

Wilson Ideals to Bear Fruit, Says Eulogizer

Seeds Planted by His Mighty Hand Will Blossom in Fairer World, Declares Judge Woodrough.

"Many men say that he failed," said Federal Judge J. W. Woodrough, in his eulogy of former President Wilson at the memorial services at the auditorium yesterday. "But his influence will be felt and is felt in the world today.

"It is but little more than 12 years since I was drawn into association with the then comparatively small group of men and women who had read the speeches and writings of Woodrow Wilson and had considered his career as governor of New Jersey and, were becoming obsessed with the idea that he was the best fitted man to serve our country as its president, and so, I was brought in personal contact with him. Naturally there stands out vividly in my memory those peaceful, serene, and quiet occasions when he discussed his ideas and his purposes with us.

"Peaceful occasions that were enlivened with the wit and humor that were so much a part of Woodrow Wilson, and so we were drawn to the man in friendliness and affection quiet apart from admiration. Those peaceful occasions came before greatness had claimed him for her own, and had drawn him to her fearful breast. There were very few, if any, that hated Woodrow Wilson then and there were fewer still who very greatly feared him.

Frailness Brings Doubts.

"We had a thought about him then, we Nebraskans, that I shall speak of. We had grown up here where the foremost figure in our political sphere was a man of magnificent physical proportions, and we had in our mind's eye the great torso of our Mr. Bryan, whose strong and beautiful voice so many times has carried from this platform beyond the farthest reaches of this auditorium and was distinctly heard across that paving on beyond. And I confess to you that our Virginia professor, with his eye glasses and his slender frame, looked to us a frail figure. Would that thing happen which has happened to lesser men, appearing on the same platform before an audience with that great orator, would he appear dwarfed or belittled?

"But the destiny of Woodrow Wilson swept him out of ranks of those beside him, and ahead and beyond all those who stood before him, and carried him forward the foremost man of his generation, and the foremost man of many generations.

"In those early discourses before his greatness came upon him, there ran through his talk and thought like a thread the theme that he expressed—the right is more precious than peace." Which is one of the rules that Puritans have ever laid down that makes life harder to lead, even for a private man who would live humbly, and when his natural powers are concentrated and multiplied by the powers of public office, it is a doctrine that makes inevitable for such a stormy course as Woodrow Wilson followed.

Pillar of Light.

"From the hour that power came to him until it was taken from him, until this hour that has come to us today, that slender frame and slight figure, that great intellect and lion heart was in distress and heat of combat and punishment, the bitterest conflict of so-called peace and the terrible shocks of bloody and horrible war. And in every fight he was a pillar of light in the darkest places, radiating hope when it had departed from all others.

"Before our war he had fought a hundred battles in the halls of congress and before the people. He had added branches and arms and new functions to our government. In his administration our constitution was changed. New laws, new functions and new constitutional provisions. And in every contest he made new enemies and received more scars. He set himself against strong and able men, and firmly settled fixed opinion and interests that were entrenched in time. He sought responsibility and took it upon his shoulders, great responsibilities—constantly increasing responsibilities—until that dread hour came when he appeared before congress and called this great and peaceful nation into war: called for the draft law and cried for force, unstinted force, and bloody conflict.

"O, how far away are those peaceful talks and quiet conversations with his friends! The jesting and the laughter! Our slender, frail professor clearly loved his limerick, his anecdote and the light-veined jest.

"Carried Self Bravely.

"He carried himself very bravely in the war and its ending marked but the beginning of what we all know was the greatest struggle of his life. The unequal struggle to bring about a lasting peace throughout the world and to put an end to war forever.

"Many men say that he was failed. Many men say that his ideas and his purposes, and the things that he stood for were wrong—that they were unwise—that they were harmful and hurtful to the people of his own time and for the future—that he was misguided—that his energies were misdirected. He conjured up deep and abiding hatreds and revengeful mother-breeder and soul of hatred which is fear.

"It is very idle in this hour to dispute about it or to gainsay it, but that this world throughout the length and breadth of it, whatever tongues are spoken, is different because Woodrow Wilson lived in it—no one will deny that. Through the struggle of his life I know that he was sustained and pressed on by the constant, persisting, abiding and continuing faith that the powers which came to him were of God, and in that faith he used his powers without restraint and without stint. Very angrily at times from his seat of power he spoke and wrote cruel words that lashed and stung and cut like sharpened steel. And this with the same energy and courage that he sent the most hopeful messages that ever fell on human ears.

"And was this life of his for better-

Invocation Offered at Wilson Memorial Here by Bishop Shayler

"O Thou eternal Father of all the peoples of the earth who throughout the ages hast raised up captains of Thy hosts in peace and war; and Who has led this nation through a great wilderness into a treasure land of Thine abundant gifts; in common with our countrymen we bow in deep humility and in a sense of great earthly loss this day, as we remember before Thee Thy servant, Woodrow Wilson, yet we are well assured that all things work together for good to them that love Thee.

