

Press Defeated Fall "Land Grab"

Newspaper Protests Halted Secretary's Attack, Governor Tells Editors.

Atlantic City, N. J., April 25.—Governor Clifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania told the American Society of Newspaper Editors tonight that after his protest in President Harding against the appointment of Albert B. Fall as secretary of the interior had failed, he enlisted the aid of the press of the country in a struggle for conservation of natural resources and was successful in his fight.

"Senator Fall's attack was on the conservation policy as a whole," Governor Pinchot said. "What he and his friends were after was not simply the navy's oil, but billions of dollars worth of other natural resources held by the government for the benefit of all the people."

Once in office, Mr. Pinchot said, Fall had attacked the nation's forests. "As a western stockman, the United States forest service had properly refused him privileges to which he had no right," continued the governor. "As a means of getting even, he undertook to secure the transfer of the national forests to his department. In the course of his campaign he succeeded in persuading President Harding to support him. The Brown commission for the reorganization of the government fell in behind. The anti-conservation members of congress were eagerly with him. But in spite of all of it, he was defeated and defeated directly by the power of the press."

"Direct personal communication was established with the editors of 5,000, or 6,000 of the most influential journals in America. A stream of editorials came pouring into Washington so definite, so forceful, so influential, that President Harding said to me in the White House, 'you are absolutely wrong in opposing the transfer of the national forests, but I pay you the compliment of saying that he cannot out it over against your opposition.'"

SAYS EYEGLASSES PREVENT WRINKLES

"Many of us have an aversion to wearing glasses, we imagine they make us look old, but the fact is, they prevent wrinkles, due to eye-strain, and are not intended just for old folks," declares Dr. F. Mendenhall of the Mendenhall Optical company, 2502 North Twenty-fourth street, over Tuchman Bros. grocery.

"Most faces are strengthened and the wearer's expression by wearing well-fitted glasses," says Mendenhall. "Glasses drive away the squinting drawn expression that is often the sign of defective eyes."

Dr. Mendenhall is well known in Omaha for his ability in fitting glasses, his years of experience and scientific methods assure the customer accuracy in workmanship and fitting.

Woman Asks for Liquor Raid to Avoid Suspicion

"There's some liquor in my furnishings stored in the basement of my apartment house," came a feminine voice through the telephone receiver at police captain's office Friday afternoon, "and I don't want it thought that it belongs to me." Arrived at the St. Claire apartments, officers discovered that their informant had not been wrong. The basement is so arranged that many tenants may store goods without having them in separate compartments. Several bottles of alleged liquor were confiscated. There were found also five crates of bottles labeled "Gordon Dry Gin," tin foil covers for bottles and a machine for capping them.

E. E. McVickers was arrested for investigation in connection with the finding of the alleged liquor. He is said by police to have confessed that the product was not what it was purported to be but that the result was obtained by various extracts.

Omaha Speeders Must Serve Behind Bars One Day for Each Mile in Excess of Limit, New Edict; "Bring 'Em in," Is Sweeping Order

Woe betide the 1924 speeder. Orders, sweeping from the desk of Commissioner of Police Henry Dunn, under the hand of Municipal Judge Dineen, through the office of Inspector Jack Pasznowski to the outstretched hands of Captain of Motors Lyman Wheeler, are read by that worthy in no hesitating tones: "Bring 'em in."

And after they are in, Fallors Plotts, Szczepanski and Robery will guard them well for terms of a day for each mile the culprit has gone in excess of the legal speed limit. Omaha police will exert themselves this spring and summer to cut down Omaha's already bad accident and death rate due to reckless drivers and speeders. A dozen solo motor riders have ridden in their service belts, but the final polish on purring motors without oil within.

These men will patrol Omaha thoroughfares from dawn till dawn in three shifts. And orders, signed "Henry Dunn," say "Bring them in."

ABE MARTIN On th' Coming Campaign

There's ever indication that th' comin' national presidential campaign 'll go down in history as th' proudest political struggle since George Washington. O' course between now an' November some great issue may pop up, or between now an' th' close of th' two big nominatin' conventions some really great, magnetic, an' sparkin' leader may appear an' make some pep into things. But as matters now stand th' fall campaign bids well to come an' go as quietly as a Shake-an' rode an' marched in parades, an' held poll books, an' made speeches, an' rounded up votes, since way back in '76, an' he says he's jest sayin' low an' sayin' nothin', but that he intends t' vote fer th' feller that promises t' slash taxes, "but," said he, "he ain't a man that's prominent in th' political affairs of th' nation 'cay that I'd waste a roman candle on."

"Beside traffic patrolmen on foot at downtown intersections, the safety light traffic signal has been installed, and, if found to be practical, will be installed on other busy intersections. There is no law at present to compel observance of these light signals, but all sensible persons realize they are safety measures and will observe them. If they are found successful a law will be passed to curb those who violate the light signals in spite of the aid offered them for safety."

Capt. Lyman Wheeler, who will command the speed chasers, has designated dangerous crossings for the motorist to watch when driving. "Experience," said the captain, "has

31 AUTOS BURN IN BLAZE AT CHADRON

Chadron, Neb., April 25.—Thirty-one automobiles stored in the Chadron City garage were destroyed, along with the building, by fire early today, causing a loss estimated at $10,000. Exploding gasolene tanks and a high north wind handicapped fire-fighters and added to danger of the blaze spreading. A short circuit in the electric lighting system is believed by Ben Brathwaite, owner, to have caused the fire.
