

Electrical Show Here Next Fall

Nebraska Power Co. to Sponsor Mammoth Exposition Showing Progress.

Omaha is to have an electrical exposition this fall. It is to be one of the most comprehensive shows of its kind ever held, rivaling the electrical expositions even of New York and Chicago.

It will be a joint memorial to Charles P. Steinmetz, the late electrical wizard, and to the 40th anniversary of the Nebraska Power Co.

Some of the biggest men in the electrical industry will be in Omaha at this time, and the show will attract national attention.

The holding of this big exposition in Omaha is a recognition of the growth of the use of electricity in the homes, both city and country.

To that end the show will give special attention to electrical appliances as used in the home, but in addition opportunity will be taken to exhibit the marvels accomplished by Steinmetz, just before his death.

His artificial thunder and lightning will be shown. There will also be the latest inventions in radio.

The announcement of the Omaha Electrical exposition, which will be held during the week of November 18 and 19, was made today by Mr. J. E. Davidson, vice president and general manager of the Nebraska Power company, who returned Monday morning from New York.

For several days Mr. Davidson was in conference with officials of the National Electric Light association, making plans for the affair.

The Municipal auditorium has been reserved for the show. Should this space prove insufficient a nearby building and probably some street space will be used.

"When the Nebraska Power company was organized," Davidson said, "speaking of the exposition, 'electricity was looked on as a mild scheme that would soon prove impractical. The company has not only grown to be a necessity, but the entire industry has advanced by strides that seem unbelievable.'"

"It is because of the success of the profession and the success of the company that this exposition has been planned."

Exhibits showing what has been done in the electrical world will be a feature of the show.

19 was made today by Mr. J. E. Davidson, vice president and general manager of the Nebraska Power company, who returned Monday morning from New York.

TO BE TRIED ON SHOOTING CHARGE

Special Dispatch to The Omaha Bee

Mexico, Mo., March 24.—Howard Conger, traveling salesman of Lincoln, Neb., who was shot in the left breast March 1 by Rev. Asa Q. Burns, was discharged today from the Amanda hospital where he had been confined since the tragedy. He will recuperate at the home of his friends, formerly of Lincoln, Mr. and Mrs. L. N. Henderson.

Rev. Mr. Burns, his pretty wife and his child left several weeks ago for Chicago, where he will continue his studies. The state has filed suit against Rev. Mr. Burns, charging him with assault with intent to kill, and the case has been set for the June term of the Audrain county circuit court.

Former Beatrice Man Hurt In Crash at Kansas City

Special Dispatch to The Omaha Bee

Beatrice, Neb., March 24.—Elbert Hammett, formerly of this city, was seriously injured in an auto-street collision at Kansas City, according to a report received here. His skull was fractured, his jaw broken and he was otherwise injured. He is a brother of C. E. Hammett of this city, district deputy of the Modern Woodmen of America.

D. L. D. to be Improved Through Phelps County

Holdrege, March 24.—At the last meeting of the county board of supervisors voted to meet the government appropriation for good roads and the D. L. D. will be graded through Phelps county the coming summer. Grading will begin as soon as the weather will permit.

AT THE THEATERS

Al Jolson will be seen in his banquet of song and feast of jollity, "Bombo," at the Brandeis theater for four days starting next Monday, March 31, with matinee Wednesday.

He was seen in this musical extravaganza, "Bombo," at the Al Jolson theater and Winter garden, New York, for a considerable stretch. It seemed hardly possible that he could repeat the enormous success made by him in "Sinbad," but "Bombo" has been acclaimed as an even more diverting piece supplying even a greater variety of entertainment.

Johnny Burke, in "Drafted," is presenting a side-splitting monologue, the trials and tribulations at the Orpheum theater this week. Burke tells of his world war experiences covering the period from the time he was "invited to the fight" by the late Mr. Wilson until he was advanced to the "rear ranks" where I met the general.

The Courtney Sisters are delighting big audiences at the World this week with their harmony singing. Not the least important feature of the act is the assistance given the sisters by the "ultra string quartet." Frank A. Burt, the fluting buffoon, is the unquestioned laugh hit of the bill, his comedy and eccentric dancing being of the highest order. Other features of "syncopeation week" include Robinson's band, 16 of Dixie's liveliest syncopators.

Beautifully staged and telling a consistent musical comedy story, "A Husband for a Night," now current at the New Empress, is meeting with hearty reception. The Bert Smith Players have made a big impression here and are scheduled for a long and prosperous stay. Vi Shaffer, Billy Van Allen, Melvin and Curtis, Flo Desmond, the Orleole Trio and others are proving favorites.

Helen Spencer, who with George Niblo is featured in Hurlitz and Sea, man's "Step On It" at the Gayety theater this week, is an excellent comedienne, a fine singer and dancer and always displays a marvelous wardrobe of the latest fashionable gowns. Apart from the burlesque, and as a special added attraction, Horace Goldin, magician, presents his amazing illusion, "Radio Film Telepathy." In the illusion the moving picture screen is used to produce some awe-inspiring results and it is declared that Goldin's demonstrations are the last word in exploitations of the magician's art.

