

Omaha Stockmen Visit Galveston

Gate City Delegation Taken Through Cotton Plant—Guests of C. of C.

Special Dispatch to The Omaha Bee. Galveston, Tex., March 20.—Corn and cotton met today when Omaha stockmen, touring Texas to secure increased shipments of southern cattle to fatten on Nebraska corn, arrived at Galveston, heart of the cotton country.

While the four-gallon soppers of the Omahans attracted attention on the city streets, the Omahans in turn attracted the interest as truckload after truckload of southern cotton lumbered past.

The visitors were taken through a cotton packing plant and were entertained as guests of the Galveston Chamber of Commerce. The program included a boat trip on the gulf.

"Great White Way" Is New Rialto Picture

The Rialto theater will make a change in its picture program Saturday.

"The Great White Way" originally scheduled to start Sunday, has been advanced a day and will be the feature picture of the program, beginning with Saturday. "Icebound" will be withdrawn after today.

Fourth Cavalry Squadron Ordered to Fort Meade

Special Dispatch to The Omaha Bee. Sturgis, S. D., March 20.—Telegram was received this afternoon by Mayor Atwater from Senator Sterling's secretary at Washington stating that the secretary of war had ordered transfer of the first squadron of the Fourth Cavalry to Fort Meade from Fort Sam Houston, Texas, and that it would arrive here about May 1. The Fourth Cavalry formerly was stationed at Fort Meade.

Men Who Are Making Omaha

A graceful, genial, fluent after-dinner speaker, as well as a dignified and witty toastmaster was born in Richardson county, Nebraska, in 1876.

His parents had settled there 20 years before, and when James R. Cain, jr., came to bless the home, it was under a happy star.

Mr. Cain prefers being thought of as a banker. Were it not for this, he might have achieved such fame in the other role as would be the envy of many who have sought for it.

As it is, he is much asked for, and does give a great deal of his well occupied time to making public addresses.

Mr. Cain attended the public schools at Falls City until he was graduated from the high school, and then took a position in a bank at Stella, where he remained until he came to Omaha in 1914.

He is now managing vice president of the Peters National bank of this city, and is interested in, as director or shareholder, five other financial institutions of the state. He served as president of the Nebraska Bankers' association and as vice president for Nebraska of the American Bankers' association.

While at Stella he was mayor of the town and president of the board of education. He also represented Richardson county in both branches of the legislature, and generally has taken an active interest in public affairs.

Outside of banking, he has given much of his time to Masonry, having had the distinction of being grand master of the fraternity for Nebraska. In Scottish Rite Masonry he has risen to the 33d degree, and is now master of Nebraska, consistory.

Mr. Cain is a member of the Chamber of Commerce, the Omaha Athletic club, Ak-Sar-Ben and other local institutions. He is never too busy to take his full share in any work that is being done for the good of Omaha.

Beatrice—Mrs. W. H. Ruyle, pioneer of Gage county, died at a hospital here. A few years ago she constructed one of the finest homes in Gage county at her farm, costing in the neighborhood of $20,000. She is survived by a number of children, all grown.

Local Laf Editor Wants to See Wits Joke Way to Fame

Have you submitted your jokes to the Local Laf editor of The Omaha Bee? Don't delay. Others are winning the weekly cash awards. So may you.

For the best jokes each week The Omaha Bee is offering a first prize of $5, second, $3; third, $2 and 12 additional prizes of $1 each. The prize-winning jokes, with names of their authors, appear on the screens of the Sun and Suburban theaters of Omaha and the Strand in Council Bluffs.

The Omaha Bee wants to find out who are the humorists of Omaha and the money goes to them as rewards. There is the additional thrill of having your name on the screen where thousands will read your prize joke and comment on it, as is being done with the jokes which already have won prizes.

Brevity Soul of Wit. Remember, the jokes must be original and each must be written within 30 words. Brevity continues to be the soul of wit. Have a kick in your joke.

