The Most Important Word.
And Most Important Tomb.

Professors of Princeton, who decide that "loyalty" is the most important word in our language, are mistaken.
"Strength" is a much more important word, and so is "courage."

"Imagination" is a word more important than loyalty, strength or courage. The last three are nothing without imagination to stimulate them.

The real fuss should be made over the tomb of Archimedes, that Cleopatra, fortunately discovered, when he was quaesitor in Sicily just before Christianity started.

Napoleon had no trouble ruling France, although the French did not like his Corsican origin. "If I go, and the Bourbons return, they will take away the land that the revolution gave you," he said to the peasants, and that was enough.

Sir Charles Higham, just gone back to England, left behind him a newspaper advertising appropriation of $1,000,000, "to make Americans realize that they should drink more tea, less coffee."

We ought, however, to drink more tea—in reason. It is a stimulant, whereas coffee, like alcohol, is a sedative. Woodmen working in the forests with temperatures far below zero, drink tea to keep them warm.

Rev. Dr. Inge, who remains dean of St. Paul, in London, although he seems to believe nothing at all in the Bible, looking on it as an interesting record of humanity's childhood, surprises devout friends by favoring birth control. He declares that the British birth rate is highest among the feeble-minded, lowest "among physicians, ministers of religion and teachers."

Good Christians tell Dean Inge that no one should interfere with the will of God, by preventing birth. Dean Inge asks, "Would they also denounce skillful physicians that interfere with the will of God by preventing death?"

Bulgarian peasants are attacked and their cattle destroyed by packs of wolves from the mountains. They say the Versailles treaty, forbidding them to have weapons, prevents their killing of the wolves. How many kinds of foolishness were included in that treaty?

Ramsay MacDonald, Britain's labor prime minister, starts on foreign affairs sensibly, with the suggestion that Germany be admitted to the league of nations, and treated as a nation, not forever as a people enslaved.

Berlin Orders No Mourning for Wilson

German Embassy at Washington Refrains From Flying Flag at Half Mast Because 'He Was Private Citizen.'

By Associated Press.
Washington, Feb. 5.—By direction of the Berlin government the German embassy here has refrained from making any display of mourning for Woodrow Wilson.

No flag has been flown over the embassy at any time since Mr. Wilson's death, although the other embassies and league of nations have had their colors at half mast since the official notification reached them before noon Sunday.

Baron Leopold Plessen, third secretary at the embassy, made this explanation: "The German government considers the late Mr. Woodrow Wilson a private citizen and therefore has instructed the German embassy to refrain from any official display of mourning."

When Mr. Wilson died, the State department followed the diplomatic custom, on such events, notified the French ambassador Jules Jusserand, who is dean of the diplomatic corps. The ambassador promptly notified all of his colleagues and flags on the diplomatic missions were at once displayed at half mast. Failure of the German embassy to show its colors in the mourning was not at first noted. When the lack of a flag was observed and an inquiry as to the reason made at the embassy, Baron Plessen made his statement. State department officials would not comment.

The Austrian legation also failed to display a flag today but officials said they would fly their country's ensign at half mast on the day of the funeral. The flag of the Hungarian legation has been at half mast since Mr. Wilson's death was announced.

By Associated Press.
Washington, Feb. 5.—A fringe of folk on the street before the Wilson home waiting to see the great ones who came and went, and the guard-ian police who turned unnecessary traffic from the steep narrow street, alone marked outwardly today the preparations for last honors to the dead war president. No marshaling of troops for the parade of sorrow was needed; no setting of lines that thousands might pass beside his tier, for he will go to his long sleep tomorrow in the character in which death found him—a plain American citizen with the days of his place and high dignities put aside far even. With only the two brief religious services to mark the entombment in the vault beneath Bethlehem chapel in the hills high above the stricken room, there was little that official Washington could do to show its respect and admiration for the life that had ended. Had Mrs. Wilson willed otherwise, unstinted honors would have been poured out to mark the nation's mourning. Even as it is in every military and naval post beneath the Stars and Stripes last honors will be paid in full with the booming of guns sounding a knell beneath half-masted colors.

