Helen Sunderland Weds Fred Curtis

At a very lovely spring wedding solemnized Wednesday evening, Helen Sunderland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Sunderland, and Fred Curtis, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Curtis, were united in marriage by the Rev. A. A. De Larme of the First Baptist church.

The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride's parents. A trellis wound with smilax and pink roses was formed in the doorway between the living and sun rooms, and in this the bridal couple met and were wed. Palms flanked the doorway, and behind it Miss Florence Rhoades, pianist, played the wedding march, accompanied by Miss Marie Swanson, harpist.

The bride's sisters, Ruth and Alice, were her only attendants.

They were gowned alike in ciel blue chiffon and silver, and carried bouquets of pink roses and white sweet peas.

The bride wore white crepe back satin, fashioned in a tight bodice with boat neck, and cap sleeves of chantilly lace, and in a full skirt, wired out at the hips, and draped in chantilly. The same lace was used as a coronet to hold her tulle veil, which rippled down her long court train.

She carried a shower bouquet of lilies, roses, sweet peas and lilies of the valley.

Lee Davis, of Pasadena, Cal., a fraternity brother of Mr. Curtis in Occidental college of Los Angeles, Cal., served Mr. Curtis as best man.

A. D. Cloud and John Sunderland, brother of the bride, were ushers. At the reception which followed the ceremony Mrs. Sunderland was assisted by Mrs. Burton Howard, Misses Emma and Ethel Fullaway, Jean Field, Eleanor Slabaugh, Margaret Howes, Zoe Schaleck and Dorothy Layle.

Mrs. Sunderland was very lovely in a gown of gray georgette, beaded in blue, and Mrs. Curtis most attractive in black lace.

The young couple have gone on a honeymoon to Washington, D. C., and New York, and will be at home after May 1 in the St. George.

Out-of-town guests included Mrs. John H. Morrell of Ottumwa, Ia.; Miss Margaret Coulter and Allan Sunderland of Kansas City, Mrs. J. R. Cosgrove, Mrs. W. W. Gale and Miss Naomi Friday of Chicago.

Perhaps the most conspicuous change in the silhouette is gained by a clever use of tuck pleats which, in the narrow skirted suits, is not only smart but an ally to the small "splits" designed to insure a graceful gait for the wearer.

Your Problems

by Martha Allen

Proving His Love

Dear Miss Allen: Your advice helps many of us, in fact, your advice helped me in my first case, so I am coming to you again. Now, over a year ago, I went with a girl steady, and we almost became engaged to be married, but somehow things changed, for she told me a few things to do before she'd marry me. Really she told me something that was good for both of us, but some of her questions will take more time than I thought it would, so now we don't go together, but we still are good friends, and in the meantime I look up the things she wanted me to do, but I don't think she knows that I did. Now, Miss Allen, I do care for this girl more than anything else in the world and I want her to know that I am doing this for her, but how can I tell her? Now, please advise me as you did once before and it will be appreciated. Will close with best wishes and good luck to you.

ONE WHO CARES

You are giving this girl the best proof in the world that you care for her. You need not be ashamed of doing what she desires when it is for the good of both of you. Write her a letter and tell her what your hopes for the future are. Prove your love in the present and I feel sure that future happiness will be yours.

Dear Martha Allen: Will you be so kind as to put in the waste basket. I am so lonesome. If I succeed, I might buy you a wonderful present some day.

I would like to talk so very much to you, but don't know your working hours. I read your column in every paper; they are splendid. Excuse my pencil and poor writing. Wish you the best of success.

YOUR UNKNOWN FRIEND

The best remedy I know for lonesomeness is to do something for some one else. Do you work? Work is the great heart's ease. Do you do your share toward making others happy? There are many lonesome people, you know, and if each one stays at home and bemoans his fate he can never help each other.

BEGIN READING Papini's LIFE OF CHRIST

NEXT SUNDAY IN THE HERALD AND EXAMINER

What the Leading Clergymen of the Country Say:

Cardinal Dougherty Archbishop of Philadelphia

Inasmuch as Papini has been, during many years of his life, an unbeliever, perhaps even an atheist, and is known to be a writer not only of a superb literary style but also of rare strength of mind and depth of thought, it is a good thing that his interpretation of Christ's life and teachings be laid before the American public through a vehicle which will reach all parts of our country and readers of every class, race, and creed.

Rev. Thomas F. Holgate Dean of the Northwestern University and President of the Chicago Church Federation

I am pleased to learn that The Herald and Examiner proposes to publish in its pages Papini's "Life of Christ." This work, coming as it does from the pen of a scholar who had strong atheistic tendencies and was converted to Christianity through a study of the life of Jesus, will prove of great help to many men who have had sincere questionings as well as to those whose faith is well established.

The Herald and Examiner is to be congratulated on its decision to present this work to its readers.

Rev. John Timothy Stone Fourth Presbyterian Church

Every generation seems to have its helpful portrayals of the Life of Christ and in our own day Papini has given to us an interesting vision out of the spirit of his own life and times. The world cannot know too much of the Son of God and the Son of Mary and His life, together with the other lives of Christ, is awakening a new sense of responsibility among the leaders. You are to be commended for this earnest enterprise in your paper.

Bishop Thomas Nicholson Chicago Area of the Methodist Episcopal Church

I am much pleased to learn that The Herald and Examiner is to publish in serial form, Papini's "Life of Christ." We appreciate the increased amount of space which The Herald and Examiner is giving to news of the religious world and to items such as this. Papini's "Christ" is a notable book and it will have a wide reading.

Bishop C. P. Anderson Protestant Episcopal Church, Diocese of Chicago

I am glad that The Herald and Examiner intends to print Papini's "Life of Christ" in its daily issues. It will doubtless have a great interest to many of its readers on account of its fervor and literary excellence. Although it puts forth no claim to profound scholarship it has something better—the fervent discipleship of a new convert to the Master.

Rev. Johnston Myers Pastor of the Immanuel Baptist Church

It dignifies the press of the nation when one of our greatest papers is willing to publish such a book as Papini's "Life of Christ." It is the most popular and readable life of our Lord which has ever been written except that in the Four Gospels.

Rt. Rev. Francis C. Kelley President, Catholic Church Extension Society of U. S.

Giovanni Papini, author of the "Life of Christ," has written himself into universal fame. He was Italy's greatest literary artist before, but now he is one of the world's treasures. When an ex-atheist sees the Christ he is lost with the eyes of discovery. He sees in Him what has been hidden "even from the elect"—or perhaps better say—"unexpressed."
