

McAdoo Leads in Nebraska

Totals 2,514 Votes in 659 Precincts; Bryan Is Second.

By Associated Press. W. G. McAdoo was a favorite among Nebraska Democrats who pressed their preference as to the party's presidential nominee in last Tuesday's primary, according to available returns on democratic presidential preference.

In 659 precincts, representing a few more than one-third of the state's voting districts, McAdoo had polled 2,514 votes, while his closest competitor was Governor Bryan of Nebraska with 2,377 votes.

Third was W. J. Bryan, a favorite son at democratic conventions of bygone years and a brother of the governor. He had 304 votes, two more than Henry Ford, Governor Al Smith of New York was fifth with 146.

There were no candidates for the democratic presidential nomination on the Nebraska ballots, but a line was left blank on which democrats were permitted to write in the names of their favorites.

This arrangement resulted in a range of names so widespread that accurate compilation of the vote was not possible and a majority of democratic voters did not bother to signify any preference, inasmuch as the result is not binding on delegates to the democratic national convention.

Senator Walsh of Montana and Senator Underwood of Alabama had a few votes here and there. It is believed that when all the official returns are in less than 1,000 precincts will show any record on democratic presidential preference. The state's delegates to the New York democratic convention are expected to cast a complimentary vote for Governor Bryan as the party nominee for president, and their course thereafter will be guided by individual preference.

The BEE BOOK SHELF

NOVEL PORTRAYS PRIDE OF FAMILY

BLUE BLOOD, by Owen Johnson. Little, Brown & Co.

This novel by Mr. Johnson concerns itself with tribulations of the daughter of an old, wealthy and aristocratic American family, who on two occasions sacrifices herself and her desire to save the waning fortunes of her father. Her willingness to make these sacrifices is due to her love for her father and her family pride, a pride which finds expression in her every thought and action.

In "Blue Blood" Mr. Johnson has accomplished two things: First, in opening of the novel, he has in a rather masterly fashion portrayed the widely different viewpoints of a star reporter and a writer of society news, both of whom call on the heroine's father at his palatial home on the eve of what seems certain to be his financial downfall; second, he has brought the story to a novel and, of course, a satisfying climax which entirely repays the reader for his efforts.—J. T. A.

7,000 YEARS, THEN RETURN TO EARTH

THE FOREST GIANT, by Adria Le Corbeaul. Harper & Bros.

The story of the growth and life of a great Sequoia in the California forests from the time the roving winds buried the seed until 7,000 years later, when other winds whirled the giant tree back to the earth from which it sprang. A little book, but worthy of considerable attention, not only because of the charming manner in which the author has told the story, but also because the story has a profound philosophical bearing on all life.—J. T. A.

Mothers know a dose of DR. CALDWELL'S SYRUP PEPSIN Will keep them fit

THE experienced mother is not alarmed when a child becomes sick. She knows that most of the ailments of childhood are trifling. If it seems serious she calls a doctor, but whether or not she calls him she gives, first of all, a good laxative medicine. The doctor would advise that anyway. It is his "first aid." Such experienced mothers as Mrs. Everett E. Hunt of Belton, Okla., who has three children and never any sickness, and Mrs. F. B. Kuklenski of Prosser, Wash., always give Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at the first indication of sickness. Such timely doses have saved them much worry.

trouble; salts, which concentrate the blood and dry up the saliva. They consider Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin safe for all ages as they know it is a simple vegetable compound of Egyptian senna with pepsin and agreeable aromatics. The formula is on the package.

Give Laxative for Colds

Adults should have at least one movement of the bowels every 24 hours, and children two or three. Failure to have it means constipation, then, headache, biliousness, drowsiness, lack of appetite. Give a dose of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at bedtime, and there will be health and good feeling by morning. A dose costs less than a cent, and a bottle can be had at any drug store. Colds and constipation come together, so if you notice coughing or sneezing stop it at once with Syrup Pepsin.

The Meaning of "Good"

All doctors agree that a thorough cleaning out of the bowels is of first importance for it removes dangerous intestinal poisons. They will also advise a "good laxative," and by "good" they mean one that is effective and yet harmless. They know that there are laxatives that never should be given to children—calomel, which is mercury and loosens the teeth; phenolphthalein, a coal-tar drug that causes skin

Scotch Miner to Move From Humble Hut to Royal Palace as Lord High Commissioner of Church of Scotland

First Time Office Held by Other Than Peer; Is Socialist Member of Parliament.

London, April 12.—When Bobby Burns wrote "The rank is but the guinea stamp, the man's the gold for a' that," he could not have been thinking of Jamie Brown. Yet Jamie Brown is the latest Scottish exemplification of the Scottish bard's immortal pronouncement.

