

It's the laughter of the children. And the mother's gentle smile. It's the pride of those you know. Good old friends who love you so. That make the prize worth having. And the victory worth while. —Edgar A. Guest.

SAMARDICK DRIES POMO

MARINO IS FREED IN SECOND TRIAL

Found Not Guilty on 8th Ballot

Release Comes After Prisoner Had Been Held in State Penitentiary for Year.

Wife Waits for Verdict

Jim Marino, charged with the murder of Sam Nanfito, is a free man today.

A verdict of not guilty was returned late Saturday after a jury in Judge J. M. Fitzgerald's court had deliberated six hours. Eight ballots were taken, the vote standing 11 for acquittal and one for conviction on the first seven ballots.

It was the second trial of Marino for the death of Nanfito. The first time he was found guilty of murder in the first degree. For one year he remained in the state penitentiary, awaiting the outcome of an appeal to the supreme court.

Then the supreme court set aside the first verdict and ordered a new trial. The reason was that one of the jurors was not a resident of Douglas county.

Wife Waits

Marino was called from his cell in the county jail shortly after 5 Saturday with tidings that the jury had reached a verdict. His wife and family had remained in the courtroom from 11:40 the time the jury retired, until after 8. The children had then gone home, but Mrs. Marino and Jim, Jr., 3, had waited to learn Marino's fate. He smiled to them as he entered the courtroom and took his seat at the long table before the judge's bench.

From the time the jury appeared in the jury box until the verdict was handed to the judge, Marino appeared to be nervous. His wife sobbed and allowed the baby to run about the courtroom.

Takes Child in Arms

When the verdict of not guilty was read Marino slumped in his chair. Then, catching himself, he turned to his wife and smiled. Mrs. Marino was questioning friends; she understands little English, and seemed unable to believe the good fortune that had made her husband a free man. As soon as the jury had been dismissed Marino was allowed to leave the courtroom. He took little Jim in his arms and went to the county jail to get his personal effects.

DRUGGIST LICENSE ONLY TO CITIZENS

The state pharmaceutical board, at a meeting in Omaha which ended Saturday, made a ruling that no pharmacy license shall be issued hereafter in this state to any person who is not an American citizen.

Sixty-two applicants for licenses were examined at this meeting, all of them citizens.

House Re-Enacts Bonus Bill Over President's Veto

Enactment of Bill Into Law Now Up to Senate; House Gave Bill More Than Two-Thirds Vote.

Washington, May 17.—The house today passed the soldier bonus bill over President Coolidge's veto.

Party lines vanished as supporters of the measure piled up a comfortable margin over the two-thirds majority required on such a vote.

Enactment into law or final defeat of the bill now is up to the senate, where a closer result is expected.

The house vote was 313 to 78. The bill thus received 52 more votes than the required two-thirds.

Shortly after the house convened at noon the bonus bill was taken up with an announcement by Representative Longworth that there would be only brief debate.

Chairman Madden of the appropriations committee opened the debate with a plea for support of the veto on economic grounds. He got a smattering of applause from the republican side.

"As chairman of the appropriations committee," he said, "I feel I would be unjustified if I sought to curtail the government expenditures and then turned around and voted to override the veto."

Passage of the bonus and other special appropriation bills pending would either destroy plans for tax reduction or bring a huge treasury deficit, Mr. Madden declared.

The bill would cost the government at least $2,350,000,000, he declared, and would require an appropriation in the next fiscal year of $152,000,000. He previously had supported the bill.

Favors Passage. Representative Johnson, republican, South Dakota, chairman of the new veterans' committee, who served overseas during the war, said he realized many opponents of the measure in congress were following their convictions and disregarding their political fortunes. He favored passage as a "matter of right and justice."

Representative Garrett of Tennessee, the democratic leader, said he would vote to sustain the veto, "the message of the president notwithstanding." He opposed the bill when it was passed by the house two months ago.

