

Business Still Light at Income Tax Office Here

Nowhere Near Usual Number of Protests This Year Against Paying, Says Collector Allen.

Do you ever stand in line waiting to get up to the table in the postoffice where the men who make out income tax reports are waiting for those who have made too much money? Well, that's not necessary this year—yet.

Those who have made enough money during the year to be required to give a little of it back to the government discover a long table on the second floor covered with blanks to be filled out.

Three or four men are seen talking together in a companionable sort of way. At the approach of a customer, one of them takes him in hand and between conversation about the weather and crop conditions, the blank is filled out before the man realizes it.

"Married? Got any children?"

Questions bring smiles.

These questions are sure to get a smile or a look of importance from young fellows just through with their first year of earning.

"It's all very easy," declare the trained accountants who aid the taxpayer. "And the majority of customers don't seem to worry very much about paying. One fellow who is paying alimony kicked because he wasn't getting any return for his money, but we told him that a wife was just like a house and lot, it was a permanent improvement, and that seemed to satisfy him."

"There isn't anywhere near the number of kicks about paying income tax this year that there has been in the past," said A. B. Allen, collector of internal revenue. "In fact, some of them feel that it's no more than right to give part of their money back to the government. Why shouldn't they? Under our system of government they have been able to amass quite a tidy sum. They should be willing to give back part of it to perpetuate that system of government."

Form May Be Modified.

"It is estimated that more than 4,000,000 persons, or 70 per cent of those who are required to file income tax returns for the year 1923, are persons whose net income was derived chiefly from salaries and wages and was $5,000 or less. Form 1040-A, heretofore used for reporting net income of $5,000 and less, from whatever source derived has been revised and simplified in the interests of this large class of taxpayers.

"Reduced to a single sheet, space conditions necessitated the omission of several questions relating to items which are provided for on the larger form, 1040. A taxpayer who uses form 1040-A, and who desires to claim credit for income tax paid at the source, may modify the form accordingly. While intended primarily for taxpayers whose net income was not more than $5,000 and was derived from salaries and wages, the use of this form is not compulsory, and the taxpayer may file form 1040 where his income is such that the larger form is more applicable.

Capital Sees Daugherty's Finish Regardless of Outcome of Trial

Mark Sullivan Declares Even Victory for Attorney General Will Not Overcome Lack of Public Confidence—Senator Walsh Held as Ideal Questioner for Committee.

By MARK SULLIVAN.

Washington, March 5.—In this Daugherty investigation much is going to depend on whether Senator Brookhart of Iowa and Senator Wheeler of Montana happen to have the particular kind of ability and temperament adapted to get the best results from a tribunal of this kind.

Senator Brookhart is chairman of the committee and Senator Wheeler is to fill the role of chief questioner. It is no exaggeration to say that the principal cause of the good results seen in the oil investigation has been the unusual combination of qualities possessed by Senator Walsh of Montana, who has the position of chief questioner for that committee. Walsh has a mind, long trained by legal contests with able adversaries, plus temperamental traits of dogged persistence accompanied by restraint of expression and manner.

The Daugherty committee has given Daugherty the right to be represented by counsel, and has allowed Daugherty's lawyers to have the privilege of "limited cross examination." This privilege is a departure from the practice of the oil committee. There is no universal senate rule about allowing counsel to appear for persons accused or for witnesses. Sometimes it is done and sometimes not. In some past cases where senate committees have given the privilege of "limited cross examination," this privilege is a departure from the practice of the oil committee. There is no universal senate rule about allowing counsel to appear for persons accused or for witnesses. Sometimes it is done and sometimes not. In some past cases where senate committees have given the privilege of "limited cross examination," this privilege is a departure from the practice of the oil committee.

Wheeler Lacks Restraint.

If these lawyers are men experienced in court work, they can sometimes do this by sheer ingenuity in the art of cross-examination and ability to take quick advantage of psychological situations as they arise. Senator Brookhart when in action seems a man of fairly placid temperament. He is a lawyer, but his experience in that profession has been far short of that of Senator Walsh. Senator Wheeler is also a lawyer with some experience as a prosecuting officer, having served five terms as federal district attorney in Montana. In some of his recent senate speeches on Daugherty, Senator Wheeler had a lack of restraint that did not help the case. For example, he said that Daugherty was a friend of Doheny, Sinclair and McLean. If Senator Wheeler had omitted the first two-thirds of that assertion, he would have been less subject to having his accuracy questioned, and if he had dwelt less on the intimacy with McLean he would have had plenty of material with which to support his allegation.

Will Probe "Ohio Crowd."

A good deal of the Daugherty investigation is expected to deal with the activities of what Washington sometimes refers to as "The Ohio crowd." By this phrase is meant a number of old friends and associates of Daugherty and some old associates of both Daugherty and Harding. According to the charges just made, a number of these men came to Washington in the trail of the Harding administration, or set themselves up elsewhere and took cases pending before various government departments. In these cases, according to the charges, the value of these men to their clients, and their capacity to get big fees, rested rather more on their presumed intimacy with Daugherty or Harding, or both, than on their real ability and experience. These stories will now be subjected to the test of examination under oath. If there is even a fraction of truth in some of them as told in the rosiest of Washington, the Daugherty investigation should reveal some things not only scandalous, but also contributing to the gawdy of nations by their dramatic quality and occasionally their amusing quality.

