

Free Motion Pictures Shown Every Night

New Program
Starts Sunday and Thursday

Free motion pictures are one of the new features inaugurated this season. The fact that the pictures are free, however, does not reflect any inferiority, and, in fact, the two-reel comedies such as are now being "run" cost more than many so-called "feature" photoplays.

Every night six reels of pictures are shown and if the weather is favorable everyone of the seats provided for the patrons is taken. The fact that the photos are shown outdoors enables people to enjoy the pictures and at the same time enjoy the cool evening air.

One of the two-reel series that is especially popular is Aesop's Fables, the funny "crazy-cat" series. The park alternates in showing two-reel western photoplay or comedy in addition to running Pathe News.

The program is changed completely every Thursday and Sunday nights.

Pool Reserved for Women and Children
From 8 a.m. to 12 a.m.

Krug Park swimming pool will offer women and children an exclusive swimming place during the morning hours, as the pool is reserved for them from 8 a. m. to 12 a. m. except Sundays and holidays. Women and children also are admitted free during these hours.

The general public is admitted to the pool from noon until 11 p. m., the pool remaining open at night an hour longer than last season.

Tots Enjoy Well Equipped Playground

Nothing has been left undone to give the kiddies a good time at Krug park. There are special playgrounds for them and below is a group of youngsters starting the season with a merry time in kiddie land.

The playgrounds are a veritable paradise for kiddies.

Teeter-totters, swings, may poles, miniature merry-go-rounds and sandboxes are among the numerous paraphernalia to be found on the children's playgrounds.

The playground insures the tots of a day jammed full of fun, one they will long remember.

Captive Aeroplane One of Popular Rides

The aerial swing revolves about a center shaft and all the thrills of soaring away in an aeroplane is produced when this huge contraption starts its riders swinging in the air.

Large Treating Plant at Pool

Krug Park swimming pool is equipped with a $100,000 water purifying plant. This plant has a capacity of treating 1,400 gallons of water per minute, or 84,000 gallons per hour. The large, motor-driven circulating pump takes from the bottom of the pool 84,000 gallons of water each hour, forcing it under pressure through a series of horizontal filters. After being filtered the water must pass through three ozone towers 30 feet high. This system, operating day and night, supplies the pool with over two million gallons of pure, fresh sparkling water every 24 hours.

"Million" Mirrors Bewilder Pilgrims

One trip through the Thousand and One Troubles will convince you the mirth-creating device is most appropriately named, yet one experience in it just creates a desire to go again and again. "One million mirrors" are in this unique house to confuse the pilgrims who undertake to go through its glass corridors.

Bacteriologist Tests Pool Water Daily

The management of the pool does not depend on mechanical methods only, but in addition employs a chemist and bacteriologist to examine the water in the pool daily, to make sure that the filters, ozonating machines, and chlorinating apparatus are actually doing the work intended that they should do. A certificate of purity is posted each day at the pool in plain sight of all of the condition of the water. This certificate is only issued after actual bacteriological examination of the pool water.

There must be a reason why

Chase's FINE Chocolates

and Chocolate Bars

Were Chosen for KRUG PARK

Is it because they are different from most other candies?

Is it because in this line is the famous

5c Run-a-Round Bar?

Is it because the popular demand has forced the CHASE CANDY COMPANY to build a new $1,000,000 plant?

Is it because the management knows you like these candies better than those you can buy most any place?