"I do not endorse the intemperate language attack on my former service mates," he said.

"The president placed a question mark on every honorably discharged former service man," Mr. Laguardia shouted. "Opposition to this measure is not spiritual, but sordidly material."

Representative Longworth, the republican leader, announced he would vote to sustain the veto, after "careful consideration of the circumstances despite my previous vote in favor of a bonus." He recalled that three years ago in Cincinnati he sat on the platform "with a candidate for president and heard him definitely commit himself to the policy of paying adjusted compensation for world war veterans."

Urges Passage. Another former service man, Representative Fish, republican, of New York, urged the house to override the veto. Increased appropriations under the bill he declared, would in no way injure business, upset economic conditions or unfavorably affect government securities. He reminded the house that "the sole reason for President Harding's veto of the former bill proved to be a false reason."

"The president was informed that the treasury faced a large deficit," he said. "And that was the only reason for the veto. The deficit did not result."

Representative Rankin, democrat, Mississippi, assailed the veto message as a "most unusual document."

"Other presidents have declared against a bonus," he said, "but no president has referred in terms like these to our world war veterans."

Representative Newton, republican, Minnesota, opposing the bill, declared there was no member of the house "who down in his heart doesn't take off his hat to the president for having the courage to take the stand he has."

Agrees With Coolidge. Chairman Green of the ways and means committee, sponsor of the bill, declared the committee in framing the measure had gone fully into the costs.

"The bill was extremely moderate," he said, "and one which from a strictly national standpoint, I thought surely no one could take exception to. Do you tell me this country can't afford such a bill? Is it unworthy of so great a nation to take such a view?"

Representative Brand, republican, Ohio, argued in support of the president, and Representative Laguardia, republican, New York, a former service man, assailed the veto message as "unwarranted."

Nebraska's Sisters to Hear of Her

16 Newspapers of State to Advertise Wealth in Land and Industry to Nation.

Ads in Eastern Papers

Sixteen Nebraska daily newspapers have undertaken to tell the world about this peerless state through advertisements in dailies outside of Nebraska. Plans were completed at a meeting of the Nebraska Daily Press association in Lincoln May 2.

It is an unique campaign and starts this week with a full-page ad in the Chicago Tribune. The next will appear soon in another daily paper of the first rank, The New York Times. Later, newspapers in other states will carry the eye-opening statements regarding this great commonwealth. The campaign has been mapped out to run one year.

Nebraska's greatness and wealth are known to millions from Portland, Maine to San Diego, Cal. But there are other millions in the benighted east who still imagine this state is a part of the Great American Desert and that the inhabitants live behind stockades. Others in the remote fastnesses of Vermont and such localities imagine everything west of the Hudson is more or less wild.

In short, Nebraska needs to become still better known to her 47 sister states. So the members of the Nebraska Daily Press association decided.

The "horsehead" who west of here lives from the rocky hills of New England must be shown a glimpse of Nebraska's fertile valleys and limitless rolling hills, where prosperity awaits those who come.

And the toilers in the mills and factories of the congested cities of the east must be told again that Nebraska is a great manufacturing as well as a primary agricultural state. Many Nebraskans even do not realize what strides have been made in industry in this state. Industry has outstripped agriculture. The annual products of the soil of the state are worth approximately $300,000,000. The annual industrial products are worth about $500,000,000.

Eighty of the state's counties have from three to 600 manufacturing establishments each. And 55 per cent of Nebraska's population now lives in cities and towns.

The "horsehead" of a Nebraska farm is $33,771. The average value of a farm in the whole nation is only about one-fourth that amount.

Though there has been a slump in the price of farm products of the whole nation in the last few years, Nebraska is a good crop year. It spells opportunity to any one and especially to those who are now struggling in less favored parts of the nation.

