

New Neckwear Ideas

By ELEANOR GUNN.
The return to fresh lingerie collars is one of the arresting features for spring. White leads, but ecru, which shades from cream to a deep tone called amber, plays a prominent role just now and is one of the most popular factors, although it does not entirely supersede white.

Tailored sets are particularly interesting and are developed in linen, pique, English broadcloth, crepe de Chine and organdy voile. Gauntlet cuffs are shown with the majority of sets, but not the extremely deep types, for they have not proven to be as popular. Straight cuffs are also offered and several models are fastened with pearl buttons.

Collars are round and pointed in the Peter Pan or Dutch neck type. Vestees have collars similarly modeled in addition to wide V shaped cover models.

Vestees are made with pleated jabots of embroidered batiste in three-tier effects, with full length ruffles, and with narrow panels, outlined with cording or formed by pin-tucking. The latter type has cuffs edged with a band of pin-tucking to correspond.

Colored embroideries are effectively employed on tailored sets, exemplified in an amber colored pique model embroidered in bright blue conventional floral design. Net pleating edge several organdy sets, several of which are modeled in tiers.

More formal types are seen in net combined with filet, Irish and Valenciennes laces, modeled in the bateau and round shapes to correspond with the necklines of afternoon frocks.

Adele Garrison "My Husband's Love"

"What Are You Going to Do About It?"

Mother Graham's explosive comment that not one of her son-in-law's family had spoken to him for fifteen years before his recent tragic death, interrupted the reading of the letter from the attorney for the Garrison family only for a second or two. Characteristically, it was my mother-in-law who spoke first. Leaning forward in her chair she spoke irritably to Lillian.

"Well, Mrs. Underwood, what are you waiting for?" she demanded. "Let us hear the rest of this precious epistle. Where did you stop?"

"Are they keeping them without having consulted us as to our wishes in the matter?" Lillian repeated composedly.

"But chance they have of having their wishes consulted," she murmured belligerently. "I don't suppose they know the names of one of the children."

"Richard," his mother commanded with icy dignity, "see that you do not interrupt again."

"Therefore," Lillian went on, "we are notifying you now that whereas the mother's death was prior to the father's, the law gives to the father's family the guardianship of the children and the administration of the estate, provided no will be left. There is no record of any will, and we have been informed that the most strenuous and most inhuman effort was made at the hospital to have the dying man sign a will—it was prevented by his death."

No Trouble Wanted!

"We do not wish any unnecessary trouble," Lillian's words, that throxy contralto continued, "and will make none if the children are at once restored to our custody. They will be provided with good homes. Each of the three brothers will take a boy, while the girl will be given a home with her aunt. We will wait five days for the arrival of the children. If they are not here in that time we shall put the machinery of law in motion. Yours very truly,

"JOSEPH LOBDELL,
"Attorney at Law."

"For the Family of William Harrison."

"Their signatures are all appended," said Lillian, "but it will take me a minute or two to decipher them."

"Don't wait for them," Mother Graham commanded. "We haven't time. It's enough to have this riddle handed us. What do you make of it, anyway?"

She addressed the group as a whole, but it was Dicky who answered.

"I'd like to lamp this Lobdell bird," he said, "did you ever hear such a scream as that screech? Can't you just see him, a dried-up little old wretch from one of those little Pennsylvania towns—"

"Who may not know much about the writing of a legal epistle," Lillian struck in, "he ties you all up in donkey bowknots if you don't get ahead of him."

The Appeal to Harriet.

"Spoken like the sensible woman you are," my mother-in-law commented. "Richard, if you can't do anything but make ridiculous comments, leave the room."

"Oh, I'll be good," he promised, moving to a place behind his mother, where he put me into an agony of apprehension for the control of my laughter muscles by the wry grimaces he made at me.

See to it that you are," Mother Graham said grimly, and then she turned to her daughter. "Harriet! Haven't you anything to say?"

At the words every pair of eyes in the room turned on Harriet. Harriet waited, and we saw a stately woman trying hard to crush the emotion which threatened to cast her dignity and self-control to the winds. Her face was working, and at her mother's question she threw out her arms with a sound in her throat as if fish were choking. Her husband started toward her, but she waved him back imperatively.

"Oh! Oh!" she gasped. "To think there can be such people in the world! Do you see what they are planning—to separate those children each one in a different home—mean houses, they do such things as a home in that family. They would never know love, they would never know pleasure or any birthright of childhood. Work and just as little schooling as the law would permit—that would be the lot of each one of them."

She stopped chokingly, and her mother's voice struck in, coolly, tantalizingly insistent.

"Well," she said, "what are you going to do about it?"

Home-made Remedy Stops Coughs Quickly

The best cough medicine you ever used. A family supply easily and quickly made. Saves about $2.

You might be surprised to know that the best thing you can use for a severe cough, is a remedy which is easily prepared at home in just a few moments. It's cheap, but for prompt results it beats anything else you ever tried. Usually stops the ordinary cough or chest cold in 24 hours. Tastes pleasant, too—children like it—and it is pure and safe.

Four 2½ ounces of Pinex in a pint bottle; then fill it up with plain granulated sugar syrup. Or use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup, if desired. Thus you make a full pint—a family supply—but costing no more than a small bottle of ready-made cough syrup.

And as a cough medicine, there is really nothing better to be had at any price. It goes right to the spot and gives quick, lasting relief. It promptly heals the inflamed membranes that line the throat and air passages, loosens the phlegm, and soon your cough stops entirely. Splendid for bronchitis, croup, hoarseness and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway pine extract, famous for healing the lungs.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.