"We gratefully acknowledge the singular excellence and the illustrious labors of Thy servant in peace and war.

"We thank Thee for his strong Christian character, nurtured in a Christian home.

"We thank Thee for his universal love towards all nations.

"We thank Thee for that Divine providence which guided the minds of men in their choice of a president to serve in our greatest need.

"We thank Thee for his solicitude, thought and effort for the less favored peoples of the world who this day rise up and call him blessed.

"Magnanimous Spirit.

"We thank Thee for his incessant efforts for world peace even at the cost of calumny and mortal life.

"We thank Thee for that magnanimous spirit which sweetly withstood the verbal assaults of the ignorant, the selfish and the blinded partisan.

"We thank Thee that at the end of his earthly career, that as he gazed

Special Dispatch to The Omaha Bee.
Cozad, Neb., Feb. 6.—Cozad held a Wilson memorial service this afternoon at 4 at the Methodist church. Halford Thomas presided. Rev. A. P. Cooper offered prayer. Addresses were given by F. W. Anderson, Senator Charles E. Allen, Rev. Nelson Gardner and Rev. Victor West. The High School Glee club furnished music. Two hundred were present. The services were under direction of the Cozad Community club. All business houses closed.

Coolidge Is Asked to Act on Gas Hikes

Pierre, S. D., Feb. 6.—Governor W. H. McMaster today wired President Coolidge asking the executive to take action to stop the rising price of gasoline. The governor declared the cornering of the crude oil market by the large oil interests has taken the fight outside of the state of South Dakota, where it was originally begun August 7 last.

"The state government is amply able to crush out excess profiteering in the distribution of gasoline within the state, but we have no power to control the price at the refineries," the message said.

"If a state government has performed its duty in preventing excess profiteering in the distribution business, shall not the federal government likewise perform its duty and prevent excess profiteering in the refining of gasoline?"

Clarkson Woman Dies on Thirty-Seventh Birthday

Clarkson, Neb., Feb. 6.—Mrs. Emil Petr, one of the best of Clarkson's women, wife of the cashier of the Clarkson State bank, died last night. The death occurred on her 37th birthday. Funeral will be Friday at 10. She is survived by Emil Petr, her husband, and Jerome Petr, son, 13, her mother, two sisters and a brother.

Labor Trouble Causes Divorce

Wymore, Neb., Feb. 6.—The divorce was granted a divorce from Thomas H. Humberger, Burlington railway shop worker of Wymore, in district court in this county yesterday. Judge L. W. Colby gave the woman custody of a 3-year-old child and $400 alimony, and ordered Humberger to pay $20 per month for the support of the child. This was Humberger's second wife. His trouble started here in August, 1922, when, after striking with his fellow workers, in July, he returned to work for the railway the following month. This incensed his former coworkers, and they drummed up a legal technicality in the first divorce and the second was applied for.

Memorial in Theater

Rev. Edgar Merrill Brown delivered a short eulogy of the late Former President Woodrow Wilson from the stage of the Rialto theater at 2 yesterday, and George Haupt, salute for the dead in the town park square, were among the honors paid

Episcopal Burial Service Read at Rites for Wilson in Cathedral

Washington, Feb. 6.—Simple yet stately religious services in Bethlehem chapel, Washington cathedral, marked the entombment today of Woodrow Wilson. Following is part of the text of the service, which was conducted by Bishop James E. Freeman of the Episcopal diocese of Washington, in association with Rev. James H. Taylor, pastor of Central Presbyterian church, Washington, and Rev. Sylvester Beach, Princeton, N. J., the two Presbyterian ministers under whom Mr. Wilson worshipped during his life at Washington and at Princeton.

Funeral march (organ, "Chopin").

The bishop:

I am the resurrection and the life, saith the Lord; He that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall live; And whosoever liveth and believeth in me, shall never die. (St. John xi 25, 26.)

I know that my Redeemer liveth and that He shall stand at the latter day upon the earth; and though after my skin worms destroy this body, yet in my flesh shall I see God: Whom I shall see for myself and my eyes shall behold, and not another. (Job xiv 25, 26, 27.)

We brought nothing into this world and it is certain we can carry nothing out. The Lord gave and the Lord hath taken away; blessed be the name of the Lord. (I Tim vii 7, Job i, 21.)

This was followed by a selection from the Thirty-ninth Psalm.

The lesson (Cor. xv 20) follows:

Now is Christ risen from the dead, and become the first fruits of them that slept. For since by man came death, by man came also the resurrection of the dead. For as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive. But every man is his own order:

Christ the first fruits: Afterward they that are Christ's at His coming. Then cometh the end, when he shall have delivered up the kingdom to God, even the father; when he shall have put down all rule and all authority and power. For he must reign till he hath put all enemies under his feet.

The last enemy that shall be destroyed is death. For he hath put all things under his feet. But when He saith all things are put under Him, it is manifest that He is excepted, which did He put all things under him.

And when all things shall be subdued unto Him then shall the son also himself be subject unto Him that put all things under Him, that God may be all in all.