This particular field is only a small portion of the charges against Daugherty's competence to be head of the Department of Justice which the senate committee will investigate. It is anticipated that a part of Daugherty's defense will be in the form of turning on some of his critics and "showing up" requests made to him by senators and others for some friends who wanted jobs; and some other friends of senators or others whose pressing need was not a job,

FRANK STANLEY SAYS TANLAC MEETS TESTS

Auto Body Employee Says Health Was "Hitting Bumps" Until He Took Tanlac.

"Yes, sir, I've simply got to hand it to Tanlac. It not only ended a serious case of stomach trouble for me, but it has made me stronger and healthier than I have been in many a day." Is the appreciative statement of Frank Stanley, 5407 Rhoads Ave., Detroit, Mich., a valued employee of the Fisher Body Co.

"Before taking Tanlac my health was 'hitting the bumps,' so to speak. Indigestion had me all beset with worries. Even a partial meal would cause me intense pain and had spells of heart palpitation. I was not eating scarcely anything, couldn't sleep, and was steadily losing weight.

"But now my health is nicely balanced. My appetite and digestion seem perfect and I am off to sleep almost as soon as I crawl in bed at night. I have gained 10 pounds and feel like a '2-year-old.' Tanlac has brightened up the road for me and I am strong for it."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitutes.

Trial Will Be Daugherty's End.

It is the judgment of Washington that however Daugherty may be able to say "You're another," and even prove it, nevertheless the net result of the investigation will not reverse the lack of public confidence which rests on the judgment that Daugherty is decidedly not the best possible man for attorney general.

It is also the judgment of Washington that the Daugherty investigation will be long drawn out, and that every additional day of the length of it will be unfortunate for Coolidge. It is assumed that since Coolidge seemed unwilling to go the whole length of actually forcing Daugherty out before the investigation began, he will hardly do so now until it ends. In some quarters, at least, it is felt that every additional day of a prolonged investigation, with Daugherty still in office, will tend to give rise to a feeling that Coolidge did not share the public emotion of emergency and urgency about having the best possible man in the attorney general's office in a time of crisis when so much depended on the able and energetic carrying out of the functions of that office.

Rum Fleet Is Loaded With $8,000,000 Cargo

New York, March 5.—The Istar, leader of the rum fleet, has anchored 12 miles off the New Jersey coast. A total of $8,000,000 worth of liquor is in the cargoes of the rum fleet, it is estimated. This is expected to be sold with the opening of the spring trade.

The return of the Istar brings the fleet up to the numerical strength of the recent Christmas holiday season. Recently only six to eleven ships have swung at anchor along the new 12-mile limit, the others having been driven to sea to ride out the winter gales or to foreign ports to obtain fresh cargoes.

Alabama Senator Claims McLean Telegram Discussed President's Attitude.

Several more code telegrams were found and apparently were in the old cipher of the Department of Justice which was used in the famous "Mary" and other telegrams exchanged between McLean's employees. These will be decoded by cipher experts of the army signal corps.

There was nothing in the messages to clear up the identity of the fruits—"peaches," apples, "apricots" and "cherries"—to which there were references in telegrams already made public. Committeemen said McLean's employees would be asked as to this.

There was little communication between the Florida resort and New Orleans after Albert B. Fall, former interior secretary, moved on to the latter place where E. L. Doheny informed him of his purpose to disclose to the oil committee that Doheny had loaned him $100,000, senators said.

Seimp Referred To.

Many of the telegrams were duplicates to those already furnished the committee from Washington, but some filled in missing links. There was found the telegram from which McLean was to eliminate the odd words so as to determine its meaning.

The telegrams delivered to the committee today from Palm Beach still leaves incomplete the telegraphic records which it seeks. Messages from the New Orleans and Three Rivers, N. M., offices still are to be examined as are telegrams from the Washington offices of the two telegraph companies.

Some disagreement arose in the committee today over the admission of certain of the Palm Beach messages, but it was not indicated just what their subject matter was. Some senators took the position that they were not relevant to the inquiry, but others insisted that they were and finally carried their point.

To the Lovers of Palmolive Soap

Mere "olive oil" soaps are not like it

Many millions of women know that Palmolive Soap has brought them new beauty, new youth. The reason lies in palm and olive oils, but not in any ordinary blend.

Palm and olive oils have for ages held supreme place as cosmetics. But no one dreamed what they could do until Palmolive Soap was created. This was a unique production, based on 60 years of soap study. The result of modern scientific study of the skin.

Palmolive has become, on this account, the leading toilet soap of the world. Now it is made in five countries, to meet the worldwide demand. It is made in France, the home of fine cosmetics, because French women find no soap to compare. Old "olive oil" soaps—even real Castile—have been largely replaced by Palmolive.

Now, after all this, let no one convince you that any "olive oil" soap is much like it. Some are very crude indeed, with artificial color, and made largely of animal fat.

They will cleanse, of course. But ages have proved that they never do what Palmolive does for complexions.

Palmolive is not the only great complexion soap. We know of two that compare, but they cost 25 cents. Palmolive costs 10 cents, due to enormous production.

If you seek youth and beauty, there is only that choice—a costly soap or Palmolive. Mere so-called "olive oil" soaps cannot bring it. Let no one mislead you on this point, for any selfish purpose.
