Dean Inge of St. Paul, in London, well called the gloomy gray a sign of a growing doomer and gloomier.

The bolsheviks would reply to that gloomy view, "What you say about us was said about you by Christians, when you were trying to get a start in the days of Marcus Aurelius."

Statements like that of the gloomy dean are unfortunate in that they don't result in killing any mad dogs, but seem to justify the mad dogs if they happen to kill a gloomy dean or two when they get hold of that.

Will the state of Florida accept or reject $50,000,000 worth of free advertising?

If Florida sends William Jennings Bryan to the national democratic convention, he will go at his own expense and Florida will get free of charge in all newspapers of the United States, advertising that could not be bought for $50,000,000 or $100,000,000.

Mr. Bryan would go to the convention as a resident and most enthusiastic "boosting" citizen of Florida.

Considering that Florida voted three times to make Mr. Bryan president of the United States, doing all that it could to make him president, it is hard to believe that the East Coast railroad will have enough political power to prevent sending Mr. Bryan to the national democratic convention.

After his return to the United States, he would center the attention of the country on the Florida delegation and on the state of Florida.

To understand public agitation in France it is necessary to realize that a low price of exchange does to the cost of living.

Unless the second choice is made by France and Germany, there is ahead of Europe calamity such as the world has never seen.

Building Boom in South Omaha

Extraordinary building activity is expected in South Omaha this spring and summer.

No Real Saving in State Taxes, Republican State Chairman Says

Judge E. B. Perry Analyzes Claim of Nebraska Tax Commissioner and Shows Fallacies—Put Heavy Burden on Omaha Taxpayers.

The increase in value in 1923 over that of 1922 is imposed upon Douglas county to the extent of approximately $12,000,000, which accounts in a small way for the ability of the state board to reduce the tax levy 3-10 of a mill.

While Mr. Smith gives his readers the impression that he is anxious to be nonpartisan, he glosses over the taxes of 1922 to make a favorable showing for the Bryan administration of 1923.

The alleged 40 per cent reduction in taxes is in keeping with Mr. Smith's prior statement to the governor, when he was serving as budget commissioner, upon which he based his statement of an approximate $4,000,000 deficit in the statement roads fund, which, according to the last statement made by the administration has dwindled to a mere $295,000 and it is far to assume that this state deficit will be taken care of by future remittances to the state treasurer.

"This statement, like every one that has been given out by the present administration, does not show a real saving on taxes. What it does show is that activities have been lessened. In other words, the administration is not doing for the state what its predecessors did and therefore less money is required to carry on the business of the state."

"The present condition of the highways of the state as a direct result of being neglected by the present administration, has been during the last year a loss to the state by reason of their not being maintained in the manner contemplated when these highways were constructed and has resulted in a loss to the state greater than the $900,000 that the governor's expert claims has been saved."

Omaha Merchants Hope to Continue Parcel Post Here

Efficiency of Service Recommends It—Should Be Extended to Other Cities. Say Storekeepers.

Recommendation by the postoffice commission that local delivery by parcel post be discontinued in Omaha has roused Omaha business men.

Officers of the big Omaha stores of getting their merchandise to customers throughout the city point out that the discontinuance of the service would not only inconvenience the stores but the buying public as well.

Karl Lewis of the Brandeis store summed the matter up as follows: "We would regret it very much if the parcel post delivery service were discontinued. It has been a most satisfactory service to our customers and to ourselves, and although the cost of delivery is as high or higher than our private delivery service it assures prompt and certain delivery of merchandise to the buyers of the city."

William F. Baxter of Thomas Kilpatrick & Co., expressed himself as follows: "I was under the impression that this system of local parcel post delivery was working in a satisfactory manner to everyone concerned. The only reason that I have discovered why the committee recommended its discontinuance is that it is operated only in Omaha and one other city. I can't understand why such a service isn't a natural extension of government services, just as was rural delivery."

W. F. Neagle of Thompson Belden & Co., discussed the matter as follows: "We like the service; find it a great success. It is a big thing for both the merchant and the people. If the government is losing money by operating the service it could add a little to the charge for delivery and still be doing a service."

Although no concerted action has been taken by merchants as yet James W. Metcalfe, secretary of the Associated Retailers, said last night that he expected to call a meeting soon to resist this move to discontinue the service.

W. F. Neagle of Thompson Belden & Co., discussed the matter as follows: "We like the service; find it a great success. It is a big thing for both the merchant and the people. If the government is losing money by operating the service it could add a little to the charge for delivery and still be doing a service."

Robert Samardick, general prohibition agent, is said to be in a receptive mood for the place but hasn't the support that Ringer has.

"Several people have spoken to me about it but I have not given the proposition serious consideration," said Ringer last night. "I couldn't afford to leave my law practice."
