

Former Brakeman Gets Prison Term

Man Convicted of Forgery by Writing Own Name Must Serve Year to 18 Months.

Columbus, Neb., Feb. 18.—Frank Williams, 30, former Union Pacific brakeman who committed forgery by writing his own name, is to serve not less than one year nor more than 18 months in the penitentiary, under sentence pronounced by Judge Louis Lightner in district court. Williams voluntarily entered a plea of guilty.

Williams, who obtained a loan of $200 by telegraph from a man in Flagstaff, Ariz., by impersonating another Frank Williams, who was a personal friend of the Flagstaff victim, insists that it has been his intention all the time to pay the money back.

During his examination, Williams said he is married and the father of two girls who are now about a year old, but that he and his wife separated five weeks after the birth of the twins and he does not know their present whereabouts.

While driving a taxi in Omaha at one time, Williams ran over a woman who later died from the injuries. He was absolved of blame by a coroner's jury holding the accident to have been unavoidable on his part.

Also was taken into custody in connection with a burglary, but was released without formal charges lodged against him.

Judge Morning Slain in Court at Lincoln placed its muzzle in his mouth, pulled the trigger and collapsed on the floor. He was dead.

Judge Crumples.

Judge Morning had crumpled in his chair.

He regained his poise. He staggered from the raised platform and into his anteroom. Here he collapsed on his couch. He died before doctors could reach his side, the shot having broken an artery near his heart.

He leaves a wife and a daughter by a former marriage. The daughter, Miss Mildred, is a Lincoln school teacher.

The judge was reared on a farm in Linn county, Missouri. He practiced law in Bird City, Kan., and later in Lincoln. He was a prominent Mason, a well-known public speaker, former president of the State Bar association and successful attorney in his fight against a Lincoln public utility concern.

The supreme court here adjourned for an hour in his memory.

Serving Second Term.

Judge Morning was serving his second term on the Lancaster county district bench. He recently filed for re-election.

Everett Rector, Wallick's brother-in-law, said after the shooting that Wallick has been carrying a revolver and acting queerly for some time.

Chief of Detectives Anderson said that, while Wallick has no police record, he has been in county jail before for contempt of court in refusing to pay alimony.

Chief Anderson also gave it as his opinion that Wallick was not insane, as was at first reported.

"I believe he went to the court room with the deliberate intention of killing Judge Morning," he said.

Widely Acquainted.

Judge Morning was widely acquainted in Lincoln, and among the membership of the state bar association. He has come into particular prominence recently because of the number and oddity of injunctions issued. He recently enjoined a church from expelling some of its members, and issued a restraining order forbidding one man to pay attentions to another man's wife.

Two Jail Sentences.

Wallick, besides his widow, is survived by several sons and daughters. He also had considerable property. Judge Morning had twice sentenced him to jail for nonpayment of alimony.

H. H. Wilson, his lawyer, described him as of docile temperament.

"He was the last man in the world I would expect to do such a thing," he said.

Names Correspondent.

Wallick was engaged in digging several wells for the Burlington railroad, his attorney said. He not only declined to pay alimony, although Wilson told him he must do so, but also declined to pay his attorney fee of $300.

At the time Mrs. Wallick obtained her divorce she named a Mrs. J. M. Cromer.

Wallick is said to have other relatives in California and Kansas.

Terrorized Neighborhood.

Mrs. Wallick said that prior to his entanglements with other women, Wallick was a devoted husband. Her statement was corroborated by her daughter, Edna, 18.

They said, however, that Wallick had a reputation as a gun toter, and always carried two revolvers. Once he terrorized the neighborhood by firing them off, they said.

Mrs. George Nye, sister of Wallick, was prostrated today at her home. Before going on the district court bench eight years ago Judge W. M. Morning was senior member of the law firm of Morning & Ledwith, Lincoln. John J. Ledwith is attorney for Eugene Eppley, Omaha hotel man.

Judge Morning was president of the Nebraska Bar association in 1920.

"He was very highly regarded both as a lawyer and as a judge," said A. G. Ellick. "A man of likable personality."