Jamie, who is a socialist member of parliament and who has worked for 35 years in the mines at Ayrshire, has just got himself a job that for 24 years has been held exclusively by men of rank and title. He has been appointed lord high commissioner to the church of Scotland, an appointment hitherto given only to a peer.

Hereafter, so long as he holds the job, Jamie will be known as "his grace." Mrs. Brown, who was a milliner when Jamie married her 32 years ago, will be "her grace."

Ever since Jamie and Mrs. Jamie were married they have lived in a miner's cottage in Annabans, containing two rooms and a kitchen. The rent for this house is $50 per year.

To Live in Palace.

But now Jamie and his "missus" are going to live in Holyrood palace, at Edinburgh, the stately home of the Stuarts and the official residence of the king of England when he visits the Scottish capital. He is going to get $10,000 a year salary on his new job.

As lord high commissioner to the church of Scotland, Jamie is really the proxy of the king. He is entitled to the king and ride in the state coach, with an escort of soldiers. When he is about the duties of the job he is paid all the honors of royalty.

The duties of the job consist chiefly of presiding at the annual sessions of the church of Scotland. These sessions are held once a year and last a fortnight. It is during this period that "his grace" and "her grace" will occupy the state apartments at Holyrood.

"His grace" is not a bit alarmed over the task of filling the shoes worn by illustrious peers since 1643. "Her grace" is not flustered because she is going to dwell in the castle of the Stuarts. "They are both anxious to get it over with so they can return to their $50-a-year cottage."

"I shall hold levees as representative of the king and shall ride in the state coach," "his grace" said. "Then at the end I shall return to my cottage, the dearest place on earth to me! I'll be just Jamie Brown, as I've always been."

To Uphold Tradition.

"Just because a socialist and the tenant of a miner's cottage has been given the office does not mean that the old dignities and traditions will be departed from. I'm going to show Scotland—and England as well—that a socialist and a miner can do things properly and maintain the historic traditions."

"Of course, I'm tremendously proud that I've been chosen, but it will make no difference in my mode of living. The home in the mining village was good enough for me to take my bride to 32 years ago, and it's good enough for us now."

"Her grace" admits that the news of the appointment disconcerted her a bit when she first heard it. "I gasped when my husband told me," she said, "but I think we'll manage, all right. I'm a very proud woman, and this will be an event in our lives. I'm doing nothing at all to prepare myself until Jamie comes home, but he says this is the dearest place in the world to him, and he'll come back to it and live here as happily as ever when he can get away from Holyrood. We have been very happy together, and I give Jamie all the credit for making our marriage a success."

IRWINS INJURED IN AUTO CRASH

Charlie Trimble, secretary of the Ak-Sar-Ben race meetings, received word Saturday morning from Tijuana, Mexico, that Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Irwin, Cheyenne, Wyo., owners of a large stable of horses, were injured in an automobile accident near the southern track Friday afternoon. According to the telegram, Mrs. Irwin received a fracture of the left arm and minor bruises. Irwin escaped with minor injuries.

The Irwins were returning from the Tijuana race track when the accident occurred.

Packers' Control Act Termed Joke

Meat Companies Named Own Men to Aid in Administration of Law.

By Universal Service. Washington, April 11.—Administration of the packers and stockyards control act under the Department of Agriculture was denounced as a "joke" and "illegal in some respects" at today's session of the house committee on expenditures in the Agriculture department investigating the enforcement of this regulatory law.

Chairman Edwin J. King, progressive republican, of Illinois, assailed the activities of the department as a joke in administering the act. John W. Burns, a lawyer in the solicitors department of the department, testified as to the alleged illegality of the enforcement division.

Chairman King said that although the packers ostensibly were opposed to the enactment of the law, they actually wanted it and immediately undertook to aid in its administration by obtaining the appointment of men of their own selection in the packers and stockyards division of the Department of Agriculture. He added that the packers are now administering the law.

"Murdering Law."

"They are murdering the law in its administration, and they pretty nearly murdered the secretary before he found out what they were doing."

In connection with his charge of illegality in the enforcement of the act, the official from the solicitor's department said:

"I hold Mr. Chester Merrill (assistant to the secretary of agriculture in charge of the packers and stockyards division) responsible for those illegal practices."

Burns, whose tenure in the department is not expected to last much longer, in view of his attack on it, told the committee he was ready to resign last December because the conditions in the department were not as they should be. At that time he conferred with Secretary Wallace. The witness went on with his testimony:

Cites Irregularities.

"If he had known about certain things being done and their consequences, he would not have permitted them."

To illustrate, the witness said, department auditors had found irregularities in a South St. Paul livestock exchange.

"If the accounts showed the shippers had been robbed," he said, "it was the duty of the secretary to give them a hearing and handle the case himself. The way it was done by some kind of hocus-pocus was that the records were turned over to the livestock exchange itself, with the understanding that it should determine the course of action to be taken."
