Howard Carter, Back, Hopes to Continue Work

Co-Discoverer of Tut-ankh-amen's Tomb Laughs at Legend of "Curse" on Explorers.

New York, April 19.—Howard Carter, co-discoverer with Lord Carnarvon of Tutankhamen's tomb in the valley of the kings, arrived in the Berengaria today.

He hoped, he said, that the present litigation between himself and the Egyptian government might be settled so that he could resume work at the tomb next fall.

Young, looking, vigorous and eager to talk of excavations, mummies and Egyptian legends, Mr. Carter laughed at mention of the superstition that the curse of an ancient god descended upon explorers of tombs and sarcophagi.

Even Natives Laugh.

Even the 700 natives who worked with him in the valley took the curse lightly, he said. He insisted, however, that he did not believe in permanent despoliation of tombs, and he advocated that when pending researches were completed, the mummy of King Tut, as well as all other royal mummies now adorning the museums be returned to their native resting places.

In answer to one query from the reporters' questionnaire, Mr. Carter said:

"Our many ancient tombs I have found this inscription: 'Let all those who love life and hate death, wish thousands of geese, leaves of bread and beeto to my soul!'"

Canned in Gold."

That is what the old Egyptians thought of prohibition. And I believe I agree with them."

The explorer said he expected to find the body of King Tut "literally canned" in gold, with the sepulchral regalia adorning the mummy and the fingers and toes encrusted in gold.

Mr. Carter said he was "hopeful a novel would be found with the coffin—a story placed there for King Tut's delectation in the next world," and he hoped the narrative would disclose things about ancient Egypt which were available from no hitherto disclosed source.

GROUND GLASS IN FOOD, CHARGE

Chicago, April 19.—Fifteen persons are under physicians' care and Ella Redick, a house maid, is held by police, while food, thought to contain ground glass, served at a dinner party last night at the home of Dr. Vale C. Freedman, prominent physician, is being analyzed. Two are seriously ill.

The girl was employed at the Freedman home, when she was discharged because she had broken three glasses. She denied all knowledge of the food.

Dr. Freedman was one of the physicians called several years ago to attend guests stricken during a banquet given in honor of the then Archbishop Mundelein.

BRITISH ISLES AGAIN FEEL QUAKE

By Associated Press

London, April 19.—Violent earth tremors were again reported today in the Midland Colliery district between Alfreton and Sutton in Ashfield. They lasted but a few seconds.

Dr. Freedman was one of the physicians called several years ago to attend guests stricken during a banquet given in honor of the then Archbishop Mundelein.

The character of the disturbance was similar to those of the recent quake in this district but it was of less severity. Little material damage was reported.

Clara Under Knife.

Fort Wayne, Ind., April 19.—An operation will be necessary to save the life of Clara Kimball Young, moving picture actress and star of the legitimate stage, who was stricken here during a performance of her play last Tuesday, physicians in attendance at the hospital announced today.

The actress, who is suffering from acute appendicitis, was improving rapidly up until last night, when she suffered a relapse. It was at this time that a conference of physicians was held and the operation decided upon.

HOURS OF LABOR REDUCED.

Chicago, April 19.—A decision expected to reduce working hours of railroad yardmasters and yardmen from 12 to 9 hours was made today by Federal Judge Cliffe in the case of the Interstate Commerce Commission against the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe railway.

The decision affects 8,000 yardmen employed by American railroads.

The case was based on the point of safety since yardmasters and foremen handle orders by telephone.

Paderewski to Continue Tour Tuesday Regardless of What Happens to Pingy

By International News Service.
Flash—10:16 a.m.—Chicago, April 19.—Pingy died.

By International News Service

Chicago, April 19.—By all signs and tokens, Pingy Long, pet Pekinese of Ignace Jan Paderewski, is dead and ought to be but his heart still is beating faintly today and the master pianist rumpled his hair between grief over his pet and love for his art.

Just before he retired to his bed in his private car after his second all-night vigil beside Pingy Long, Paderewski announced his interrupted concert tour would be resumed with his scheduled appearance at Rockford, Ill., Tuesday night, irrespective of what happens to Pingy Long meanwhile.

Young, looking, vigorous and eager to talk of excavations, mummies and Egyptian legends, Mr. Carter laughed at mention of the superstition that the curse of an ancient god descended upon explorers of tombs and sarcophagi.

Refused to Testify.

The contempt charge grew out of Daugherty's refusal to testify when subpoenaed by the committee and his refusal to deliver to the committee the records of the Midland National bank at Washington Courthouse, O., over which he presided.

The Daugherty investigation will be resumed Monday, it was announced by Senator Wheeler, democrat, of Montana, acting "prosecutor." The subjects to be investigated next week, he said, would center around the handling of anti-trust suits in the Department of Justice. This phase of the investigation, it was said, was not expected to reveal any dereliction on the part of former Attorneys General Daugherty but would be undertaken merely to round out the inquiry.

Wheeler Hearing.

The separate investigation into Wheeler's "fitness to hold office," conducted by the Borah committee, as a result of Wheeler's indictment by a federal grand jury in Montana also, will be continued next week. A respite was ordered over the weekend in order to allow witnesses, summoned from Montana, to reach here. Among those called will be members of the grand jury and the district attorney who obtained the indictment.

Thus far the Borah committee has brought out evidence favorable to Wheeler and in direct conflict with the indictment, which the senator charged was due to a "frameup." Wheeler also has subpoenaed a number of witnesses, whom, he claimed, would support his charges of irregularities in the grand jury's action.
