Notions Vary About Club House

The two sites for a clubhouse which especially vie for favor with members of the Omaha Woman's club are the two lots on Thirty-first avenue near Farnam street, facing Curtis Turner park, and the McHugh property on Twenty-fourth and Dodge streets. In both of these places, and indeed in the rest of the sites submitted by the committee, it is the lots and not the buildings which are being considered, as a new clubhouse would have to be erected on any of them.

Opinion seems to be divided between the two sites. The property on Thirty-first avenue has the special recommendation of the club committee headed by Mrs. C. M. Piampel and containing a number of prominent members of the club. Of members outside the committee, they express an opinion. Mrs. Horace J. Holmes regards this site as the "best possibility of all." Mrs. A. H. Ward thinks the site chosen should be somewhere between Leavenworth and Cumine streets, west of Twenty-fourth street, but not too far. She approves of the Curtis Turner park site but inclines a little more toward the three lots south of the A. E. Jonas residence, also on Thirty-first avenue.

On the other hand, a preference for the closer in sites, especially the McHugh property, is evident among many members.

Mrs. L. M. Lord, Mrs. N. K. Sype, Mrs. John R. Golden, all express a

SULPHUR IS BEST TO CLEAR UP UGLY, BROKEN OUT SKIN

Any breaking out or skin irritation on face, neck or body is overcome quickest by applying Mentho-Sulphur, says a noted skin specialist. Because of its germ destroying properties, nothing has ever been found to take the place of this sulphur preparation that instantly brings ease from the itching, burning and irritation.

Mentho-Sulphur heals eczema right up, leaving the skin clear and smooth. It seldom fails to relieve the torment or disfigurement. A little jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur may be obtained at any drug store. It is used like cold cream.

sore throat

Don't neglect it. Begin gargling at once with one teaspoonful of Zonite in a quarter-glass of water. Gargle every half hour until all discomfort has disappeared. If patches exist, swab them with pure Zonite and consult a physician immediately.

Zonite is probably the most remarkable antiseptic that medical science has ever given us. It surely does kill germs without injuring the delicate throat tissues. Positively non-poisonous, hence, safe to use. Your druggist has it.

Zonite KILLS GERMS

BEFORE TWINS WERE BORN

Was Very Miserable. Felt Lots Better After Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Wyoena, Wis.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound because my stomach was so bad, and I had been sick so long. I felt better after taking it. I took three bottles and a half bottle. I was confined and finished the bottle while I was in bed. I got up feeling fine and have taken care of the twins alone ever since. I recommend the Vegetable Compound highly and will sing its praises in the future."

—Mrs. IDA GERBETZ, Wyoena, Wis.

It is remarkable how many cases have been reported similar to this one. Many mothers are left in a weakened and run-down condition after child-birth, and for such mothers the care of the baby is well-nigh impossible. Not only is it hard for the mother, but the child itself will indirectly suffer. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is an excellent tonic for the mother both before and after child-birth. It is prepared from medicinal roots and herbs, and can be taken in safety by nursing mothers.

personal preference for the McHugh property at Twenty-fourth and Dodge streets, as a more central location. "The Dodge street site is at its worst now and will grow better as the Joslyn art gallery and other buildings are built there," said Mrs. Sype. "The Thirty-first avenue property, in my opinion, is likely to be swallowed up in a business district."

Mrs. Golden approves of either of the two favorite sites but prefers the one closer in because "a better interest is aroused when the women go down town."

Mrs. R. H. Landeryou is not satisfied with any of the locations suggested Monday and would rather have a clubhouse in the business district. The sites near Farnam street make it hard for women from the northern and southern parts of town to attend, she objects. Mrs. Allen Koch favors a downtown location.

Members of the clubhouse committee and some members of the administration did not seem to commit themselves. Many club members are wholly undecided, as the snow preventing them from attending the meeting Monday and hearing the arguments of the committee.

Bauer Plays State Music Convention in April

Grand Island, Neb. The Nebraska Music Teachers' association will meet here for its eighth annual convention April 21, 22, and 23. A program of very practical importance to music teachers is being outlined by the committee and officers in charge. The three days of meeting will be filled with conferences, concerts, business sessions and addresses on subjects of interest to musicians. There will also be a number of social affairs.

Among the lecturers scheduled to address the convention are S. Mille Hayes of Nebraska university and Charles B. Watt, Chicago, editor of the Music News. The St. Cecilia society, music department of the Women's club of Grand Island, has co-operated with the association by engaging Harold Bauer, nationally known pianist, to appear in a recital April 22, the evening of the second day of the convention. As this is Mr. Bauer's only recital in the state this season, the St. Cecilia society expects the attraction to draw a large number of musicians and music lovers from all parts of the state.

The conferences are to be distinguished features of this year's meeting. It is said. Round table discussions regarding teaching of voice, piano, violin and organ are to occupy a part of two days, with two conferences in each section. All of the conference outlines will have a certain uniformity which is designed to aid teachers in getting hold of the relative bearing and importance of the various matters discussed, some of which will be brought up for consideration at the general sessions of the conference. The conference chairmen are: Voice, Fred G. Elias, Omaha; piano, Mrs. Forrest I. Shoemaker, Fremont; violin, Roy A. Peterson, Chadron; organ, Mrs. Louise Shaduck Zabriskie, Omaha.

