincoln directory in 1898, when he was sheriff there one term after another.

Next, one finds Morehead a newly elected governor with oodles of pie to distribute. He didn't forget Fenton. He appointed Fenton warden of the penitentiary and Fenton held that position ever since. Fenton is a man who doesn't forget favors done.

Fenton has demonstrated this time and again. Politically he does as Morehead desires. When McKelvie was elected and came up for reelection last season, Morehead was running against him. It is known that Warden Fenton went to McKelvie and told him that he didn't wish to double-cross him, that he was going to do everything possible for Morehead and he would gladly resign if his work in behalf of Morehead would embarrass Governor McKelvie. McKelvie told him to stay on the job.

In the congressional fight last fall Fenton has demonstrated this time and again. Politically he does as Morehead desires. When McKelvie was elected and came up for reelection last season, Morehead was running against him. It is known that Warden Fenton went to McKelvie and told him that he didn't wish to double-cross him, that he was going to do everything possible for Morehead and he would gladly resign if his work in behalf of Morehead would embarrass Governor McKelvie. McKelvie told him to stay on the job.

In the congressional fight last fall Fenton has demonstrated this time and again. Politically he does as Morehead desires. When McKelvie was elected and came up for reelection last season, Morehead was running against him. It is known that Warden Fenton went to McKelvie and told him that he didn't wish to double-cross him, that he was going to do everything possible for Morehead and he would gladly resign if his work in behalf of Morehead would embarrass Governor McKelvie. McKelvie told him to stay on the job.

In the congressional fight last fall Fenton has demonstrated this time and again. Politically he does as Morehead desires. When McKelvie was elected and came up for reelection last season, Morehead was running against him. It is known that Warden Fenton went to McKelvie and told him that he didn't wish to double-cross him, that he was going to do everything possible for Morehead and he would gladly resign if his work in behalf of Morehead would embarrass Governor McKelvie. McKelvie told him to stay on the job.

In the congressional fight last fall Fenton has demonstrated this time and again. Politically he does as Morehead desires. When McKelvie was elected and came up for reelection last season, Morehead was running against him. It is known that Warden Fenton went to McKelvie and told him that he didn't wish to double-cross him, that he was going to do everything possible for Morehead and he would gladly resign if his work in behalf of Morehead would embarrass Governor McKelvie. McKelvie told him to stay on the job.

In the congressional fight last fall Fenton has demonstrated this time and again. Politically he does as Morehead desires. When McKelvie was elected and came up for reelection last season, Morehead was running against him. It is known that Warden Fenton went to McKelvie and told him that he didn't wish to double-cross him, that he was going to do everything possible for Morehead and he would gladly resign if his work in behalf of Morehead would embarrass Governor McKelvie. McKelvie told him to stay on the job.

In the congressional fight last fall Fenton has demonstrated this time and again. Politically he does as Morehead desires. When McKelvie was elected and came up for reelection last season, Morehead was running against him. It is known that Warden Fenton went to McKelvie and told him that he didn't wish to double-cross him, that he was going to do everything possible for Morehead and he would gladly resign if his work in behalf of Morehead would embarrass Governor McKelvie. McKelvie told him to stay on the job.

In the congressional fight last fall Fenton has demonstrated this time and again. Politically he does as Morehead desires. When McKelvie was elected and came up for reelection last season, Morehead was running against him. It is known that Warden Fenton went to McKelvie and told him that he didn't wish to double-cross him, that he was going to do everything possible for Morehead and he would gladly resign if his work in behalf of Morehead would embarrass Governor McKelvie. McKelvie told him to stay on the job.

In the congressional fight last fall Fenton has demonstrated this time and again. Politically he does as Morehead desires. When McKelvie was elected and came up for reelection last season, Morehead was running against him. It is known that Warden Fenton went to McKelvie and told him that he didn't wish to double-cross him, that he was going to do everything possible for Morehead and he would gladly resign if his work in behalf of Morehead would embarrass Governor McKelvie. McKelvie told him to stay on the job.

In the congressional fight last fall Fenton has demonstrated this time and again. Politically he does as Morehead desires. When McKelvie was elected and came up for reelection last season, Morehead was running against him. It is known that Warden Fenton went to McKelvie and told him that he didn't wish to double-cross him, that he was going to do everything possible for Morehead and he would gladly resign if his work in behalf of Morehead would embarrass Governor McKelvie. McKelvie told him to stay on the job.

In the congressional fight last fall Fenton has demonstrated this time and again. Politically he does as Morehead desires. When McKelvie was elected and came up for reelection last season, Morehead was running against him. It is known that Warden Fenton went to McKelvie and told him that he didn't wish to double-cross him, that he was going to do everything possible for Morehead and he would gladly resign if his work in behalf of Morehead would embarrass Governor McK