Survivors Tell of Gale on Lake Taking 5 Lives

Crew Recounts Grim Battle With Elements in Which Steamer Founders—Res- cued From Island.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., 21.—Grim accounts of the battle with a Lake Superior gale that claimed the lives of their captain and four of their shipmates were told today by 16 survivors of the steamer Orinoco which foundered Sunday off Montreal island. Radio dispatches from the tug Gargantua, which answered the signal fires built by the survivors on Montreal island, told the story of the wreck.

The Orinoco foundered off Pointe Aux Mines Sunday after it had been necessary to cut adrift the barge Chieftain, which the Orinoco had in tow.

The victims of the 60-mile gale were: Capt. Anthony L. Lawrence of Cleveland, formerly sailing with the Tomlinson company of Cleveland.

Chief Engineer Joseph Wurts of Bay City, Mich.

The wheelman, believed to be of Cleveland.

Two other seamen, as yet unidentified in the wireless dispatches.

The survivors, with which the Gargantua is making its way into this port, told of the hopeless fight against the storm, the decision to cut the barge adrift, the fight in the wreckage and of reaching the island, where a 40-hour vigil was spent before the tug brought relief.

Members of the Gargantua crew, commanded by Capt. D. Williams of the Spanish River Paper company of Sault Ste. Marie, Ontario, provided the survivors with food and warm clothes.

Two bodies were picked up by the tug after cruising around the scene of the wreck for several hours. Later the tug found the drifting barge Chieftain and took it in tow.

Mrs. Poole, the woman member of the Orinoco's crew, bore the hardships bravely. She braved the heavy seas on a raft improvised by some of the men when the steamer sank and was subjected to severe exposure on the island.