The 16 dailies which are sponsoring the advertising campaign are: The Omaha Bee, Omaha World Herald, Beatrice Sun, Columbus Telegram, Falls City Journal, Fremont Tribune, Grand Island Independent, Hastings Tribune, Kearney Hub, Lincoln Journal, Lincoln Star, Nebraska City Press, Norfolk News, North Platte Telegraph, Scottsbluff Tribune and York News-Times.

"Bob" Samardick, Dry Agent; Is Peer of Izzie Einstein, Official Says

Thomas' New Aide Fearless, Impartial and Gets Results, Declare His Friends.

By JOE JACOBS

The "federal agent you can't bribe" is what bootleggers say of a young man, 25, who has fought the last seven years to see that the prohibition laws are enforced.

This young man, Robert P. Samardick, chief of the federal prohibition agents for Nebraska, if you want to believe the story of violators, has declined bribes as high as $5,000.

Only a few days ago this ruthless prohibition agent was tendered a $5,000 a year job for three years to "line up" with an organization opposed to prohibition. But, believing as he does, that liquor laws should be obeyed, Samardick declined the proposition.

James Brown, member of the intelligence unit of the internal revenue department, who was in Omaha several months ago investigating the office of U. S. Rohrer and who has conducted similar inquiries in other parts of the country, declared that Samardick had a record that was unsurpassed by any agent in the country.

"This 'Izzie' Einstein is amateurish compared with Samardick," said Brown, who has a record showing that Samardick has been more active and has produced more results than Einstein.

This seems to be the attitude of United States Senators Norris and Howell, Federal Judge Woodrough, Governors McKelvie and Bryan, United States District Attorney Kinsler, Elmer Thomas and H. L. Duncan, Samardick's former chief, called "hard boiled" because of his activity in liquor traffic. These men have stood behind Samardick when his enemies have often sought to obstruct his path.

Wants to Settle Here

After seven years of state agent and federal agent crusading in various parts of the country, Samardick now wants to be in Nebraska and make his home here.

He says his days of being in wait for run runners of Canada near Minot, N. D., are past. He wants to help stop the manufacture of liquor in this state. He has had dealings with such men as Bart Williams, alias "Red the Rough," Wiley Compton, Tom Kelley, James Cooney, "Slippery" Bill Knight, "Chuck" Hogan and Bill Maher and many others.

Samardick has earned a reputation that stretches from here to Washington then east to Baltimore and back west as far as St. Paul and Kansas City.

It was Samardick that caused a search of Hotel Pontenelle and later the conviction of several bellboys charged with selling liquor. It was this same fearless agent who turned Baltimore tony-turvy until for some unknown reason Samardick was assigned to a western division.

Padlocked Many Places

While in Kansas City Samardick searched and later caused the arrest of the owner of the Baltimore and Muehlebach hotels on liquor charges.

Are Omaha business men good cornhuskers?

This question will be answered next Saturday afternoon at the Chamber of Commerce-Luncheon club cutting at Elmwood park, as one of the contests for some of the prizes being offered by Omaha firms will be a cornhusking race between any Omaha men who wish to compete.

Other features of the afternoon's program are a baseball game between teams of baritone and base-voiced "bloomer girls" representing the Altrusa club and the business and professional women's division of the Chamber of Commerce; a bicycle race between Victor Ross, Sam Potter and Forrest N. Croxson, using the old-fashioned, high-wheeled bicycles; a balloon-blowing and slipper-kicking contests for the women, and a shoe scramble and balloon kick for the boys.

Three contests have been arranged for the competition between the Chamber of Commerce-Luncheon club and the Continental club and which must defend this year. These are, a clown parade, each club being permitted to have two clowns who will be judged on the merits of clowning; a spelling contest with big letters which demand nimbleness of feet as well as orthographic nimbleness, and a peanut scramble between teams of 12 members each, representing the clubs.

In addition to these contests, several of the clubs taking part in the outing are arranging special stunts for the amusement and entertainment of the several thousand men, women and children who will be present.

