100 Shots Fired in Engagement

Proprietor of Stationery Store Barricades Self and Fights to the Death.

New York, April 2.—Watched by a gaping crowd of 1,000 upper East Side residents, James Boland, a crazed man, barricaded behind the door of his stationery store, exchanged more than 100 shots with seven policemen Tuesday night before he was mortally wounded.

Throughout the fight, which lasted 15 minutes, his wife stood in a small room with her two small children behind her, almost in direct range of the fusillade from the attacking policemen's guns.

Boland, 37 years old, went insane from brooding over the suicide of his father a week ago. He rushed into the store from the living quarters at the rear and fired at his wife, who ran screaming with her children to the back room. Boland then sent a bullet crashing through the door at a curious passerby who looked in.

The stranger ran to a policeman, at whom Boland sent a volley of shots, compelling the officer to send for aid. Six other policemen joined in the attack.

Boland finally was brought down with a shot in the head, but even then was able to rise on one elbow as the police advanced and fire a last shot at their leader. It whizzed by his ear.

Bullets passed through the clothes of all the attacking policemen, but none was hit.

Weeks Named in Air Hearing

Indictment of New Cabinet Officer Urged by Witness Before Committee.

Washington, April 2.—Another cabinet officer was dragged into the spotlight of the Daugherty investigation today when Capt. H. L. Scaife, former agent of the Department of Justice, charged before the Wheeler-Brookhart committee that Secretary of War John W. Weeks and former Attorney General Harry M. Daugherty should be indicted for conspiracy to obstruct justice because of the failure of the government to prosecute a war-fraud case against the Wright-Martin airplane company.

Scaife declared Charles Hayden, president of the Wright-Martin company, and Guy D. Goff, former assistant attorney general, were "equally guilty" and should be indicted. He charged that these four were in a "conspiracy to give out false statements about the Wright-Martin company in direct violation of federal statutes."

The child, too small and frail to climb unaided into the big witness chair, presented a pitiable sight in the courtroom. Her face and body were covered with scars from burns and bruises, she said, at the hands of her drunken stepmother, Anna Benton.

The child related how she had been "doubled up and her feet drawn against her head," when her mother shoved her into the hot oven. At another time she was suspended by the thumbs and lashed until she fainted, the child said.
