DAN WHITNEY is a noted hunter and somewhat of a naturalist, but he now comes forward as the discoverer of what he terms "Flying Rabbits of the Elkhorn."

Dan was initiated into the mysteries of crow hunting a few days ago and was seated in a blind which jutted out of a hillside in a thick growth of timber and small trees.

Dan had the finest flight shooting on rabbits that he could wish. Sailing overhead, the bunnies would all dip to the ground in front, and Dan sat on a box and proceeded to shoot rabbits on the fly until a great heavy lay on the snow before him.

Investigation showed no feathers or wings. Dan couldn't make it out. Then came the explanation. Hunters in a corn field scared up the rabbits and they ran into the bluff just behind Dan.

Packers Hold Stiff Workout

The South high Packers are being drilled hard this week on both the offense and defense. Several different combinations are being tried out nightly at the Packer gym, but Coach Patton as yet is undecided as to what combination he will finally choose for the week-end's games.

The combination which looks best at present, however, is that of Clark and Bernard at forward and Reeves and Kalstrom, Urban, Hoden or Walsfield at right guard, and Captain Wedberg at center.

Coach Patton's chief worry, however, is the running guard positions. The five players being used at guard are not quite as satisfactory as they might be, and Coach Patton is having a hard time getting as competent a player as was Julius Katzman, who graduated this January.

Coach Patton may take a large squad with him to Geneva and Sutton because of the fact that no regular right guard has been chosen.

"Name the Man"

Read This Appreciation Written by the editor of one of the oldest and most important motion picture trade journals, which goes to the showman for his guidance. It was run as a full-page appreciation. RIALTO THEATER.

"Name the Man" is a throbbing human heart, its beating responsive to the touch of masterful fingers. "Name the Man" is poignant drama, presented with the art and the genius that make of drama the breath of real life. "Name the Man" is big, not in massive sets nor whirling mobs, but big in its deep-piercing shafts of human appeal. It is worthy of the Victor Seastrom whose work abroad was a prophecy of genius, it is worthy of the Victor Seastrom whom we expected America's wider facilities to mature; and Victor Seastrom proved worthy of it. Seldom have we seen such assured mastery of tempo; such deft evidences of pictorial sense; such inspired playing with the last dregs of emotion in handling big scenes. "Name the Man" is a woman's picture, a man's picture—a picture for all who have hearts and tear ducts. It left us with moistened eyes and an abashed feeling of inability to do justice to so vibrant a work of art.