Social Life Thrust Aside.
For the 30-day period of national mourning, already declared, President Coolidge has thrust aside all social activities at the White House. Very few of the many who would come to express their feelings at the services if they could find places can be admitted either to the private exercises in the home or the later public ceremony at the chapel. At the home only the family and a little group of closest friends can find standing room. There can be no place for the plain folk who have no other means of expressing their sorrow and admiration than to stand for long hours along the short guarded street where the funeral train will pass. For the masses as well as for himself, President Coolidge will go to the house with Mrs. Coolidge and follow the casket to the place of entombment. In that house ceremony, however, he will be surrounded by his cabinet in the last hours of the government can pay a dead leader.

The family circle will be completed only a few hours before the casket is lowered into the marble vault deep beneath the cathedral. Mr. and Mrs. William G. McAduff will reach Washington some time Wednesday morning. The private service at the home will take place at 3 o'clock that afternoon, followed by the chapel service at 3:30.

War department officials sought today to make the most of the little share that was left for them in honoring the commander-in-chief under whom the army fought. Eight non-commissioned officers of the army, with eight sailors and eight marines of similar rank and record will form the little guard of honor about the casket on the brief journey from the S street house to the chapel. They alone will touch the casket of the man under whom all served gallantly in the war.

The navy squad will come from the presidential yacht Mayflower. Some at least among them will be of those who served on the ship when Woodrow Wilson used her in the dark hours of his heavy responsibilities in the war years.
The marines will come from the ships and posts about Washington and among the veterans of the hard-fought fields in France where American valor claimed and received its recognition from the world. They will be picked men of the service to whom this honor falls.

In like manner the eight army sergeants were being selected. Records of personnel in all posts from which men could be drawn were examined to locate war heroes as far as possible to bear the war president to his last rest.

Demands for State Funeral
Still today there was demands on many sides that a last moment change should be made and more elaborate ceremonies mark the funeral. There were many like Senator Swanson of Virginia, who believed that this dead son of Virginia, mother of presidents, should go back to sleep in Virginia soil forever. It was this feeling that prompted the suggestion that entombment should be in the memorial amphitheater at Arlington where America's unknown soldier already stands guard. Some felt that the permanent resting place of Woodrow Wilson, war president and himself struck down by the war as surely as any of the glorious dead who sleep on the hillside beneath the unknown's resting place, should be within that stately enclosure sacred to the memory of those who have died for the flag.

The offer of sepulcher in this hallowed circle was promptly made. Secretary Weeks made it plain that no narrow legal construction would stand in the way of opening the last haven of patriotic Americans to the war president. Since no man could do that congress would provide in such a case the disregarding of that restriction.

Mrs. Wilson had her way, however, and the marble vault under the great church that looks down on the house where he died will hold her husband's honored casket until the form and manner of his final resting place can be determined.

Founders' Day at Creighton
Seventeenth annual observation of Founders' day at Creighton university will be held Thursday of this week.
Solemn memorial mass will be celebrated at 10 in the morning at St. John church, in memory of Edward Creighton, John A. Creighton and their wives. Rev. John F. McCormick, S. J., president of the university, will be celebrant.

Forty-six years ago, just four years after the death of Edward Creighton, his widow opened the Creighton college of arts for the free education of young men.
Some years later, Count John A. Creighton became interested in the development of the institution, and carried it far along its course. It is in recognition of these services that Founders' day is observed.

Gas War Over as Price Jumps Back to Last Summer's Schedule

The war is over. What war? Why the gasoline price war. The price will be back to its original point of 20-14 cents a gallon today.

That is the point the price had reached when the so-called gasoline war began last summer. The price has come back with 2-cent increases spasmodically until it had climbed from 14-14 cents to its present place.
When the "fight" began prices went down 6 cents. The smoke of battle cleared and the price went up 2 cents. Then it went up again, and now comes word from the offices of the Standard Oil company of Nebraska that it goes up again.

While the Standard is the only company to announce an increase, the other companies expect to follow soon. The boost was predicted exclusively today in The Evening Bee.

Small Army at Work Repairing Damage to Phone Lines by Raging Blizzard.

