Robin Hood Wins Big Vote From Children

Miss Kate Schwartzlander and a group of her spellbound listeners at the Children's Story Hour in the South Omaha Public Library.

Election returns! Election returns! Robin Hood wins by big majority over Childie Roland in a poor second! King Arthur makes third place, while Siegfried fails to hold even the German vote and brings up the rear with only four supporters. A total vote of 203 was polled in the voting place at the South Omaha public library, and of this, 122 ballots were marked for the winning candidate.

Official announcement of the results of the election was made yesterday afternoon at 4, in the South Omaha library, where the electors were assembled for the Children's Story Hour. Ulysses, the outgoing president, completed his term at this session. Robin Hood, the winning candidate, will be formally inaugurated next week at the same hour and place. Complete figures on the voting are as follows: Robin Hood, 122; Roland, 62; King Arthur, 25; Siegfried, 4.

Suffragette is Leader.

The outcome is the result of a week's whirlwind campaign which included some exciting elections. One ardent young suffragette supporter of the bold outlaw of Sherwood forest held the door of the children's room and demanded that all her friends who appeared should mark their ballots for the leader of the Merry Men. It chanced that among them was a lass whose real inclination lay toward Childie Roland, but, with more prudence than conviction, she yielded to the orders of the youthful Pankhurst and went for Lincoln green. A little later her natural preferences asserted themselves, so she went out and organized a group of six, who cast their ballots for the second candidate.

Library authorities are concerned at the landslide toward a labor government shown by the majority of Hood. They console themselves, however, by reflecting that there is nothing red about the man in Lincoln green, and add the reflection which is today bolstering up the courage of conservatives in the successful candidate's native land, when they contemplate the rise of Ramsay Mac Donald, to wit, that the new man is likely to prove less radical when he is in power than he was in opposition.

Hold Story Hour Weekly.

The South Side library is the only one in the city where the Children's Story Hour is held weekly. Every Thursday, a group of from 50 to 100 children congregate on their way home from school and listen spellbound to the tales dramatically told them by Miss Kate Schwartzlander. Attendance averages about 80.

One number of some great heroic saga cycle is told at every story hour, while the rest of the time is taken up with fairy tales or other children's stories. The adventures of Ulysses have been the main feature of the hour for six weeks. Irish fairy tales and fables, especially those with the characteristic Celtic humor in them, prove great favorites, declares Miss Schwartzlander. The children, she says, are very quick to get a joke. Sometimes they see it coming a long time before it arrives, and the room bubbles with suppressed giggles which burst into a peal of laughter when the funny part is reached.

Sessions Held During Winter.

Children of many different national inheritances meet at the story hour and learn to share together the great literary legacy which, although descended from many different lands, is common to all Americans.

The depth of winter, when the cold winds blow outside and a warm nook by the radiator looks especially inviting, are the heyday of the story hour, which opens in October and closes in April as the attractions of the outdoor world begin to vie with the fascinations of literature.

At the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Booth, Miss Murl Booth became the bride of W. E. Moore, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Moore of Fairmont, last night at 8:30. Rev. J. J. Johnson of the First Brethren church officiated.

The bride was gowned in gray crepe backed satin and carried a bouquet of pink rosebuds. She was attended by Miss Mildred Moore, sister of the groom. R. F. Moore attended his brother as best man.

The newly wedded couple will reside with the bride's parents temporarily. The bride formerly attended South Omaha high school and the groom was a student at Lincoln high school.

Out-of-town guests included the groom's parents, his brother and sister, who were in the wedding party, and Miss Jean Moore, a sister; also Mrs. N. E. Rhodes of Holdrege, grandmother of the bride.

Linner was served to 16 guests following the ceremony.

Eat the Apple Not the Core!

Have you ever heard a street urchin say to a more fortunate brother who had a nice rosy apple, "Gimme the core--- Oh g'wan gimme the core"?

If you have heard the whining tones of the street urchin it probably struck a discordant note in your mind. Compare yourself to the urchin.

Don't take the financial "core" get the "apple". When you need a new Davenport, Piano, Auto or what-not, consult the Want Ad Page, for there are an endless variety of such articles advertised there at less money.

And get over the idea that only poor folks advertise on the Want Ad Page, for many Want Ad Advertisers could buy you out with one-half of their year's income.