Senator Harrison has been prominently mentioned for the post for several weeks, but it was understood that a close race was in progress with Representative Finis J. Garrett of Tennessee, democratic floor leader, having an excellent chance.

Pat Harrison TO BE KEYNOTER

New York, May 17.—Selection of Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi as temporary chairman and keynote speaker of the democratic national convention, which meets here June 24, will be officially announced today. He was chosen at an informal meeting of the arrangements committee last night and that body is expected to give its formal endorsement at today's meeting.

Pair Wed at Fremont Homecoming Now Estranged; Merchants' Gifts Contested

Special Dispatch to The Omaha Bee. Fremont, Neb., May 17.—The matrimonial bark of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Wisner, launched before a crowd of 5,000 at the Fremont homecoming festival last August, in a public wedding, has landed on the shoals.

Today the husband filed suit for divorce, charging cruelty. Their marriage, despite the good wishes of the thousands who witnessed the ceremony, has been a failure, he says.

The Wisners responded to an invitation of the homecoming committee for a couple to be central figures in a public wedding.

79 Arrests, 43 Raids by Rum Sleuth

Activity of Elmer Thomas' Group Chief Continues Despite Shots at Him From Ambush.

All "Joints" Closed Up

Robert P. Samardick believes 29 parents, a man should be his own avenging spirit.

Thursday night Omaha's dauntless rum sleuth was the target of more than 100 shots from ambush.

To date, since then, 79 liquor suspects have been jailed by Samardick, and 43 establishments have been raided.

Saturday afternoon alone, Samardick and his men raided 14 places and arrested 20 persons.

Driest in U. S.

Admitted patrons of the city's "beer gardens" conceded Saturday night that Omaha was the "driest spot" in the United States.

Sequestered rendezvous where beer drinkers of the upper classes of Omaha were wont to gather on Saturday nights for succor from the drought of the week all were dark.

At some places, the customary alarm at the door brought forth the word, "Nothing doing tonight, Samardick's at it again."

Other places, knocks at the door reverberated hollowly through the house and no response was heard.

Too Busy to Talk

And at still other places, lookouts at the sidewalk turned away thirty Omaha sleuths with the town's tightest "drop."

At his quarters in the Rome hotel at 7 p. m., Samardick had no time for an official statement regarding the cause of his burst of activity.

"I've been in good luck," he grinned, waving his arm in goodby. "I've just got time to grab a bite to eat."

"I'll Make 'Em All"

While at dinner, Samardick's telephone kept ringing with messages from more than a score of friends calling to tell him of town places and road houses outside the city limits he had not visited yet. Police and deputy sheriffs were idle.

"I'll make them all before I'm through," was his invariable answer. And the figures at central police headquarters where he booked his prisoners seemed to bear him out in his prediction.

Samardick's men—well dressed, affable youths looking like college students home for a vacation—have been busy getting "buys" on the places he now is raiding.

Search warrants based on this purchased evidence gave the "open season" to the doors at which Samardick stopped.

The List.

The afternoon list of arrests, to be followed up with more, follows: Ingman Moen, at 2208 South Twentieth street.

Ida and William Dorsey, at 2305 Pacific street.

Louis Costanzo, 2315 Pacific street. Rose Ballini, at 2527 Pierce street. Salvatore and Charles Marcolia, at 608 Pierce street.

Frank Kava, at a soft drink parlor at 4516 South Twenty-seventh street. Casimir and Catherine Zywic, at 4618 South Twenty-seventh street.

Paul and Mary Kutta, at 4620 South Twenty-seventh street.

William J. Hindman, at Bellevue. George Miller, at 4910 South Twenty-fifth street.

Henry Frank and John Trezcek, at 2525 Q street.

Mary and Robert Anderson, Jr., at 2729 South Twenty-fourth street.

Anna Henry and her son, Ephial, at 2425 Pierce street.

Anna Novski, arrested for the fourth time, at 3301 South Twenty-fourth street.
