

Wales Leaves in May on South African Trip
 London, Feb. 9.—May 2 has been provisionally fixed as the date for the departure of the prince of Wales on his state visit to South Africa. It has been found impossible to detach a battle cruiser from the British Atlantic fleet for the prince to travel in, so that he will make the voyage in one of the ordinary liners. He will not travel as an ordinary passenger, however, and special suits will be prepared for the prince and his staff. He will be away about three months.

Women Need More Vitamines
 Paris, Feb. 9.—A man can live twice as long on a diet without vitamines as can a woman. This is the latest discovery of science, as reported to the Academy of Science here by Prof. Jules Simonet, the well known physiologist.

Professor Simonet told the academy that he had experimented on a variety of animals and had found that in each variety the case was the same—the males lived 60 days on a devitaminized diet, and the females only 30 days. He did not say what this proved.

Lightning Scarce.

Honolulu, Feb. 9.—This city, along with its other climatic attractions, is practically safe from the dangers of lightning. This fact was pointed out recently by Thomas A. Blair, United States weather bureau chief, following the first thunder storm here in scars. The reason for this lack of electric storms, according to Blair, is that the island is swept almost continuously by a sea breeze, which serves to drive the charged thunder clouds against the central mountain range, from where they are deflected upward and discharge their electricity at high altitudes. The recent storm followed an unusual period of heat and calm.

Man Kicked by Elephant Collapses a Month Later
 Chicago, Feb. 9.—John J. Dost, 23, realizes today that when an elephant kicks one it is nothing to laugh at.

One of the big beasts let him have it last fall when he was working in San Antonio, Tex., for a circus in winter quarters there. It broke his knee cap. He started back to Chicago. More than a month later he collapsed on a Chicago street as a result, according to doctors, of the elephant's kick.

THE BRANDEIS STORE

What the Smartly Dressed Woman of Paris and New York Is Wearing

Presented to the Women of Omaha at The Brandeis Store

The smartly dressed resident of Paris or New York is "going in" for the tailored mode. Her gowns, suits and coats are characterized by a charming boyish chic—an air of masculinity that is most becoming. The women of Omaha will find on our Second Floor a comprehensive selection of interpretations of the mode current in the Fashion Centers of America and Europe.

She Chooses the "Billy Boy" Suit
 —developed in twill or charmeen, materials that are especially suited to its swagger, boyish lines. Braid binding or tucking is its only adornment. The favored colors are cocoa, tan, navy.
 29.75 to 195.00

She Favors The Tailleur
 —for street or business wear. Charmeen, velour, jersey or flannel are adapted to its slim tailored lines. Many dresses of crepe de chine soften their simplicity with lingerie collars and cuffs.
 29.50 to 150.00

She Wears A Woolly Wrap
 —fashioned of imported woolen fabrics of soft, shaggy weave. Tweeds, Scotch mixtures, novelty plaids are used. Coats are plain or luxuriously fur trimmed with Viatka squirrel or soft, fluffy fox.
 45.00 to 125.00

To Complete It a Clever Blouse
 —is the thing, tailored in lines, feminine in finish. Soft lustrous silk in rich colors of powder blue, sheik, bamboo or sunset for dress; crisp white lingerie blouses for street and business wear.
 5.00 to 25.00

The Versatile Sweater
 —plays many parts in her wardrobe. It appears as a slip-on, jacquette or mandarin coat, of mohair, fiber silk or mixtures. Some of the colors are pablo, sunset, moss green, lacquer, red.
 5.00 to 25.00
 Second Floor

A Bright New Sport Skirt
 —of flannel is an important part of her sport costume. It may be knife pleated, combination pleated or in wrap-around style. Checked velours and imported fabrics are used in many models.
