2 St. Paul Banks Are Consolidated Interest of E. I. Andrews in First National State Bank Purchased by St. Paul State.

St. Paul, Neb., May 2.—An important bank consolidation was completed today when Mrs. Pauline P. Arterburn, C. E. Arterburn and W. S. Paul of the St. Paul State bank, purchased the interest of E. I. Andrews in the First National State bank of which Mr. Andrews was president.

The two banks will be consolidated under the name of the St. Paul State bank. The new bank will have a capital of $40,000 and will start with a surplus of $5,000.

The St. Paul State bank was organized in 1878, and the First National bank in 1852, these being the two oldest banks in St. Paul.

Officers of the new bank will be Mrs. Pauline P. Arterburn, president; C. E. Arterburn, vice president; W. S. Paul, vice president; F. R. Haggart, vice president and cashier; E. P. Cerny, assistant cashier.

The consolidation is the result of the illness of Mr. Andrews, who desired to retire.

Teamster Tossed Into River When Bridge Span Collapses Kearney, Neb., May 2.—The day was hazy and ducks were cavorting about on the tranquil waters of the mid-wide Platte as Otto Lowell of Gibbon started across the bridge south of that village with a load of baled alfalfa.

Cruise Arranged. Newport, R. I., May 2.—Arrangements for the Atlantic fleet to join the Pacific fleet at San Pedro next January and for the combined United States fleet to proceed to Hawaii in February were made known in naval circles here today.

Adele Garrison "My Husband's Love" Why Is Katherine Worried About Mrs. Durke?

"Cat, cat!" little Mrs. Durke lifted joyfully as she made a face at me. "You're jealous of me, that's what the matter with you. I've a good mind to stop with the Dicky-bird just to punish you. Will you run away with me?"

She turned to Dicky with her eyes sparkling as if she had been 20 instead of in her late 30s. We all gave her the tributes of the laugh, which always greets her little sallies.

"My hat and coat, Madee," he threw over his shoulder to me. Then in the same casual tone, he addressed her.

"Have you any particular place you'd like to alight first—Coney Island or the Woolworth Building, or the Metropolitan Museum? Or would you prefer Niagara Falls? And are you sure you have sufficient wraps? It's quite brisk outside."

She struck his hand smartly with the stick of her cigarette. "I thought you knew me better than that she pointed. 'I may be ancient, but do I look like the nineteenth century? Niagara Falls, forsooth! Nothing doing! You'll take me to Havana or the Bermuda—"

"I get you," Dicky interrupted, "and I greet you as a true soul mate. I'm dying for a good drink myself. 'I can endure this no longer. I gave a realistic little shudder and made my voice heavily mournful.

"She not only entices my husband away, but she plans to make a criminal and a drunkard of him. Take me away, Katherine, somewhere, anywhere, but away!"

Katherine was quick to catch my cue. I wanted to see her alone, but had not known just how to manage it. The little farce which Dicky and Mrs. Durke were staging and which the little woman, at least was intensely enjoying, gave me just the opportunity I wanted.

"Come to my room, you poor wounded dove," Katherine said, with a gay little laugh. "I'll take care of you."

"And I'll try to appeal to them," Lark said as we left the room. "But I'm afraid they're hopeless. We closed the door upon Mrs. Durke's giggles and Dicky's deep laugh, and Katherine squeezed my arm."

"I thought you'd snatch at that opportunity," she said. "I'm dying to talk to you, and my patient will be happy now until we get back. She is talking and coquetting with a good-looking man, and she holds nothing more for her. Her cup is brimming."

"What a perfectly adorable little marriage she must have been in her youth," I mused.

"She's a darling now," Katherine asserted, throwing open the door of her own room and ushering me in. "but do you know any other woman who could get away with it?"

"Not one," I answered, and then I bent forward, and Katherine pushed forward a chair for me. I asked the question which had lain heavily against my heart for days.

"Tell me, do you think there's any chance of its coming back?" Katherine's professional manner invested her instantly.

"On that point I can give you no information," she said slowly. "For I have seen only a trained diagnostician could determine that, and it's too soon yet even for the best of them to offer an opinion. Of one thing you may be sure. Dr. Braithwaite cleared everything up to the last atom, and the wound has healed beautifully, as one might expect when he operates."

All her enthusiasm for the skill of the eminent surgeon whose chief aid she had been during the war was in her words, and though I knew there was no such of romantic sentiment in it, I was thankful that Harold Braithwaite had not heard the tribute.

"But, of course," I persisted gloomily, "often it does come back."

ANNULMENT OF MARRIAGE SOUGHT

Shenandoah, Ia., May 2.—Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Duncan are seeking to have the marriage of their son, Elmer Duncan, 11, annulled.

The Iowa youth was married September 11, 1923, at Santa Ana, Cal., to Miss Eunice Hildreth. They lived together until December 10, 1923.

The parents insist it is the desire of their son to have his marriage annulled. Mr. and Mrs. Duncan claim that at the time the boy was married he was 17 years old, that the marriage contract was made in California in violation of the law for the reason that the boy was a minor, under age of legal consent when the marriage was consummated.

The marriage was without the consent of his parents who are both residents of Shenandoah.