Write a Laf and achieve fame. Some are born famous, some achieve fame and others have fame thrust upon them. The Local Laf Editor is trying to thrust fame upon those who can write jokes with a punch.

If you have already sent in jokes, and have not seen them on the screen or in this column, don't lose heart. Write more and send them in.

It's lots of fun and you can make it remunerative.

Runners Up. In addition to the jokes which win the cash prizes each week, three jokes deserving honorable mention are published in this column every day. Today's are:

Tourist—Shall I take this road to Binzville?

Native—It is not necessary; they already have one there.

Bert Johnson, 4533 South Nineteenth street.

Teacher—Tell me what you know about the Mongolian race.

Ernest—I wasn't there; I went to the Harvard-Brown game.

Philip Studeny, 2532 Washington street.

Young Lady—How do you like the new school?

Little Boy—Not very well, because the teacher made me wash my face and the dog bit me because he didn't know me.

Sophie Czerniak, 4530 South Fortieth street.

Local Lafs in New Theaters

Three more Omaha theaters are to flash Local Lafs, edited by The Omaha Bee, on the screen.

The Victoria theater will run the first reel of Local Lafs on March 22, and will show them thereafter each Saturday.

On March 24, the Benalto theater in Benson will have Local Lafs as one of its features. Local Lafs will appear at the Benalto regularly each Monday.

The Grand theater will use Local Lafs three days each week, beginning with March 30. The Grand will play this feature Sunday, Monday and Tuesday each week.

Nothing to Rumors That Coolidge May Be Dropped in Convention--Sullivan

Declares That Regardless of Johnson Gains President Will Have Two-Thirds of the Delegates at Cleveland in June and Though Uninstructed Will Stick Together.

By MARK SULLIVAN. Washington, March 20.—It would have made no difference which ever way North Dakota went. Coolidge is bound to have a considerable majority of the delegates who meet at Cleveland on June 8. It will make no difference if Johnson carries South Dakota next Tuesday, which is the next of these early republican primaries. There is no expectation of Johnson making a strong showing there than in the case of North Dakota; but even if Johnson should carry South Dakota overwhelmingly, it would make no difference as between him and Coolidge.

These early Dakota primaries have no such index value as they have had in other years, because the conditions are different. If Johnson should carry every one of the states in which he has an active organization and every delegate he goes after, he would have in the aggregate less than one-third of the delegates, and Coolidge would have all the rest, except La Follette's handful from Wisconsin and a scattering few others. It was never the theory of Johnson and his managers that they could get a majority of the delegates.

Johnson's Theory Unsound. Their theory was first, to prove that Johnson could get more delegates than Coolidge in a limited number of selected states in the west; and then to say to the republican party managers, "We have shown you that Coolidge is not popular among the republican voters and that our man is therefore take our man." That was the basis of Johnson's candidacy; and it is most unsound.

Even if Johnson should make the demonstration he hoped to make, it would have been a vicarious labor in behalf of some third man, for the La Follette's threat to have an independent republican ticket. La Follette expects to say to the republican managers, in effect: "Take my platform and my candidate, or I will bolt and thereby make democratic success certain." La Follette can have no hope that the republican leaders will take his candidate, but he has hoped of making them compromise on his platform, or a part of it, which to a certain extent, the republican leaders may be willing to do. As regards the candidate, when the convention comes, fully two-thirds of the delegates are going to be for Coolidge. Theoretically, it would be possible for the republican managers to "sway" Coolidge at that time. The reason is that while fully two-thirds of the delegates will be "for Coolidge" in a loose sense, they will not be "instructed" for him in any rigid sense.

Will Lack Organization. The delegates will be "for Coolidge" but they will not belong to Coolidge as such as they will belong to the republican leaders in the various states. This is always the case when delegates are not selected in a hotly contested primary fight, but are chosen largely by arrangements among the local leaders, without much regard to an indifferent public sentiment.