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a Harmless Substitute

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. These little olive-colored tablets are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel.

The pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why hurt the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids. It is best not to take calomel. Let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

Headaches, "dizziness" and that lousy feeling come from constipation and a liver ordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "lousy" and "heavy." They "clear" the brain and "perk up" the entire system and give you a new life and vigor.

Adele Garrison "My Husband's Love"

How the Problem of the Children's Packing Was Solved.

"There's one thing certain," Harriet said as we began to undo the bundles I had brought with me from the city. "We shall have to pack all over again. Some of the things I brought with me from the farm will have to be left, for we can't be hampered in that small boat. You can keep them for me until I get back."

She spoke as unconcernedly as if she were preparing for a week-end trip, instead of an uncertain sojourn in a South American country, while she waited for the slow process of the law to give her legal guardianship of her dead sister's children, and again I marveled at the transformation which those orphaned childish figures had made in my state, self-centered sister-in-law. All the meticulous details of her sheltered life appeared to have been scattered. She was as willing to rough it in this bizarre expedition as any romantic, adventurous bride might be in anticipating a wilderness honeymoon.

"You won't have to leave many things," I reassured her as we opened the last package. "Come here, children, and let me see how many more articles of clothing you can put on you and still leave you able to walk."

Mary Harrison and her brothers rushed across the room at the invitation, and the small Roderick's eyes were no rounder, his face no more filled with anticipation than were those of his older sister. She patiently was dramatizing the whole situation and Harriet, Edwin and I exchanged several smiles across her unconscious head.

Why Dr. Braithwaite Laughed. "There," I said at last, when we had arrayed every child in two outfits of everything except shoes, hats and coats, and—indeed we had invested each with a sweater beneath the coat—"I can get the rest of their clothing in one suitcase. If you can put their brushes and combs and toothbrushes in your bag and perhaps—I mentally measured my packing space—two pairs of shoes in your bag."

"I'll have to," she said grimly. "Edwin and I will share a suitcase for the first time in our lives. What on earth is the matter, Edwin?"

For Dr. Braithwaite had doubled his suit figure up as if he had been attacked with a sudden convulsion. Then he burst into the heartiest laugh I ever had heard from his lips, and kept his merriment up until Harriet and I followed the example of the children, who, with puzzled faces, had joined him at the first outburst.

"I was just wondering," he said chokingly, wiping his eyes, "whether Harriet was going to make me wear two suits of everything also."

He gestured feebly toward the children, who resembled nothing quite so much as trussed fawns, as they sat in the chairs where he had placed them when we had finished.

"I haven't decided yet," his wife retorted with a grim little smile. "It might be a salutary experience for you, at that. Come, boys, help each other to get off your overcoats and sweaters. We just wanted to see whether you could wear them over your double suits. Here, sweetheart."

"How Can I Tell?" She bent over the small Roderick and removed his outdoor clothing, gently, while I helped Mary.

"Take them all to that corner over there, Mary," my sister-in-law directed. "It's the farthest away from the fire," she explained to me, and then she turned to her husband briskly. "If you'll just go through this suitcase of yours and see what you can leave behind," she said, "I'll repack everything."

The big physician scowled, not ill-naturedly, but I knew that irritated, puzzled, masculine frown. Dicky wears it whenever he is asked to do anything about arranging his luggage save throwing things at random into a bag and crowding them down with a strenuous right arm. That Harriet had always packed his things I knew, and I was surprised to hear her make the request. It was an unheard-of thing for the routine comfort of the famous surgeon to be interrupted.

"How can I tell what I'll need?" he asked helplessly. "I suppose I'll have to take everything."

what I always do. You know what those things are. "Not for this trip," Harriet replied crisply. "And I haven't any time to plan for you. Here"—she had undone the straps of the suitcase as she spoke and she now lifted the contents and spread them on the bed—"make your selection quickly. I can take about half of this stuff, so you can judge for yourself what you can leave behind."

KEISER APPEAL COMES UP TODAY

Wahoo, Neb., March 24.—Appeal from the recent decision of the Saunders county court appointing a guardian for Levi Keiser, 73, whose marriage to Mrs. Irene C. Buell resulted in a suit by Keiser's relatives charging incompetency, will be held here Tuesday. District Judge Fred Shepherd of Lincoln will preside.

The appeal centers around the refusal of the county court to accept as testimony affidavits by two physicians, testifying Keiser's sanity and competency. The court drew a distinction between "mental" competency and "business" competency, which Keiser's counsel claims is unwarranted.

Testimony at the first hearing of the case was to the effect that Keiser imagined himself irresistible to the women, and that he had suddenly changed from a thrifty, frugal man into a careless and lavish spender.

Everybody has at least one favorite joke. That's the one to send to the Local Lat Editor, The Omaha Bee.