Else what shall they do which are baptized for the dead? And why stand we in jeopardy every hour? I protest by your rejoicing which I have in Christ Jesus our Lord, I die daily. If after the manner of men I have fought with beasts at Ephesus, what advantageth it me, if the dead rise not?

Let us eat and drink; for tomorrow we die. Be not deceived; evil communications corrupt good manners. Awake to righteousness, and sin not; for some have not the knowledge of God; I speak this to your shame.

changed in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trump; for the trumpet shall sound and the dead shall be raised incorruptible and we shall be changed.

For this corruptible must put on incorruption, and this mortal shall have put on immortality. So when this corruptible shall have put on incorruption, and this mortal shall have put on immortality then shall be brought to pass the saying that is written, death is swallowed up in victory.

O, death where is thy sting? O, grave where is thy victory? The sting of death is sin, and the strength of sin is the law. But thanks be to God, which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ.

Therefore, my beloved brethren, be ye steadfast, immovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord.

For as much as ye know that your labour is not in vain in the Lord.

The choir:

The apostle's creed then was recited in unison, followed by the Lord's prayer, prayers by the minister, and this closing prayer by the bishop:

The God of peace, who brought again from the dead our Lord Jesus Christ, the great shepherd of the sheep, through the blood of the everlasting covenant; make you perfect in every good work to do His will, working in you that which is well pleasing in His sight; through Jesus Christ, to whom be glory forever and ever. Amen.

The service closed with the singing of the recessional.

Confidence in Omaha

FIFTEEN years ago we selected Omaha as the one city that offered rare opportunities for the small business.

Guard Against "Flu" With Musterole

Influenza, Grippe and Pneumonia usually start with a cold. The moment you get those warning aches, get busy with good old Musterole.

Musterole is a counter-irritant that relieves congestion which is what a cold really is, and stimulates circulation.

It has all the good qualities of the old-fashioned mustard plaster without the blister.

Just rub it on with your finger-tips. First you will feel a warm tingle as the healing ointment penetrates the pores, then a soothing, cooling sensation and quick relief.

Have Musterole handy for emergency use. It may prevent serious illness.

To Mothers: Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole. 35c and 65c. in jars and tubes.

Mothers! Rub Away Children's Colds

Let them breathe in healing vapors all night

THE MOTHER'S PROBLEM—
Wise mothers know that daily outdoor exercise in childhood lays the foundation for strong bodies in later life.

Daily means Winter as well as Summer.

But with outdoor exposure some colds are bound to come.

And we know now that colds are not just "simple" colds.

They must not be neglected. Much of the catarrh, deafness and ill health of adults is now laid by physicians to the neglected colds of childhood.

On the other hand, constant internal dosing must not be thought of. This is the mother's problem these cold Winter days.

Little Stomachs Rebel Against Dosing
Anxious mothers are too apt to dose their children continually.

Often this upsets the delicate little stomach. An upset stomach means a poor appetite. So the child doesn't eat enough to keep up its strength.

This in turn lowers the bodily resistance, thus inviting fresh colds and other diseases.

EXTERNALLY applied.
Vicks can be used as freely and as often as desired, even on the youngest child.

HOW VICKS SHOULD BE USED
For Head Colds, Asthma, Catarrh, Hay Fever—Vicks should be melted in a spoon and the vapors inhaled, or a little can be applied up the nostrils and snuffed up the head.

For Spasmodic Croup, Children's Colds—Rub Vicks over the throat and chest until the difficult breathing is relieved, then spread on thickly and cover with a hot flannel cloth. One application at bedtime usually prevents a night attack of croup.

For Deep Chest Colds, Sore Throat, Tonsillitis, Bronchitis, Coughs—Rub Vicks briskly over the throat and chest. In severe cases first redden the skin to open the pores (see directions). Then spread on thickly and cover with one or two thicknesses of hot flannel cloths. If the cough is annoying, a small piece the size of a pea can be swallowed every few hours.

WICKS VAPORUB
OVER 17 MILLION JARS USED YEARLY

THE PROBLEM SOLVED—Vicks VapoRub—the external, vaporizing treatment—has solved this problem for literally millions of mothers.

They let the kiddies romp outdoors but at the first sign of "sniffles" they apply Vicks over the throat and chest at night.

It is externally applied and so can be used frequently without upsetting the digestion.

The ingredients, released by the body heat, are inhaled with each breath, stimulating the air passages to throw off the cold germs. At the same time, Vicks increases the circulation of the blood throughout the chest region, thus helping to prevent any congestion developing.

This use of Vicks will prevent many colds and save much precious strength and vitality.

The Most Farm News

Let us say this emphatically:

No paper in Omaha or elsewhere in Nebraska ---not even the agricultural weeklies---publishes as much news of the farm as does The Omaha Bee.

No newspaper in this territory is so thoroughly familiar with the problems of The Farmer.

No Nebraska daily has been as insistent in its fight in behalf of the agricultural industries.
