Judge, Disgusted, Throws Divorce Case Out of Court

Chicagoan Is Denied Decree When Wife Confesses Intimate Relations With Her Pastor.

Chicago, Feb. 19.—Albert R. Leland was denied a divorce today from his wife, Charlotte, whose confessions of intimacy with Rev. Carl Case, her pastor, had led to the filing of the sensational suit.

"I'm disgusted with this case," said Judge Charles M. Foell. "It has gotten to be a town scandal and nothing else. You have not stuck to the issue."

"For want of equity I shall have to throw the case out of court," said the decision came after the Rev. Mr. Case, pastor of the fashionable Oak Park Baptist church, of which Leland was a deacon, again took the stand today to refute testimony that he had once before been named in a similar action.

The new accuser of the minister was Thurward C. Adams, son of Dr. Case's college chum, Rev. George Adams of Mount Vernon, N. Y.

His mother and father, Adams said, were divorced, his father having been granted a decree following his mother's confession that she had been indiscreet with five men, whom she named.

"Were any of them ministers of the gospel?" William Moss, attorney for Mrs. Leland, asked.

"Yes, two of them," said Adams.

"Do you recognize one of them here?" queried the attorney.

"Yes, Dr. Case," came the reply.

A murmur of surprise swept over the courtroom. The Rev. Mr. Case maintained the composure that has

Millers Asked for Opinion on Wheat Tariff

Commission Will Make Its Report to the President Next Monday Based on Answers.

Washington, Feb. 19.—The tariff commission will hold its final hearing on wheat and flour costs next Monday and shortly thereafter will make a report on which President Coolidge will determine whether to proclaim an increase in the tariff duty.

Questions directed to the milling interests by the commission bore on points which, among others, it said, appeared to be of fundamental importance. They were:

Should a change in the duty on flour, if any, be based solely upon the difference in cost of production of flour in Canada and the United States, or should a compensatory rate be assessed upon flour equivalent to the duty upon the wheat content of the flour, plus or minus any difference in the milling and marketing costs. If the compensatory principle is applied, what conversion factor shall be used, that is, shall the yield of Canadian or of American wheat be used, or shall an average of the two be used, or shall some other yield be used?

Millers Questioned.
The commission asked the millers whether they considered the present duty on wheat fully effective on hard spring wheat imported from Canada, and whether they had any reason to believe that foreign producers bear a portion of the duty on wheat shipped into the United States. The method of distributing the costs of milling and marketing to flour and to milled feeds was asked, also an expression on the question of including and advertising and selling expenses in the comparative costs.

Statistics of the commission's preliminary investigation showed the cost of wheat per bushel at the mills canvassed was $1.2633 in the United States and $1.0923 in Canada, but these figures, it was pointed out, was not comparable for all purposes, because the Canadian costs in some cases includes a higher freight charge from western Canada than the cost of wheat in the Minneapolis district shipped from the spring wheat area of the United States.

Costs Figured.
The cost of wheat chargeable to flour, the commission's experts found, was $4.7018 per barrel, or $2.3509 per 100 pounds in the United States, and $4.3492 per barrel, or $2.1746 per 100 pounds in Canada. These costs are according to the ratio of the sales value of flour to that of milled feeds.

Chairman Marvin of the commission asked the millers to consider carefully and give their opinion on the question of whether the commission has authority to consider the compensatory elements in arriving at its conclusions. He said he personally believed the commission had such authority.

Navy Job Has No Attraction for R. B. Howell

Washington Interested in Suggestion That Nebraskan Succeed Denby, but He Won't.

By P. C. HOWELL.
Washington Correspondent The Omaha Bee.
Washington, Feb. 19.—News of action taken by former soldiers in Nebraska, urging appointment of Senator R. B. Howell to succeed Secretary Denby has reached Washington and is causing considerable comment. It is one of Senator Howell's inflexible rules to refuse to state what he will do in an emergency until the emergency arises. He is following the same rule in this matter, saying: "I am not a candidate."

But those who know him well say positively that if the post were offered him, and a few believe such will be the case, he will not accept.

It is known Howell came to Washington with one predominant idea in his mind, and that is to force changes in present transportation laws.

The secretaryship of the navy would be one of the last jobs in the world that Howell would want. First, because he doesn't like navy life, and second, because some of the best friends he has are naval men and to carry out any set naval policy would be certain to cut into that friendship.

It was for this reason more than anything else that Howell fought violently from being placed on the committee on naval affairs. His past experience and past friendship among naval officers would either have made him a "pork barrel" senator, or a man hated by his former naval associates.

Last is Howell's well-known attitude for shaping his own policies and following them to an end. To have someone else shape them for him, it is felt, would cause Howell no end of resentment and in the final analysis might make a lot of trouble for everyone concerned. So, take it all in all, one can make a safe bet that in the first place Howell won't be offered the job, and in the second place he won't accept it if it is offered to him.

marked his every appearance in the courtroom. He whispered a few words to his attorney.

Adams continued a recital of the episode, his mother's confession at the breakfast table. The Rev. Mr. Case, he said, was named in the testimony of the suit but not in the files.

Pastor Case was called to the witness stand. He explained his trip to Buffalo, N. Y., and Brooklyn, as soon as the trial was recessed 15 days ago as taken "to be among friends."

Pastor Case formerly was pastor of Baptist churches in Brooklyn and Buffalo. Attorney Moss through his questioning sought to bring out evidence that Pastor Case had revisited his former parishioners to keep the circulation of his departure from those charges out of the Leland suit.

Judge Foell was plainly angered at the personal trend which the questioning took, stating that too much of the testimony was irrelevant.

Attorneys for the defense then placed Rev. Clarence Frank, pastor of a Baptist church at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., on the stand. He was formerly an assistant to Pastor Case.

"Did Pastor Case ever show you a letter signed by Doctor Adams, demanding $2,500?" asked the attorney. The minister replied in the affirmative, and added:

"The letter said that Doctor Case had been intimate with Mrs. Adams and that Mr. Adams demanded $2,500 to keep the matter quiet."

It was here the judge dismissed the suit.

Pastor Identifies Man Held as Bandit

James McCray, wounded Sunday night in a running gun battle with Pill Box Officers Anderson and Musgrave, was identified yesterday by Rev. Almes Adams, 3344 Hartman avenue, as Floyd Hendricks of Kansas City, Kan.

He has an aunt, Liza Whitten, in that city, according to Rev. Mr. Adams.

Identification was made after Lieut. A. C. Anderson of the police Bertillon bureau found his name on a card in Hendricks' possession, which had been given him by his aunt.
