

First Suspects in Auto Theft Ring on Trial

Farmer and Son Accused of Receiving Stolen Cars—18 Machines Recovered by Officers.

Special Dispatch to The Omaha Bee.
O'Neill, Neb., Jan. 25.—The first trial in connection with the gigantic auto theft ring that has been operating in northern Holt and Boyd counties and along the South Dakota line was held in county court here yesterday and today when Horace Henifin and his son, Calvin Henifin, were arraigned on the charge of receiving stolen property. They were held to the district court and their bonds fixed at $1,000 each.

Orlow Colwell, who resides along the Niobrara river in northern Holt, and Gus Hagenstein, a justice of the peace and notary public of Spencer, Neb., were witnesses for the state. Colwell testified that he accompanied Ross Jackson and Andy Hafsaas to the Henifin farm when Henifin purchased a Ford touring car for a consideration of $150 and 12 gallons of whiskey.

Colwell also testified that Henifin knew that the cars were stolen and that Hagenstein later furnished fictitious bills of sale for two cars to the Henifins for a consideration of $25. Hagenstein later verified the testimony.

Eighteen Ford cars already have been recovered by the state and federal men who are scouring the two counties for stolen cars.

Judge Declines to Cut Terms of Tram Robbers

By Associated Press.
Lincoln, Jan. 25.—No diminution of the sentence of 10 years was allowed by District Judge W. M. Morning today in the cases of McKinley Dennis, Ward Hatcher, Floyd Barnhill and R. C. Carroll, whom the judge has sentenced to 10 years in the state penitentiary for robbery of a street car motorman. The young men had applied for bench parole. Judge Morning said he had decided his sentence for the young men had been rather heavy, since they had testified that they had robbed the motorman "for excitement" and in view of their previous good record, but that he would allow the state board of pardons and paroles to take up the matter. He adds that he would recommend favorable action by the board.
