

H. G. WELLS: "Political Parties of World Dare Not Do More Than Fumble Creative Ideas, and Outlook for Mankind Is Dangerous Till They Are Executed"

"Britain's Labor Government, Brought Down From Cloudland of Promise to Performance, Has Lost Its Freshness."

By H. G. WELLS
Author of "Outline of History."
London, May 17.—Mr. Smillie, a little while ago, was talking of the peculiar mental virtues of the labor party. It was "out to deal with root causes." There was to be no parleying with liberals. This was immediately before Snowden produced the greatest liberal budget in history, something of something for everybody.

youth and begun to act for itself. Ramsay MacDonald, with his piety and political dexterity, is extremely like the Scotch instead of the Welsh Lloyd George.

LIBERALS AT HEART.

The labor party, brought down from the cloudland of promise to performance, is seen to be little more than another of the numerous liberal parties that have appeared in the world of British liberalism.

GREED FOR POWER.

The uncomfortable masses seek uncritically for some expression of their antagonism to the lucky, dexterous, unscrupulous or farsighted who enjoy the advantages of the existing social and economic tangle; their suffrages and passion will go to support the particular lucky, dexterous, unscrupulous or far-sighted politician who seem most in harmony with the hates and hopes of the stunted, hampered, oppressed multitude.

But the antagonism and discord of the present system are as much a party of the present as its order and its success. The labor party is no more inherently reconstructive than the banking interest or shipping interest. Like them, it merely wants an excessive, inconsiderate share of present power and satisfactions.

I suppose if we could set aside the entangling influences of social position and traditions we should find that men and women fell into a series of mental types, conservative at one end, who like things to go on very much as they are going, only to be just a little richer, sounder, sunnier; at the other end the disturbers, who like fresh things to happen, who make fresh things happen.

WORLD FOR EGOISTS.

But the great financial adventurers are not in politics. They are behind politics. The world of today is all for the bold, acquisitive egoist. He causes wars, prevents peace. The industrialist is in his financial net. He does things to the exchange, the money in our pockets becomes the less counters. He controls the news in our newspapers, he buys the house over our heads, the ground under our feet. He turns up in all parties as they suit him. His eternal antagonism, the creative service innovator, must use all parties as he can against him.

"Birth Control, Educational System, Unwieldy Legislative Bodies, Clearing of Debt Jungle, Are Unsolved World Problems."

There is the liberation of the economic life of the world from financial manipulations by the creation of a world authority for regulated currency, the clearing of the world debt jungle. There is the lifting of the waste weight of private profiteering and nationalist sabotage from the shipping world, transport and staple productions of the world through the creation of a group of world authorities for these ends. Everybody of intelligence knows that these are just possible achievements for mankind, that the outlook for mankind is dangerous and on the whole dimly until they are attained and secured. But there is no political party in the world that dare do more in office than fumble and prevaricate about any of them. (Copyright, 1924.)

U. S. Airmen First to Cross Pacific

Three World Fliers Land Safely in Paramashiru; Flight in Record Time.

By Associated Press
Paramashiru Island, Kuriles, May 17.—A new chapter in aviation history was written today when the three United States army lieutenants attempting to encircle the world by air descended in their planes to the waters of bleak Kashiwabara bay, shortly before noon after a perilous dash of 878 miles through Arctic winds and snowstorms from Attu Island in the Aleutians. Thus to America goes the honor of being the first nation to succeed in a flight across the Pacific.

Omaha Co-Eds Practice for Annual May Pole Dance

hopped off Attu some time before noon Friday.

By Associated Press
Bremerton, Wash., May 17.—Three planes of the United States army yesterday, which flew from Attu Island to Paramashiru Island, were forced by a storm to alight once on the way, a radiogram caught here today stated.

The flight was made largely in a storm of snow and wind, and a storm arose soon after arrival at Paramashiru, Japan, 878 miles from Attu, Alaska, the longest jump of the expedition. Lieut. Smith reported.

on Yatorofu, the largest island of the Kurile chain, although the time of their departure is uncertain.

The difference in time between Attu Island and Paramashiru is about 15 hours. The time of the fliers' departure from Attu has not been learned. Figuring from the time of their arrival at Paramashiru—11:35 a. m. (Saturday)—and the probable flying time of between six and seven hours, it is believed the aviators must have landed at Attu some time before noon Friday.

By Associated Press
Aboard U. S. Guard Cutter Haida, May 16.—Three army planes left Attu Island today for Paramashiru Island on their flight around the earth.

From Attu the pilots laid their course for Cape Kronotski, on the Kamohatka peninsula, 611 miles from Attu. From Kronotski they intended to fly southward along the peninsula. The distance from Kronotski to Paramashiru Island, which is in the Kuriles group at the northern end of the Japanese empire, is 267 miles.

The planes, those remaining, after one of four that left Santa Monica, Cal., March 17, was wrecked against a mountain on the Alaska peninsula April 20, were expected to reach Paramashiru Island between 3 and 5 this afternoon.

Paramashiru, second largest of the Kurile islands, is inhabited only by the hairy Ainu, aborigines of Japan who have been driven north to this dreary land by the constant economic and cultural pressure of the Japanese from the south. It has four volcanoes, regarded by the few persons who have brought back stories of them, as possessing unusual splendor.

The American fliers' plans call for a landing in Kashiwabara bay, where a Japanese and an American destroyer await them; the Japanese as official hosts and the American boat as a carrier of supplies.

A like welcome from war craft of the two nations lies at the end of the next jump southward, to Bettabu on Yatorofu, the largest
