Society Sponsors Rodeos First Event Opens With Queens and Distinguished Visitors in Boxes

The first annual rodeo was launched Tuesday with great social eclat, as well as equestrian skill at Omaha Buffalo Ball park, to run until Monday.

A box for queens of Ak-Sar-Ben attracted unusual attention. Cool weather had robbed its occupants of the right to wear the summer sport things they had planned on, but their appearance in smart coats and suits was more than satisfactory sartorially.

Mrs. Fred Daugherty wore tweeds with a deep red hat and scarf, and two of the queens, Mrs. T. L. Davis and Miss Claire Daugherty chose flannels. The former wearing a powder blue suit, and the latter a Lanvin green dress and top coat. Mrs. Davis wore a tan hat, and a scarf that repeated the blue and tan, and Miss Daugherty a black hat with green scarf.

Mrs. Ella Cotton Magee and her daughter, Miss Fredericka Nash, are always distinctive. Tuesday their brown eyes glowed as they watched Tommy Douglas subdue wild horses and steers. Mrs. Magee wore a tailored suit of black, with snug little collar and cuffs of black lynx. Her hat combined black and white.

Royal ermine shielded the shoulders of the three duchesses; Miss Nash wore a blue coat trimmed in summer ermine, with a small hat a shade or two darker in tone.

Miss Virginia Barker, a second duchess in the court of the year, also wore a blue wrap, trimmed in hand of orange, brown, henna, green and yellow, trimmed in coon dyed ermine.

The third duchess, Miss Emma Hoagland, wore a boyish frock of green canton, with severely cut collars and cuffs, half hidden under a black wrap, trimmed in white ermine.

Mrs. W. D. Hordford wore an all black costume, a coat collared in caracul with a striking hat.

Fred Daugherty entertained his guest, E. B. Erskine of Denver, at the rodeo. Last evening Mr. Erskine was honored at dinner at the Omaha club by a group of his friends whom he has met in years past in Estes park. Covers were laid for Mr. and Mrs. Daugherty, Mr. and Mrs. Joel Wright, Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Carpenter, Jr.

Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Doid of Buffalo were in the afternoon audience with their son, Ralph.

Mrs. Mary Gavin of Boston was in a box with her daughter, Mrs. A. J. Young, Dr. Young and Miss Katherine Walsh.

Other box holders included Everett Buckingham, E. John Brandels, Dr. R. E. Schindel, John Flynn and Maurice P. Hinchey.

Visitor From the South Is Builder of Hospitals and Business Expert Possessed With Brains and Fortune, She Uses Both for Welfare of Others.

Mrs. John Dibert.

A most interesting visitor in the city is Mrs. John Dibert of New Orleans, mother of Mrs. Gwyer Yates. She is stopping at Hotel Blackstone, where she will remain during her two weeks' stay.

The charity division of the new Hotel Dieu, which is a hospital, is Mrs. Dibert's contribution to the institution.

An industrial farm for boys, across the river from New Orleans, where the rudiments of agriculture are taught boys at a crucial period in their lives, is her project. Boys of about 15 are taken in there, from asylums or reformatories, and taught farming in all its ramifications, including dairying. Supplementary education is also given them. The place is managed on the cottage plan.

Frivolity has almost no place in Mrs. Dibert's life. When she is not engaged in her philanthropies, she is giving attention to various large business interests, notably banking, lumber and manufacturing. In these fields she has a knowledge surpassed by few men.

Friends of Mrs. Yates will have an opportunity to meet Mrs. Dibert during her stay here, for Mrs. Yates plans to receive for her mother at various times.

Reports will be made by committees of the local league.

It is urged that members of the local league be informed on these bills and measures. The congressional attitude toward them and the development of public opinion concerning them will be considered from time to time.

HUSBAND WEARS OLD HAT; BELIEVES IT NEW

Woman Returns New Panama When Old One Returns From Dresheers.

Mrs. W. W. Polk sent her husband's panama hat to Dresheers to be cleaned.

But, Mr. Polk, thinking the idea was ridiculous, bought a new hat at a downtown store. When Mr. Polk's hat returned from the cleaner's, his wife hung it up in the place of the new one. Her husband did not know the difference, so she returned the new hat to the downtown shop.

This is a true story of last spring told by one of the recent visitors to Dresheers plant, 2213-2215-2217-2219 Farnam street.

Dresheers are not only hatters, but dyers, cleaners, furriers, rug cleaning experts and maintain a cold storage plant for furs, rugs and clothing.

Your Problems
By Martha Allen

Dear Miss Allen: As you have given so much advice to other girls, will you please give us girls some, too. I am 16 and will be 17 in June. I have a very dear chum of the same age and she will be 17 in June. Everyone says the month is just suitable for us, and we are pretty. We wear bobbed hair and dress nice; we nearly always wear our clothes alike. We want to go out riding and go to shows.

Last Saturday some boys said, "Hello, girls." We did not answer. Others whistled for us to come to their car. We never went. Others followed us and asked us to go to shows. We said, "No, thank you." They looked disappointed. We were sorry afterwards. Did we do right? We do want to go ever so bad. What shall we do? Make them notice us again. We don't want to go steady with boys, but just once in a while. Are we too young for that? We want to be popular.

I want to make a young boy's acquaintance. He is just two years older than myself. I like him and am quite sure he likes me. He smiles and speaks, but that is all the farther he gets. Tell me, Miss Allen, what to do. Thanking you for your kindly advice, we are,

JEAN AND BETH.

Beautiful girls like yourselves, especially girls born in the month of June, with bobbed hair and nice clothes, should not have to stoop to cheap tactics to make boys notice them. They will like you better if you exhibit a little respect for yourselves.

Women often take it as a compliment if a man notices them on the street. It is really more of an insult than a compliment. Men don't whistle at women whom they really admire and respect.

My advice to you is to behave as you know a young girl should. You admire boys, but be quite so loud, and possibly not so numerous, but they will be more sincere and will bring much of real happiness in your life. Men who pick up women so acquaintances easily, don't value them highly.
