Reparation Body Is Marking Time

Paris, April 12.—The French government will bide its time, awaiting Germany's action, before commenting on the unanimous recommendation of the reparation commission that the Dawes report be adopted.

Expect Reply. Once the chamber and senate have adjourned it is said he will lose no time in sounding out London, Brussels and Rome with a view to speeding up the settlement, which would be a trump card in his electoral campaign.

Form Reservations. Only the nationalistic organs continue gloomy. "Pertinax" in the Echo de Paris declares M. Barthou, French member and president of the commission, formulated two reservations to yesterday's decision, namely that the experts' report must be completed by a definite system of supervision and by definite penalties applicable, "if, as one is entitled to fear, Germany breaks her new promises."

Teapot Dome Oil on 792-Mile Pipe Line Journey Crosses 33 Railroads, Three Rivers and Touches 3 States

Pumping Stations at 44-Mile Intervals, With Modern Cottages for Employees.

Wymore, Neb., April 12.—Crude oil in the recently completed Sinclair Oil company's pipe line has crossed the Nebraska-Kansas line 40 miles west of Wymore, and arrived from the Deshler, Neb., pumping plant at the Washington (Kan.) plant, on its way from Teapot Dome, Wyo., to the refineries at Fremont, Mo., and on into the Texas-Chicago pipelines.

The line, constructed of 10-inch cast iron pipes on the levels, and split into two six-inch pipes on grades, to lessen pressure and friction, was built by a gang of 700 men, in less than two years, is 792 miles long, and cost a total approximating $20,000,000. The pipe lays just below plow line as it crosses fields.

Air is forced out of the pipe line ahead of the oil by pressure and safety valves. There are 17 pumping stations located an average of 44 miles apart, each a complete small city in itself, and each costing an average of $100,000. At these stations a brick and cement engine room with two huge oil burning engines is located. The engines are cooled by water stored in four outside cement tanks, or vats, each 40 by 40 feet and eight feet deep, and connected by pipes so that they act virtually the same to the engines as does a radiator to an automobile.

Kiddies Drive Prize Ponies

Garden Contest Becomes Real to Youths as "Dream" Is Exhibited.

Determination to have the best garden in Omaha took a stronger hold upon the imaginations of several hundred school children this morning. To them the Shetland ponies that are to be a prize for the winner of the contest became something real.

There was joy in the hearts of the kiddies that covet a pony. The pony that was used as proof threw up its head and heels, acquiesced occasionally to being driven and more often displayed a desire to back up. The 15 years that the animal has lived have done nothing to subdue its spirits.

At one time he was head of the German home on South Thirteenth street and was interested in the plans for a new one. He had often expressed a wish to live to be 100 years.

Shiny Bird Poised on Auto Hood Is Siren Call to Pup; He Answers It

This is a sad tale of one fascinated by the false, gorgeous things of life and carried away by them. A little 2 months old bird dog pines away at the home of A. La Fe la, 1459 South Thirteenth street.

A shiny motor car with a gilded bird poised on the motorometer is responsible. The brother saw the gilded bird Wednesday. He was a bird dog. And as a good bird dog he was fascinated. He gazed and gazed at the shiny creature. He was entranced by the brilliance of the creature. Something within his blood called to him to pursue it. When the motor drove away he did. Police have been asked to search.

Stationers Here Laugh at Charge

Deny Any Recent Attempt at Price Fixing, as Trade Commission Alleges.

The Omaha Stationers' association and 21 other organizations of stationery men, in addition to the National Association of Stationers and Manufacturers of the United States, have been charged with unfair methods of competition in a complaint issued by the federal trade commission at Washington.

Charles Moyer, who has been president of the Omaha association since it was founded 29 years ago, denied Saturday morning that the local association has been guilty of any unfair practice or of anything tending toward restraint of trade or price fixing.

"I don't know what it's all about," said Moyer. "The Omaha association hasn't met for four or five years. At the last meeting I was re-elected president, and there has been no election since, so I suppose I'm still president.

"The organization was formed for social, rather than business reasons. The last big affair we had was in 1912, when we spent $2,800 on a dinner for 500 delegates who were attending the national convention of the stationers here.

Other officers of the local association are C. C. Cope of the Omaha Printing company, secretary, and Guy McKenzie of Corey-McKenzie, treasurer. Moyer hopes officers of the national association will appear before the commission and make a trip to Washington unnecessary for the Omaha men.

BABY FOLLOWS MOTHER IN DEATH

Albert Erickson, Jr., 1-year-old infant who was burned when his mother, Mrs. Lillian Erickson, 18, threw kerosene on smoking coals at their home in Lakoma addition near Lake Manawa, south of Council Bluffs, died Friday night at 8 at Jennie Edmundson hospital.

The mother died a few hours after the tragedy, after being rushed to the hospital. The little cottage, which was destroyed by the flames was almost paid for, according to the young husband.

Men Who Are Making Omaha

One man in Omaha can point to his monument, no matter where he is situated. Almost anywhere in town he can show a building he has designed and supervised its construction. The beautiful Central High school, whose loveliness crowns the city; the Douglas county courthouse; the Brandels store building; the Bran-deis theater building; the Scottish Rite cathedral; the Creighton university law and dental buildings; the University of Nebraska hospital, some 30 grade schools, and numerous office buildings, warehouses, stores, residences and the like, all over Omaha, are tributes to the creative skill and artistic genius of John Latenser.

John Latenser was born in Liechtenstein in the Swiss Alps. He was a private student with Ulrich, architect in charge of the Strassbourg cathedral at the time of the Franco-Prussian war. He learned the trade of stone cutting as a technological school requirement, and worked at the trade on several French railroad bridges during summer vacations.
