WESTERN UNION HAS GOOD YEAR

New York, March 26.—Gross operating revenues of the Western Union Telegraph company in 1923, totaled $111,733,560, exceeded only by those of 1920, a year of unprecedented general prosperity, the annual report stated today.

Operating expenses, including taxes were $97,712,714. An appropriation of $2,000,000 was made for development of ocean cables, which, with interest payments on the company's bond, left a balance transferred to the surplus account of $11,608,806. After payment of nearly $7,000,000 in dividends, surplus at the end of 1923 totaled $31,814,706, an increase of nearly $5,000,000 over the year before.

Newcomb Carlton, president, emphasized that land line and cable messages were handled for the government by the company in 1923 at $749,000, less than the cost of operations, and $254,000 less than the year before.