The delegates will be "for Coolidge," but their primary allegiance will be to the state leaders of the republican organization. Under these circumstances, it is theoretically possible for the leaders when they come together at the convention, to drop Coolidge and name someone else. Just lately there have been rumors that this would be done. There will be more such rumors during the next 12 weeks.

One specific rumor lately was that the leaders would drop Coolidge in behalf of Lowden of Illinois. The writer has looked into these rumors with some care, and there is nothing in them. The program is to nominate Coolidge on the first ballot. An it has been put in a not very elegant, but nevertheless expressive phrase: "If the republican nomination is worth anything it must be given to Coolidge; if it is not worth anything it must be left to his tail and he must run with it."

Siefkin Slaying Bobs Up at Trial of Aughe Slayer County Attorney Henry Beal announced yesterday that during the trial of Joe Guzweck on a charge of killing Detective Frank Aughe, investigation will be made of Guzweck's whereabouts on the day of the slaying of Charles and Robert Siefkin in an oil station holdup in May, 1921.

Beal declares that Guzweck answers the description of the man who shot and killed the Siefkins.

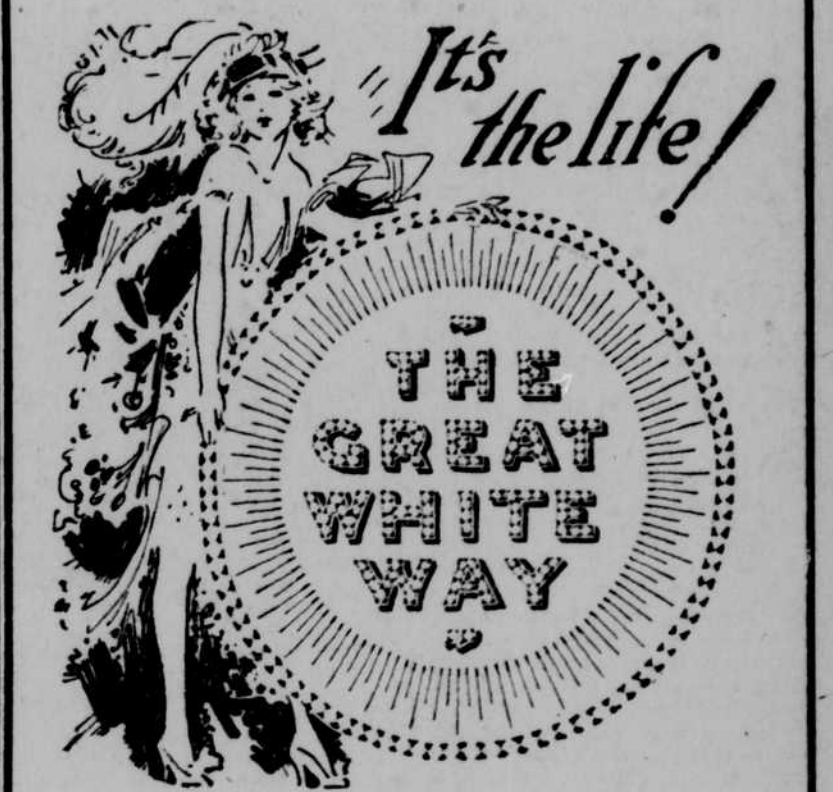

New Follies Show Is Coming Here

After many years, Omaha at last is to see one of Ziegfeld's celebrated Follies productions. The new Follies have been booked for the Brandeis theater for a three-day engagement in April.

It has been 15 years since the Follies have played in Omaha. Incidentally, the performance will mark a new record for admission prices. In making the engagement in New York, Ziegfeld insisted the contract call for a first floor price of $4.40. Heretofore $3.55 was the highest price ever charged at the Brandeis. But Ziegfeld gets $4.40 in New York and he insists his show must charge that much every place else.

Olaf Alman Funeral. Funeral services for Olaf Alman, 61, carpenter at the Union Pacific shops, who died Tuesday at his home, 3336 Maple street, will be held Friday, 2 p. m., at the Duffy & Johnson funeral home. He is survived by his wife, two sons and two daughters.
