Business Men Want Ballot on Interior Decoration

Mother is no longer to be sole arbiter of elegance for the drawing room, if signs of the times may be read in the program given at the weekly luncheon of the Triangle club yesterday noon at the Fontenelle. Father is going to have his say about interior decoration, and pronouncement upon the psychology of color effects, upon objects of art, color harmonies, balance, mass effects and lines.

Adele Garrison "My Husband's Love"

A Letter and a Family Conference.

Lillian moved to the door swiftly as she spoke and unlocked it. Katie, her face purple with excitement, almost fell into the room.

"Coom gveeck to old woman's room," she gasped. "I tink she awful bad."

I ran swiftly past her, followed closely by Lillian, calling over my shoulder to Katie to fetch some water immediately. But at the open door of my mother-in-law's room I paused seeing that whatever of alarming weakness had been hers, it was passing.

True, her figure sagged against her chair, as if utterly spent, but the color in her lips—the first thing which I watch in her—and her eyes were gleaming with determination.

An open letter was clutched in her hand and as we entered, she raised it, and shook it at me feebly.

"Call Harriet and Edwin and Richard up here immediately," she said. "No, Mrs. Underwood," as Lillian moved toward the door. "I want you to stay, too, Katie!"—she greeted my terrified little maid, whose shaking hand had difficulty in proffering me the glass of water for which I had asked—"stop that trembling—I'm all right—and go down to the children. Don't let any one of them come near this room, where they can hear what's being said, until I send for them. Do you understand?"

"Oh, yes, ma'am, I feex," Katie's familiar slogan sounded, as she followed my hurried passage down the stairs, and she was at my heels when I entered the living room.

"Mother Graham would like to see all the 'grown-ups' in her room upstairs right away," I announced in as casual a voice as I could manage. "Katie will stay here with you. I know she'd love to play that game of animals with you."

"All I could play would be a leetle donkey," Katie caroled, grinning widely, and in another minute the children were gathered closely around her, for they all adore her, and the three older people were following me upstairs.

"What's eating mother?" Dicky asked in a low voice as he overtook me on the stairs.

"I wish I knew," I murmured back. "I think she must have received a letter which disturbed her, for she waved one at me when she told me to bring you all upstairs."

"A letter!" Dicky repeated vaguely. "I haven't seen any mail yet to be gleaming with determination."

"Nor you won't until your mother gets through looking it over," I retorted. "Have you forgotten that she insists upon having all the letters brought to her first—"

"And then transforms herself into a postman, sorting and distributing them," Dicky interrupted. "I ought to remember it. She's held me up often enough that way. But I wonder what's in the wind now, that she's hauling us all up for this mysterious conference."

He did not have to wait long for his answer. As we filed into the room Mother Graham took a quick, comprehensive look at us, and spoke imperatively.

"Lock that door and bring some chairs near me. We don't want the children to overhear this."

Lillian Reads the Letter.

We obeyed her, and when we had formed a compact circle around her, Mother Graham surprisingly held out the letter to Lillian.

"Mrs. Underwood, you are the only one who isn't vitally concerned in this," she said, "so you won't waste any time 'oh-ing or ah-ing' over it. Please read it, slowly and distinctly, mind you!"

She had all the air of a fourth grade teacher directing a reading lesson, and I saw Lillian's lips twitch as she took the stiff paper my mother-in-law handed her. But she obeyed the directions implicitly, and I think even my captious mother-in-law was satisfied at her reading of the startling epistle to which she listened.

The heading was that of an attorney in a Pennsylvania village, the date that of a few days before, the address most formal.

"Dear Madam," the letter began. "It has come to our knowledge that without our permission you have removed the children of our late beloved brother, William Harrison, to your own home, and are there keeping them, without having consulted us as to our wishes in the matter. Therefore—"

Mother Graham threw herself back in her chair violently.

"Late beloved brother!" she snorted. "Why, not one of them had spoken to William for 15 years."

For Miss English.

Affairs during the week for Miss Mary Louise English, whose marriage to Paul Rees will be solemnized February 5, include a bridge luncheon Wednesday given by Mrs. Robert Van De Ven at the home of her mother, Mrs. C. R. Caughlan, a Saturday afternoon bridge at which Mrs. George Carey will be hostess and a mah jong party that night to be given by Miss Mabel Graham.

Mrs. English will entertain her daughter's bridal party Monday night.

Mrs. R. D. O'Neill of Denver, sister of the bride, has arrived to be matron of honor.

Many Parties Arranged for Dinner-Dance.

Tickets for the dinner dance to be given by St. Cecilia parish Thursday evening, February 7, in the ballroom of the Fontenelle, may be secured through Mrs. Paul Gallagher or Father Smiskol at the parish house.

Hostesses for parties are taking tables each day, among them, Mrs. Roy Byrne, who will have with her Messrs. and Mesdames Louis Nash, Charles Beaton and Frank Keogh. Dining together will be Messrs. and Mesdames W. M. Jeffers, Paul Gallagher, Dr. and Mrs. D. T. Quigley. At another table will be Messrs. and Mesdames Malcolm Baldrige, Albert Silbertson, Miss Eleanor Burdick and James Connell. Reservations have also been made by Mesdames Thomas Earbeau, C. W. Hamilton, E. H. Dillon and Mr. Ed Kennedy.

For Organist.

The local chapter of The American Guild of Organists will entertain for Dr. George W. Andrews at a 7:00 o'clock dinner, Hotel Fontenelle, Thursday, January 31.

Invitations have been issued to all members of the Nebraska chapter, of which Mrs. Louise Shattuck Zabriske is the dean. Martin Bush is making all arrangements for the dinner.

Dr. Andrews appears in concert on Friday evening, February 1, at the First Central Congregational church.

The healthy look that DR. CALDWELL'S SYRUP PEPSIN Gives is Nature's Own

Ladies! This Beats Cosmetics

GOOD health cannot be camouflaged by powder and rouge. The eyes will tell. That sparkle and clearness that denote good health will not be there if you are constipated. Mrs. Clara Proctor of Potterville, Mich., had been told by doctors she had this and that disease, and one advised an operation, but she knew she had been constipated all her life so first tried Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. She avoided the operation and now feels better than she ever did. Likewise Mrs. William Appleton of Edgington, Pa., who was badly constipated and now looks her best again after using Syrup Pepsin.

Pepsin is than tablets, powders or pills, and without shock to the system.

Safe Family Laxative
Use it regularly a day before and a day after the periods. The gentle emptying of the bowels will give you relief, and lessen headaches and congestion. Take a spoonful at bed-time and see how much better you feel in the morning. It is a vegetable compound of Egyptian senna and pepsin with agreeable aromatics, and entirely safe not only for you but for the youngest child. Keep a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin constantly in the home for you or some other member of the family may need it any moment to relieve constipation, to break up fevers and colds, to clear up biliousness, indigestion, a pimple, a fever sore and other disturbances that show constipation.

Intelligent women are realizing that health and mere outward complexion are two different things, and more and more are taking Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Over 10 million bottles were bought in drug stores last year, the largest selling liquid laxative in the world! Go to your druggist and buy a bottle. The cost is less than a cent a dose. You will see how much more effective a spoonful of Syrup Pepsin is than tablets, powders or pills, and without shock to the system.
