May Day Parade Will Symbolize Youths' Loyalty

Charles. R. Gardner, Chairman, Strikes Keynote of Day in Letter to Boys.

The May day parade in observance of Boys' Loyalty day in Omaha will to the greatest manifestation of dethat the boys of Omaha can give. declares Charles R. Gardner, chairman of the committee, which has the day in charge. Mr. Gardner has addressed the following letter to the Boys of Omaha: Roya' Loyalty day! And a big parade with 15,000 boys in the line hour of this city;

That is the program for today. Thursday, May 1, Boys' Loyalty day in National Boys' week. Today the boys in more than 1,000 of our greatest cities are observing the day with you.

There is no need for me to tell you boys of Omaha what loyalty week means. Just 137 years ago your great-grandfathers created the constitution of the United States and thereby established a government, which their sons and grandsons and your grandfathers have been proud and happy to carry on in the future.

This is a government which gives a great measure of opportunity to its people than any other in the world. Under its rule, plowboys have become presidents, messenger boys have become millionaires, immigrant lads unable to speak English have become great teachers. physicians and leaders. Because of its matchless opportunities, millions of people in other lands have been attracted across the ocean, to become its loyal citizens.

this is our country, your country. my country.

This is our country, your country people have been glad to give the limit of toil and sacrifice, to which our manhood has been willing-in time of special emergency-to lay down their lives that it might not

Today, Loyalty day, the boys of Omaha are paying their tribute to this nation which is soon to be theirs to develop, to defend, to

This will be the greatest outpouring of boys that Omaha has ever seen, the greatest manifestation of devotion that the boys of Omaha can give. (Signed)

Loyalty Day

By the blue of the field where its silver stars shine, And the crimson of blood that our forefathers shed; By the shot and the shell of the blue and brown line, 'Tis your duty to keep that old flag overhead. With their strength and their tears and their unselfish

The long days and nights of their infinite toil. They left you Old Glory that floats proudly above These homes that are builded on blood-hallowed

By the might of their arms from the forest and fen. By the faith that they held in the God of the Free, They builded their altars, and they lived as free men.

And this heritage great left to you and to me. By the faith of our sires who nought reckoned of death If their sacrifice kent the old flag floating high. Tis ours to pledge duty with each intaking breath To keep it affoat beneath the blue of the sky.

By the liberties won and the freedom secured, By the blood-hallowed paths that heroic feet trod: By the works that they wrought and the woes they enendured.

All our lives let us live for our Country and God. By the sheen of the stars plucked from heaven's blue

By the crimson of dawn and the sising sun's light. Pledge vour lives ev'ry day to God, Country and Home, Neath the folds of Old Glory e'er waving in sight.

Proclamation

THE LINCOLN

Is good because it is very simple and built on sound mechanical principles, using the finest materials, aluminum wringer, all copper tub, steel cut gears and all that sort of thing. A kid out of the grades could run it. The guy that invented it was a wise bird, he knew that the way to do good washing, was to pass soapy water and air through the clothes; lots of washers try to do this by making little bubbles of the clothes. The Lincoln makes one big bubble, every time the "Ring" goes down, and that's the idea that wins the cement motorcycle.
