The home is built on old English lines.

Relatives of Homer Conant, who is touring the orient, are waiting a shipment of gifts from the far east. Gold screens and posters he drew on shipboard are among the collection. Mr. Conant writes that in Japan things are much worse than in our own country. He also says he is interested in the Japanese babies, they are so beautiful to paint. He is touring the orient in a party of 400, and is nearing India, via China now.

Spring Song

I know why the yellow forsythia Holds its breath and will not bloom, And the robin thrusts his beak in his wing.

Want me to tell you? Think you can bear it? Cover your eyes with your hand and hear it. You know how cold the days are still? And everybody saying how late the Spring is? Well—cover your eyes with your hand—the thing is There isn't going to be any Spring.

No parking here! No parking here! They said to Spring: No parking here!

Spring came on as she always does. Laid her hand on the yellow forsythia— Little boys turned in their sleep and smiled. Dreaming of marbles, dreaming of agates; Little girls leapt from their beds to see Spring come by with her painted wagons. Colored wagons creaking with wonder— Laid her hand on the robin's throat: When up comes you-know-who, my dear. You-know-who in a fine coat. And says to Spring: No parking here!

No parking here! No parking here! Move on! Move on! No parking here!

Come walk with me in the city gardens. (Better keep an eye out for you-know-who.) Did you ever see such a sickly showing? Middle of June, and nothing growing; The gardeners peer and scratch their heads And drop their sweat on the tulip-beds. But not a blade thrusts through.

Come, move on! Don't you know how to walk? No parking here! No no back talk!

Oh, well, hell, it's all for the best. She certainly made a lot of clutter. Drooping petals under the trees, Taking your mind off your bread and butter. Anyhow, it's nothing to me. I can remember, and so can you (Though we'd better watch out for you-know-who. When we sit around remembering Spring).

We shall hardly notice in a year or two. You can get accustomed to anything.

—By Edna St. Vincent Millay.

One of the most amusing of the poems read by Edna St. Vincent Millay when she appeared before the Omaha Society of Fine Arts Tuesday at Hotel Fontenelle was "Spring Song." More beautiful poems by this young writer could be quoted, but this one took on special interest when Miss Millay related the circumstance which inspired it. She confessed that the critics have called it "entirely regrettable," but confessed toward it herself the tenderness of a mother for her lame child.

She and her husband (Eugene Boissvain) were driving back to New York one day toward the end of winter, she said. Snow still lay on the roadside. As yet they had had no sign of spring. Approaching a park, Miss Millay thought she heard a tree toad.

"Can it be?" she said. "Do let's stop and listen." They did, and surely it was a tree toad; Harbinger of lovely spring! Just in their moment of ecstasy a traffic cop whizzed along. "Move on!" he ordered. "No parking here!"

Of course they did move on, and with no back talk. But spring had faded away from their spirits.

"It seems such a pity," said Miss Millay, "that we say to youth 'Move on' when it's spring."

Tuesday Bride

Mrs. Roy A. Brownell (Miss Lily Ring) was a Tuesday bride. The wedding took place at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Thomas Ring. Mr. and Mrs. Brownell went to Minneapolis following the wedding. They will make their home in Sioux Falls, S. D.
