Politics, Politics, Politics.
The Judge's Cocktail.
Skinning the Monkey.
Another Fool's Warning.
By ARTHUR BRISBANE

Politics is troublesome, each "leading candidate" is disturbed and threatened by other leading candidates. McAdoo has most votes. Al Smith's friends say they have enough to prevent McAdoo's nomination and that they will do. McAdoo says that if they do, he will throw his votes to Glass, that southern dark horse. Ralston emerges from the shadow of dignity to say that he is no enemy of the rich, would not oppress wealth. On the other hand, he is the loving friend of the poor man. Poverty may trust him, wealth may not fear him. What can you ask more than that?

Al Smith, Tammany Hall candidate, and at present actual leader of Tammany Hall, is disturbed by rows and riots inside of that ancient organization. District Leader Curry, back of Al Smith, says nobody must be made leader of Tammany that could be eligible to the Ku Klux Klan. Another district leader says Leader Curry seeks to stir up the "religious question."

F. D. Roosevelt, Al Smith's manager, impolitely described by his cousin, Theodore Roosevelt, the 2d, as a "maverick" Roosevelt, lacking the family brand, brings news that the west is "rapidly returning to Al Smith as a real leader." That will interest many democrats in the west. Meanwhile Coolidge has his nomination killed, dressed and hung up in cold storage. His only trouble is the selection of a vice president. W. J. Bryan peeps from the beautiful pines, flowers and coconut trees in Florida, to remark that "Coolidge would like to take a radical vice president, because that would get him votes." But Coolidge is mortal, and "Wall street," according to Mr. Bryan, won't run the risk of letting Coolidge nominate any radical vice president for fear he might become a real president.

Rebecca West, an intelligent young English writer, back in London, tells of a judge in the middle-west who danced the tango with passion rarely exhibited in public places. And afterward gave me a wonderful cocktail made of a brand of white fire out of a silver flask the size of the Ascot cup. At his invitation she sat on the bench with him next day and saw him fine a colored lady, 75 years old, $50 for carrying a pint bottle of moonshine whisky. She presents that as a sample of our "respect for law."

It surprises Miss West to know that Chicago, "one-third the size of London, has 300 murders a year." Everywhere in the United States there are too many murders. Chicago is busy with the murder of a kidnaped boy. New York unravels the mystery of a woman murdered in a Ford sedan on Staten island. Boston investigates the murder of Louise Gerish, a 19-year-old school teacher. "Yellow Charleston," muleto, contributes his item by murdering two negroes, one "Baron" Wilkins. He gives himself up, "fearing to be torn to pieces by negro friends of Wilkins." Too many murders, too much bootleg whisky, too much contempt for law trouble this country.

It would horrify you to read about a female going to capture the young girl, skinning her to use the skin as sandals. That never happened. But European ladies are having sandals made of the "soft and pliable" skins of monkeys, guaranteed not to "squeak." In a gorilla that would shock us. It's all right for a lady. Another warning to fools. Samuel Brown had read about some "other cases," but that didn't frighten him. He is dead now with a bullet in his stomach. The police found him in a hotel with a pin woman who called herself "Mrs." Brown. The real Mrs. Brown had been told her husband was away collecting bills. He was collecting trouble. The young lady accused calmly smoked her cigar, and said to the police "fix him up." The widow says "he got what he deserved." It's an old story, often repeated, and it will not be a warning to other fools.

Several women, delegates and alternates to the democratic convention, will be addressed as "Honorable" Miss or Mrs. So and So. That's progress. Not long ago the average man doubted whether a woman really had a soul. Whether or not Mohammed kept them out of Paradise. (Copyright, 1924.)

AFRAID SHE COULD NOT LIVE

Operation Advised, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Made It Unnecessary

Glasgow, Kentucky.—"I was run-down, nervous, with no appetite. My side had given me trouble for five or six years. At times it was all I could do to live, and the doctor said I couldn't live but a short time longer without an operation. That was two years ago. My sister-in-law recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. She had never used it herself, but she said one of her neighbors suffered just like I did, and it cured her. After I had taken four bottles the pain left my side. I had a fine appetite to eat anything that was put before me, and I began to do all my work and my washing, something I hadn't done for years. I am a dress-maker, and this last fall I began suffering with my side again. I began taking the Vegetable Compound again. I am on my fourth bottle, which makes eight in all I have taken. I feel so much better when I take it and everybody tells me I look better. My appetite improves and I feel stronger in every way. I am a very nervous woman and it seems to help my nerves so much."—Mrs. MAGGIE WALLER, Glasgow, Kentucky.
