Your Ears, Please.
More Gold—Let It Come.
That Poor Caliph.
The 19-Pound Baby.
By ARTHUR BRISBANE

There is plenty of news today, friends, Romans, countrymen, so please lend your ears. La Follette's friends will put him at the head of a third presidential ticket. He is willing and a little more. That's the latest politics.

What would happen with La Follette running as an independent republican against Coolidge as the regular republican?

The situation would find some of our "best minds" with the dollar mark in front of the mind, eagerly looking for a "safe" democrat, to whom they might transfer their affection from the republican party.

It's to be a mixed campaign. You hear a great deal about Ralston as a democratic candidate, and much about Copeland. If Al Smith should get the nomination it would puzzle the financial "best minds" not that those financial big minds object to Al Smith or have any religious prejudices. On the contrary, they would grapple him to their souls with hoops of steel. Only they are afraid he would not stay grappled. His nomination would be an experiment.

Millions more in gold came to this country yesterday, sent to Mr. Mitchell's National City bank in New York. The more the merrier. It is suggested when we get all the gold Europe will demote gold and try something else. You may dethrone the caliph of all the Moslems, but you can't dethrone old King Gold.

The Mohammedans of India, by the way, are very much worked up about that caliph and want a new one in his place.

Your jungle savage, banging his head on the ground before a wooden idol with green teeth, purple eyes and a pink nose, insists on his idol. Take it away and he loses faith. Mohammedans insist on having somebody here to represent Allah and Mohammed. They will make trouble for Kemal Pasha.

Meanwhile the kicked-out caliph has sadly set out for Switzerland, taking only two wives and one son. He couldn't come here, because only one wife could pass our virtuous frontier. You couldn't reasonably ask a caliph to drop down from many wives and 800 concubines to one single wife. What if she got a cold or broke a leg?

Housewives for miles around flock to Newton, N. J., to see Mrs. William Henion's "little boy," just born and weighing 19 pounds. Such a boy is interesting, but you ask yourself, why does Providence send a 19-pound baby to a human mother weighing 130 pounds and a 19-ounce baby to a female bear weighing 300 pounds? There's a good reason, of course, but who can understand it?

H. G. Wells tells school teachers "she and retiring souls," he calls them—to buck up, be arrogant and take hold of the world.

He says teachers alone can improve life. That's true, and that is what they have been doing ever since teaching began.

If teachers, from Socrates, Aristotle and Plato, to the young woman that teaches your little boy in the public school, hadn't "taken hold of the world," civilization wouldn't be where it is now. And, by the way, if the Catholic church had not established great universities in the "middle ages, science wouldn't be where it is now."

Hugh A. D'Arcy, who wrote that sad poem, "The Face on the Bar-room Floor," celebrated his 81st birthday yesterday. Perhaps you know the poem. Anyhow, it's too sad to print here. It will surprise you to learn that Mr. D'Arcy doesn't believe in prohibition. He says:

"I have been drinking moderately ever since I was 20 years old." That makes 61 years, and he says prohibition has made more hard drinkers than there ever was before. He thinks there is what the French call a "juste milieu" between falling dead on the barroom floor and trying to invite your soul by drinking soda pop.

Notice to American shoemakers: Your German brothers have an idea. They make shoes with uppers of platted leather strips. That makes tighter lacing possible and makes thick ankles look thinner.

There is great in well shoes, although women are foolish to hate thick ankles, as they do.

The great Bertha, whose name appears in Villon's poem about "The Snows of Yesteryear," had very thin ankles and being the but she was the mother of Charles Magagne. That's better than having very thin ankles and being the mother of a lounge lizard.

How long will it take bankers to understand that more automobiles means not extravagance, but more efficiency, more health, more saving of time, higher production at less cost, longer life?

Every dollar that bankers put into automobile production is a dollar invested in greater prosperity and greater happiness.

Isn't that a good investment? Bankers wouldn't worry if they found cornfields producing more corn. Why worry because automobile factories are producing more automobiles?

"Love Nest" Sale Settles Romance Suit

Disputed Property on Military Avenue Transferred to Wife of Woman's Attorney.

A real estate transfer Thursday was the visible evidence of settlement of the suit which grew out of the romance of William F. Schneider, widower, University Place, and Ruth Livingston, 1809 Military avenue.

He sued her in district court last October to get title to the Military avenue house, alleging that he bought it for her when she promised to marry him, but that, when she had title to the love nest, she didn't make good on the matrimonial clause of the contract.

Trial of the suit in January resulted in a verdict of a little more than $3,000 for Schneider.

Thursday the property was transferred from Ruth Livingston to Edith M. Berger, wife of John Berger, attorney, for Miss Livingston.

"The case is settled, but I don't know how much the settlement is for," said Berger. "The deed is just a matter of form."

"Yes, I believe the case is settled," said W. A. Schall, attorney for Schneider.

The "love nest" in question was bought March 3, 1921, by one Ruth Loveless for $5,900 and sold on July 10, 1923, by Ruth Loveless for $5,750 to Schneider, who deeded it to Ruth Livingston. Signatures of the two Ruths are much the same.

One Killed as Omaha Train Leaves Track

Pacific Limited on Milwaukee Wrecked by Spreading Rails Near Persia, Ia., at Early Hour.

Spreading rails wrecked the Pacific Limited Milwaukee train No. 20 bound for Chicago, two hours after it left Omaha Union station with 75 passengers Thursday morning, and Engineer Thomas Pandy of Perry, Ia., was killed.

All passengers and the remainder of the train crew escaped serious injury, according to reports reaching Omaha. The wreck occurred just east of Persia, Ia., 35 miles east and north of Omaha at 2 Thursday morning. The train left Union station here at 12:30, carrying, as far as is known, only two Omaha passengers.

All cars of the train were derailed except the observation car. The engine turned completely over on its side, and Engineer Pandy was found dead, partially buried under dirt which had been scraped up by the plunging engine.

Fireman Charles Warner of Perry, Ia., received only minor bruises. He was thrown from the cab of the engine clear of danger. He said he heard a crash, felt the sensation of being hurled through the air, felt a shock and then found himself lying on the ground many feet from the wreck. He was taken to a Perry hospital.

Although several passengers received minor bruises all were able to continue their journey to Chicago on a special train formed at Manilla to accommodate them.

The Milwaukee was detouring its trains over Northwestern tracks this morning and reported little delay. The track was cleared and repaired by Thursday afternoon.

The train, all steel, was made up of baggage car, a mail car, one coach, one tourist sleeper, one standard sleeper, a diner and an observation car, which also contained berths. It was en route from San Francisco to Chicago.

Report that a tramp was killed in the crash was not verified.

Is Age Controlled by Glands?

Dr. Serge Voronoff of France, famous physician and surgeon, who has devoted years to research and experimentation with glandular treatment, says: "A man is worth only as much as his glands."

Dr. Arnold Lorand says in his book, "Old Age Deferred," in speaking of the glands: "We must insist upon the reinforcement of their functions if changed by age or disease by means of extracts obtained from the similar organs of healthy animals."

The new scientific formula—Glandogen—embodies this method. Glandogen is a highly concentrated gland compound in convenient, compact tablet form which combines the important extracts of the vital glands of healthy young animals with other efficacious ingredients. Hundreds of keen-eyed men and women are today taking Glandogen.

Glandogen can be obtained at Sherman & McConnell, 16th and Dodge, 16th and Harney, 19th and Farnam, 24th and Farnam.
