

Senate Has Violent Day on Daugherty

Adoption of Probe Resolution Expected to Be Passed Today.

that the attorney general would be vindicated completely if given an impartial trial. The Ohio senator was the only republican to speak in Daugherty's behalf, but Senator Bruce, democrat, Maryland, while expressing the opinion that Daugherty was not qualified for his position, said it was yet to be proven that he was not an honorable man.

New Issue Injected.
At the outset today an unexpected move by Senator Wheeler injected a new issue into the fight already under way over the investigating committee personnel. He modified his resolution by providing that the committee should be elected by the senate, a procedure provided in the senate rules but seldom followed. Senator Wheeler dropped his original plan to name the committee including himself and Senator Brookhart of Iowa, an insurgent republican, as chairman in the resolution.

The modified resolution provides for selection of three republicans and two democrats. This drew immediate objection from the republican organization, Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, the republican leader, presenting an amendment providing for selection of the committee by the president pro tempore. This still was pending at adjournment tonight.

There was another tempestuous period in discussion of conferences. Senator Willis had held with Daugherty and Senator Cummins as president of the senate regarding the investigating committee personnel. Senator Willis, with a half-dozen democrats on their feet at once firing personal questions, told of his talks with Daugherty and Senator Cummins, and declared that they were entirely proper. The attorney general, he contended, had a proper interest in the committee make-up and the procedure.

Telegram Introduced.
After much democratic fire, the Ohio senator said he had suggested to Senator Cummins the names of senators who were efficient and qualified for the inquiry, and hotly denied any improper acts.

Senator Caraway, democrat, Arkansas, at this point brought into discussion the telegram sent by E. S. Rochester, a Department of Justice employ, to Edward B. McLean in the oil case advising McLean that the oil committee was to investigate his bank accounts in connection with the $100,000 loan to Albert B. Fall. Senator Caraway asked Senator Willis if he regarded the Rochester telegram improper. Senator Willis replied that it sent by a Department of Justice officer it "was highly improper and ought to be punished."
Senator Wheeler said Daugherty himself had "asked for an investigation" of his administration and he had promptly complied by introducing his pending resolution. Since that time, from all parts of the country, the Montana senator added, he had received complaints involving various charges against the attorney general and the Department of Justice. Senator Wheeler said he did not know Daugherty, never saw him until he visited the senate February 22 and had no personal interest in the matter except the cause of "clean government."

"I can understand that when any man gets up and tries to clear up a situation, he may expect to be bullied," said the senator.

Daugherty Is Silent

on Senate Attack
Birmingham, Ala., Feb. 29.—Attorney General Daugherty had "nothing to say" when his attention was called here late today to a statement made in the senate by Senator Heflin, democrat, Alabama, that he could submit a letter written by the attorney general instructing a western district attorney not to prosecute a certain national committeeman. Likewise Mr. Daugherty had nothing to say when informed that a bitter debate took place in the senate with him as the storm center.

Alma Dramatic Club Puts on Two Plays

Alma, Neb., Feb. 29.—The Alma Dramatic club presented the comedy, "Wedding Bells," Friday evening in the auditorium, under the direction of William Everson. The proceeds were used toward the payment of the new curtain and scenery which cost $1,500. The cast of characters was played by John F. Showalter, Blanche Campbell, Miles Banks, Myrtle Hardin, Opal McKee, Everett McKee, Margaret Dayton, Marvin Shaffer and Roy Evers. To a large and enthusiastic audience. Special acts were given between scenes by Margery Alter and Louise Baker. The play, "A Pair of Sixes" will be given next Friday by other members of the dramatic club.

Ex-Hastings Woman Found With Throat Cut

Hastings, Neb., Feb. 29.—Mrs. Irene Mines, found dead at Los Angeles yesterday with her throat cut, was the widow of John D. Mines, city treasurer of Hastings for some years and prominent in the affairs of the city. He died at the Ingleside state hospital in 1908, after 25 years residence in this city.
His widow and the only daughter went to the Pacific coast after Mr. Mines' death, and little has been heard of them in recent years. They left no relatives in this vicinity.

North Dakota Wins Debate.
Fargo, N. D., Feb. 28.—Debaters of North Dakota Agricultural college defeated Des Moines university in a debate on the league of nations question, North Dakota upholding the negative.

Wig Makers Made Bad Guess When They Said Bobbed Hair Doomed

Columbus, Neb., Feb. 29.—A prophecy was made a few months ago. It was to the effect that bobbed hair was doomed; that the new coiffures would require the use of immense quantities of false hair to replace the tresses our women had so foolishly shorn; that the manufacturers of wigs and the transformations expected to reap a rich harvest.

Evidently the wish was father of the prediction in this instance, or else the gentler sex have staged a revolt against the mandates of those who would foist their ideas of "style" upon the usually docile followers of their commands. For bobbed hair and the resultant freedom from long hours at the mirror "doing up" recalcitrant locks has become more the rage than ever.

The age limit has been relegated completely, as hosts of older women everywhere in Columbus join the advocates of the "shingle."

Platte Ice Expected to Hold for Week Yet

Columbus, Neb., Feb. 29.—All was quiet along the Platte and Loup rivers today as railroad employes, county supervisors and others settled down to a policy of "watchful waiting" in anticipation of the annual exodus of the ice. Except for the fact that the surface of the ice is getting blacker and the open streams are slowly widening, the rivers presented the same appearance as yesterday.

Indications are now that the ice may hold several days or even a week, though continuation of the warm weather with night temperature as high as it was last night will hasten the crisis. Supervisor Hector Blaser believes it will hold for a week or more, barring unusual exigencies.

Federated Church to Build at Columbus

Columbus, Neb., Feb. 29.—Plans for the erection of a new parsonage for the Federated (Presbyterian-Congregational) church are being made by M. D. Karr, heading a committee composed of Dr. W. S. Evans, A. R. Miller and C. C. Sheldon. Mr. Karr said today that the congregation already had $3,000 on hand, obtained through the sale of the former Congregational parsonage, which would be applied on the erection of the building.

Justice Aldrich of High Court Suffers Relapse

Lincoln, Feb. 29.—Supreme Court Justice C. H. Aldrich, former governor of Nebraska, who has been ill for several months, suffered a relapse late yesterday at the home of his son, George Aldrich, at Superior, Neb., according to word received at the state house today.

"One of America's Great Stores"

The Old Sprinkler

Remember during the days of yore when the wooden sprinkler was driven slowly down the main street.
The water, mixed with the dirt streets, spoiled many a good holiday shoe shine.
Those were the days of the dim, flickering lamp and the candle.
Electricity then was a mysterious thing which scoffers said could not be handled by Man.

However, men of vision, with the unswerving faith of the early pioneer, continued to experiment. Large sums of money were expended in uncovering that veil of mystery which enshrouded electricity.
At first electricity was a luxury, only enjoyed by the wealthy. Development was quick and today electricity is the faithful every-minute servant of everyone, regardless of wealth, religion or creed.

Omahans are very fortunate, for electric light and power rates here are practically the lowest in America