History in the science of communication was made during the sleet and wind storm which abated Tuesday after doing great damage to telephone and telegraph lines.
For the first time, radio was used in emergency, both to send important news and to move trains. WWOV station, Omaha, abandoned its scheduled program of entertainment Monday night and "stood by" at request of Austin D. Parkhurst, inspector for the ninth radio district who called from KYW station in Chicago.

Thereafter WWOV station here relayed information concerning train orders and track and weather conditions, as well as news items. W. A. Fraser, president of the Woodmen of the World, gave orders that the station remain open all night for this purpose.

Radio Grain Reports.
Grain reports were received by Omaha Grain Exchange by radio.
Damage to the Northwestern Bell Telephone company lines in Nebraska was put down at $75,000. The company reported 769 toll line poles and 500 farm line poles down in Nebraska, and about 1,400 toll line poles down in Iowa.

Tuesday morning a crew of eight foremen and 35 repair men, under Supervisor Thomas Peate, arrived in a special car from Minneapolis and left on a special train over the Burlington for Lincoln, accompanied by several other crews from Omaha and a large amount of equipment. They will work, day and night, repairing a gap made in the transcontinental line between Seward and Lincoln, where more than 200 poles were broken.

Twelve crews at work.
Three other crews of telephone repair men have been sent into Nebraska since Sunday, and 12 crews have been at work in the state besides the maintenance patrol men who fix minor breaks.

The thermometer stood at 3 above zero at 7 a. m. Tuesday and dropped to 1 below at 9, before starting upward.
Fair with rising temperature Wednesday is the forecast.
The wind which accompanied the sleet started to blow from the north east Sunday, at 6 in the evening, switched to the northwest Monday morning at 2 and attained a velocity of 40 miles an hour at 6 Monday evening.

Predicts Storm Wind.
The wind will turn to southerly by Tuesday, Meteorologist Robins believes, because of a low pressure area coming in from the northwest Tuesday morning.

Coolidge Wishes Wheat Duty Hike

Expresses Hope at Farm Aid Conference, Which Endorses McNary Bill.

By Associated Press.
Washington, Feb. 5.—President Coolidge, responding today to representation of agricultural members of the Northwestern Farm and Bank conference, declared he hoped justification for an increase in the tariff on wheat would result from the present investigation of the wheat duty by the tariff commission.
Delegates directly representing agriculture in the conference met today and later presented to President Coolidge resolution endorsing "the substance and basic principles" of the McNary-Haugen bill to restore farm purchasing power and the Norbeck-Burtens measure for government credits to promote diversification of production in the wheat area.

"We express our appreciation of the projected financial and credit adjustments by the banking, industrial and commercial groups, outlined at this conference," the delegates added. "We tender them our co-operation."

By Associated Press.
Washington, Feb. 5.—Plans for immediate formation of a $10,000,000 corporation by private interests to provide assistance to agriculture with the aid of the War Finance corporation, if needed, and other recommendations endorsed by the conference called by President Coolidge to consider the situation in the northwest, were outlined in the form of a report today for the president's consideration.
The conference completed its sessions yesterday and adjourned after appointing a committee to present its views to Mr. Coolidge today. It also authorized another committee to study the situation in the northwest, and suggested that the president appoint a permanent committee to assist banks in the wheat growing sections, and calling upon mortgage companies and similar institutions to extend wherever practicable the maturities on farmers' obligations.

Funds to provide the $10,000,000 capital for the service corporation are practically guaranteed, Secretary Herbert Hoover said, although subscriptions from the industrial and commercial interests pledged to its creation have not been entered. It will be the object of the corporation to conduct its enterprise without profit.

"The purpose will be to take the widest and most generous view in rendering aid," Mr. Hoover said. "Its primary purpose will be to assist the farmer situation directly. It will have the full backing of the War Finance corporation and consequently will be able to obtain many times its capital stock for use."

"Exactly how it will proceed cannot be determined until it has gotten under way. Hundreds of incidents probably will be found in which it may be able to assist on the refunding and organizing farm indebtedness for the purpose of enabling wheat growers to convert their operations into other types of agriculture."
Functioning of the corporation will not depend upon action by congress, Mr. Hoover added. He expressed the opinion the action taken by the conference had gone far toward eliminating the immediate danger in the wheat growing area where depressed prices have caused financial troubles during recent months.
