

Makes Offer to Go on Raids Through City

"I'm Ready," Says Elmer Thomas; "So Am I," Says Endres; Pzanowski Enthusiastic.

T. P. Stroud, candidate for city commissioner, declared Saturday that he stands ready to accompany Prohibition Director Elmer Thomas, Sheriff Michael Endres or police or detectives, or all of them, in a tour of the city to first places where he says he saw liquor sold openly while he was campaigning for the primaries.

He says his money paid for some of it. Ever since he made his frank statement of liquor conditions as he found them Mr. Stroud has been urged by law enforcement officers to point out the places.

Ready for Action. Up till Saturday he said he was unable to remember the addresses of the places, but I believe we can find at least some of them.

Thomas Ready, Too. "I'm ready," said Mr. Thomas when told of the offer. "I'll go with Mr. Stroud or send men with him any time he likes. It is his duty and my duty."

Sheriff Endres also said he and his men are ready to go with Mr. Stroud at any time.

"But, of course, we must go about it in legal manner," he said. "We have to have search warrants before we can search the places."

How About Others. Mr. Stroud said he visited about 15 places on two days before the primaries on invitation from persons who said 700 votes would fall to him if he would appear and meet the voters.

It has occurred to me that they might have invited all the other candidates under the same representations," he said.

"If they sold liquor and cigars to all of them and didn't give any change they could have made quite a profit," he added.

Pzanowski Enthusiastic. Police Inspector Pzanowski enthusiastically accepted Mr. Stroud's offer.

"I will go with him personally to these places to search out the violators of the liquor laws," he said. "If necessary I will detail a dozen detectives to the job. Let Mr. Stroud lead on."

Mr. Stroud at noon issued this signed statement: "I am perfectly willing and ready to accompany any constituted authority to locate the places referred to."

"T. P. STROUND."

Potach Is Eager.

Joe Potach, head of the police moral squad, declared himself anxious to get action on the reports. "If Mr. Stroud will sign these complaints, I and my men will get mighty quick action on them and have the offenders in jail without delay," said Potach.

STATE CHECKER SUBMITS REPORT

Des Moines, Ia., April 25.—Allen Munn, state checker, whose investigation recently sent Des Moines city payroll padders to prison, today filed his official report of his investigation into operations of the state house cafeteria. The report, filed jointly with the executive council and the retirement and reform committee, which first started the probe, recommends radical changes in the operation of the cafeteria and characterizes as "morally wrong" certain practices of state officials in connection with the enterprise.

It recommends that the practice of employing in the cafeteria at additional reimbursement persons already on other state payrolls be discontinued and that free light, heat, water and janitor service be withdrawn from the cafeteria in fairness to taxpayers.

It also advises that the cafeteria, which has been under the direction of Ray Johnson, secretary of the executive committee, be conducted by outside parties as a concession if this can be legally done. If it can not, the report urges that Mrs. Charlotte Smith, now working as Mr. Johnson's assistant be placed in full charge.

FOURTH U. S. PLANE OFF FOR CHIGNIK

By Associated Press. Cordova, Alaska, April 25.—Major Frederick L. Martin, commanding a United States air expedition around the world, hopped off at 10:25 a. m. today from Kanatuk for Chignik, according to word received here.

Extensive preparation had to be made for Major Martin's start at Kanatuk this morning, owing to the majority of the water being blown out of Portage bay by recent gales. The water level in the bay was too shallow to permit the floating of the biplane Seattle.

The difficulty was solved after several hours of hard work by Indians and other members of the Standard Oil company's crew stationed at Kanatuk by building a cradle from which the plane was launched after being towed to deep water.

This price will hold until the hot days of summer make milk production and distribution more difficult than at any time during the year. Last summer our price advanced July 15th, and the year before on July 11th. We cannot tell just when it will take place this year, for it depends upon conditions.