Among those who will take part in the concerts and recitals, so far planned are: Martin Buntz and Henry Cox, Omaha; Lillian Helms, Pfluey and Marguerite Klinker, Lincoln, and Richard Yarnell, Chadron, who will bring the Glee club and normal trio from the state normal college of that city.

Wayne Choral Clubs Gives Comic Opera.

Wayne, Neb., March 19.—A large audience greeted the choral club and the orchestra on the evening of March 11, when the comic opera, "The Pirates of Penzance," was played under the direction of Prof. Leon F. Beery of the department of music. This is the first attempt of the sort in the history of the institution and was accounted a marked success. The costuming, staging and special scenery painted by R. C. Hahlbeck and Prof. E. J. Hunter were all very attractive, while the singing and acting were excellent for any group of amateurs. The principal parts were as follows:

Samuel, Lieutenant to Pirate King—Eric Wade Beemer.
Pirate King—Lawrence Campbell, Stockville.
Frederic, a Pirate Apprentice—Elmer Corbit, Maquett.
Ruth, Frederic's Former Nursery Maid—Frances Beckenbush, Wayne.
Edith, Kate, Isabel and Nabal, General Stanley's Daughters—Eva Clifton, Orchard; Ruth Adams, Creighton; Genevieve King, Lehigh; and Emily Burton, Elgin.
Major General Stanley—Ralph Robertson, Cabland.
Mistress of Police—Neil Georghson, Tekamah.

A beautiful entr'acte was the dances, an interpretation from "La Source" ballet, by the rhythmic classes of Mrs. Leon F. Beery of the department of physical education.

In the next issue of the intelligent voter, Mrs. Davis said, the answers to questionnaires sent out by the league to the candidates in the coming primaries will appear.

The Plans That Alfred Made Possible.

I tried in vain to keep out of my face the staid face which Lillian's words gave me, though I was able to suppress the exclamation which rose to my lips. But I knew that she had seen my uneasiness when she laid a warm reassuring hand over mine. "Well muddle through," she said confidently. "Don't spend your energies worrying. You have something else to do."

"She paused and I ventured a query. "Do you mean they know where the children are?"

"Not yet," she replied, "but they will soon. This forenoon when I had shipped Mamma and her brothers back to Bridgehampton—I sent Marion along too, for I need every second unhampered—and had made certain preparations which we may need before night. I got a message through to Mrs. Bird and reply from her. From it I learned that you were in the city shopping, and that the police have been requested to seek traces of the children.

"What a startled frown look, my dear!" she smiled reassuringly. "That doesn't mean a strong-armed cop is going to nab you. The police haven't any powers in this matter yet, praise be! But it does mean that I underestimated that detective and the people back of him. He comes from some agency which is able to enlist police aid in locating the whereabouts of people. Speed is what we need now, and a few red herrings. If only Alfred had turned the trick. Here's the station now, and I've told you almost everything I know. The rest can wait until we have seen Alfred."

Favorable News.

We experienced no delay on the subway, and when we alighted at the station Mrs. Bird's driver had named, and we had climbed the stairs to the street, I had traveled to see the car in which I had relayed from Flushing drawn up to the opposite curb with the youth himself at the wheel, but there was no sign of Alfred. My wrist watch told me that it lacked only two minutes of the two hours I had named, and which Alfred had greeted rather incredulously, while deplaining his own inability to be at the rendezvous. I would have been devoid of all feminine malice if I had not been glad that no hurried exit from the subway was five minutes after the hour named, and that his glance at me showed his remembrance of his boast.

There was something else in his face, something which made me ask excitedly: "Did I get them?" he returned, stressing the verb. "Look—"

Lillian opened the car door. "Get in here, everybody," she said

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action: it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to consumption. Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga.

and let's drive along while we talk." We obeyed her, and the driver looked expectantly at me. "Drive in the general direction of Flushing," I said, "keeping as near to street car transportation as you can, so that these people can easily return to the city when they wish."

"I get you," he said, and turned back to the wheel, while Alfred sawed called for the passage of six people upon a steamer whose name I never had heard.

"It's a pretty good boat," Alfred said with a note of pardonable pride. "and I think they'll be most comfortable."

"When can they go on board?" Lillian asked.

"Tonight," Lillian looked at her watch. "Luckily it gets dark early," she commented. "Got anything on for the rest of the afternoon?"

"Now Don't Worry."

"Not a thing I can't shelve," he returned, and I saw his eyes brighten at the implied suggestion of exciting action in Lillian's question. "I have work at the office which I told mother and Lelia would keep me from leaving, but it can wait, so I am at your service, madame, for as long as you wish."

"It may be some service," she said dryly, then she turned to me.

"Tell your man to draw up at the curb while I write a note to Mrs. Bird," she commanded. "She'll want to see my first before she carries out these instructions."

I obeyed her suggestion, and for three minutes she wrote rapidly, then folded the paper and gave it to me.

"Get to Mrs. Bird's as quickly as you can," she said "and have every body ready to start from there as soon as it gets good and dark. There's no moon tonight, praise be. Mrs. Bird will do the rest at that end, and Alfred and I will stage the stunt here. Have the man take us over to the station pronto."

The driver did not wait for the command, but whirled the car swiftly about, and in record time deposited them at their destination. There was something indomitably comforting to me in Lillian's parting gesture, and her farewell words.

"Now beat it to Flushing and don't worry."
