Columbus, Neb., Feb. 24.-Farmers of the Platte and Loup river valleys prices and the musty corn yields, made it apparent there would be decided slump in feeding.

Many of the western cattle fed along the Loup valley are purchased direct from the ranges through markets in Denver. As a result the movement from the range has been more direct than ever before.

Cattle from this section, it is pre dicted, will be marketed earlier this year. It is predicted that the month of April will see a larger percentage of cattle on the feed lots of central Nebraska on their way to market. Among farmers handling cattle on a large scale there is a constant increase in arriving shipments of dairy ing cattle from Wisconsin dairy Many farmers who have never taken any great interest in dairy cattle are making efforts to obtain pure bred males and heifers. Holstein, Brown Swiss, Jersey and

Guernsey cattle are being purchased for breeding purposes and in two or three cases, 8 and 10 head of cows have been shipped in from Wisconsin During the month of January only comparatively small number of cattle were placed on the market from this section, due in most cases
